TWO HOLDUP MEN ESCAPE WITH $48,000 IN JEWELRY

One, Pretending to Be Customer, Blindfolds, Binds and Gags A. C. Lindsley in Salesroom, 584 Arcade Building.

THEN ADMITS PAL AND LOOTS SAFE

Victim Rolls to Door and Bumps Against It Till Help Arrives—Similar Attack in Same Place in 1929 Fruitless.

Aubrey C. Lindsley, retail jeweler, was bound, gagged and blindfolded yesterday afternoon in his salesroom, 584 Arcade Building, by a pretended customer, who then admitted another man to the room. The two took the entire stock of jewelry, valued by Lindsley at $48,000.

Lindsley lay on the floor more than an hour before he was able, by bumping upon a door, to call for help about 5 p. m. Besides the jewelry, $30 in cash was taken from his desk. The stock was insured.

Lindsley's suite, rooms 582-84, is so arranged that customers are admitted through a steel cage in room 582. There are no showcases, the stock of diamonds, rings and watches being kept in the safe.

"A man entered the outer office some time after 3:30," Lindsley told reporters. "He asked me, 'Are you the one who has the display in the window downstairs?' I said I was, and the man said, 'I want to look at a watch, an expensive one.'

Blindfolded, Gagged and Tied.

"I opened the steel door and let him in, and he followed me into the salesroom, where I had a tray of watches out. I turned to pick out some of the watches, and the man put a revolver against my side and told me to keep still.

"'Open the safe,' he said. 'It's open,' I told him. 'You know what I want,' he replied, and he forced me to open the inner compartment of the safe, which has a combination, and which contained the diamonds.

"'Keep your face away from me,' the man said. Then he made me lie on the floor, and began tying me up. He must have brought the cord with him. He tied my arms behind my back, bound my legs and trussed them to my arms, and pulled the cords until they hurt. He took towels from the washstand and tied them over my eyes and mouth.

"As I lay on the floor, he went to the entrance and admitted another man, whom, of course, I did not see. I heard the two taking out the contents of the safe, the tray of watches and the money from the desk. After they left, I squirmed around a good while before I was able to move, on one side, over to the door of room 584. I bumped my body against it until someone came."

Watchman Releases Him.

The first person to hear the noise at the door was a man passing in the hall. He notified an elevator operator, who called a watchman, S. T. Davis. Davis entered by a pass key. He said afterward that he found the jeweler so well and tightly tied that he was unable to undo the knots, and had to cut the cords. The blindfold still was in place, but Lindsley had worked the gag loose and was able to speak when the watchman entered. Two pairs of canvas gloves were left behind by the robber.

Lindsley described the robber whom he saw as about 40 years old, 6 feet tall, weighing about 200 pounds, with dark hair, wearing a dark suit and a gray hat. He based his estimate of the value of the stock on an inventory made three months ago. He received some diamonds from Chicago yesterday.

In November, 1929, a young woman employed in Lindsley's establishment was bound by three men, who worked at the safe but failed to open it, and nothing was taken.

Parachute Catches, Flyer Killed.

MARSHALL, Tex., May 7.—Entanglement of a parachute with a falling plane today cost the life of Brode de Jernett, Marshall aviator. De Jernett was testing a newly overhauled ship above the municipal airport when motor failure led him to "bail out." The parachute caught and he dropped with the plane.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR BUREAU HEAD DIES SUDDENLY IN PARIS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 8.—(Sunday)—Albert Thomas, director of the International Labor Bureau and former Minister of Munitions, died suddenly early today. He was 53 years old.

He was taken ill in a street at midnight and staggered into a cafe, where he fell unconscious. A policeman took him to Beaujon Hospital.

Thomas, a prominent Socialist, was in charge of the manufacture of French munitions during the World War. He became a member of the War Council in 1916 as minister of national manufacturers, including munitions and transport, and later was appointed Minister of Munitions.

He was appointed director-general of the International Labor Bureau, an organization under the League of Nations, in 1920. He visited the United States in 1922.

INDEPENDENT ICE DEALERS AGREE TO INCREASE PRICE

Beginning May 16 Rate Will Be 50 Instead of 40 Cents for 100 Pounds.

Independent ice dealers, meeting last night at the home of Barney Schroer, 2341 Sullivan avenue, agreed to increase the price of ice from 40 cents to 50 cents a hundred pounds, beginning May 16.

Schroer was a member of a committee which sought unsuccessfully to obtain a reduction in the wholesale price, usually 22½ cents a hundred pounds. Several of the wholesalers also do a retail business and their price to householders is regularly 50 cents a hundred pounds.

Wholesalers supply ice in 400-pound blocks for 90 cents, but some small dealers are required, they say, to pay 95 cents or $1. Some wholesalers apply the $1 price only to peddlers who deliver on Sunday. The 5 and 10-cent increases for blocks of 400 pounds are directed against small dealers who operate only during the warm summer months.

TAX BILL LIKELY TO FIND ROUGH GOING IN SENATE

Trouble Ahead Despite Administration Leaders' Prediction of Passage in Two Weeks.

HOOVER'S LASHING STIRS RESENTMENT

Many Object to Income Tax Schedules and Tariffs in Measure Also Arouse Opposition.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Republican leaders predicted today that the new billion-dollar revenue bill will be presented to the Senate by Wednesday and enacted into law within two weeks. The Finance Committee, which set a new speed record yesterday by rewriting the whole measure in less than two hours, is expected to spend Monday and Tuesday preparing a report to accompany it.

It is no secret that administration heads base their hope for quick action on the supposed effect of the tongue-lashings which President Hoover successively administered to Congress on Thursday and Friday. The reaction of a large section of the press convinced them that the Senate had been hammered into submission and would accept the measure virtually as it comes from the committee.

Much Resentment Aroused.

A number of elements tend to shed doubt on that conclusion. The Senate has never been very amenable to White House discipline. Presidents Coolidge and Hoover frequently sought in the past to use "the big stick" on that body, and never succeeded in doing anything except antagonizing the members. Widespread resentment over the President's criticism was evident, both in House and Senate today, and was not all confined to Democrats.

Moreover, certain features of the bill as it stands are highly objectionable to many Senators. Progressive Republicans and a number of Democrats are dissatisfied with the sections which would enormously increase the taxes on moderate incomes, while imposing comparatively lighter increases on large incomes and inheritances. It will be surprising if they do not move to boost the estate tax and the maximum surtax rates on income above $1,000,000 a year.

Again, there is deep opposition to the proposed tariffs on oil, gasoline, coal, copper and lumber. These were placed in the bill by a log-rolling combination of Western Democrats, who wanted protection for the products of their own states, and old guard Republicans, who either believe in high tariffs on everything or wanted to put the Democrats "in a hole" on the tariff issue in the approaching presidential campaign.

Estimates of Revenue Vary.

Estimates of the amounts of revenue to be derived from these tariffs have ranged from the fabulous figures of the lobbyists seeking such duties down to nothing. Many Democrats and Progressives contend that the only effect of the tariff duties will be to increase the domestic price of the commodities affected by them. A strenuous effort to eliminate them from the bill seems inevitable.

The bill as finally approved by the Finance Committee bears a closer resemblance to the Treasury program originally recommended by Secretary Ogden Mills than to the bill reported by the House Ways and Means Committee or that eventually passed by the House. It does not include the gasoline tax and the increased tobacco taxes urged by Mills, and provides slightly lower rates on automobiles than those he recommended.

Nevertheless, the barest glance shows that it would compel persons of moderate incomes to bear the lion's share of filling the Treasury deficit, thus attaining Mills' aim of "broadening the base" of taxation. Exemptions are drastically lowered, the normal rates on income are doubled, and the surtax exemption is lowered, administrative regulations are made more rigid.

Other Sources of New Revenue.

Other sources from which large amounts of new revenue are to be derived are the taxes in lubricating oil, automobiles, bank checks, admissions to theaters and games, telephone and telegraph messages, malt syrup, wort and grape con-

GIGLI SLAPS BACK AT GATTI-CASAZZA, GETS WARM RETORT

Manager Tells Tenor Metropolitan Would Have to Close If Salaries Were Not Cut.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Stung by the criticism of former colleagues in the Metropolitan Opera Company, Beniamino Gigli, tenor, who resigned rather than accept a cut in his salary, issued a statement last night condemning the manner in which Giulio Gatti-Casazza had dealt with his case.

The manager of the opera company had handled the matter, he said, "with too evident a desire to arrive at a scandal at my expense." Gatti-Casazza held a grudge against him, Gigli said, and "likes to use the baton of the maestro even when it is not necessary." He referred to his "dignity as an artist," which would not permit him "to bargain with his self-respect."

Gatti-Casazza replied by characterizing Gigli's statement as "a web of inventions." As a true friend, he said, he wanted to advise him: "Go on with your singing, and with this you will gather approval and applause, but stop issuing statements which do not justify you in the least and make everyone laugh behind your back."

Salary reductions, Gatti-Casazza said, were necessary to make possible continuing the opera company. "I and all my colleagues have contributed and will continue to contribute," he said. "Gigli did not contribute anything. Let Mr. Gigli think he is right and let him think we are wrong. But if we had all followed Mr. Gigli's line of conduct the Metropolitan would have had to close."

"SECRET SIX" CHARGES FAMILY LET JOLIET KIDNAPERS ESCAPE

Identity Known, Investigators Say, But Co-Operation in Trapping Them Was Refused.

By the Associated Press.

JOILET, Ill., May 7.—Gustav Miller, 22 years old, son of a wealthy Joliet family, was back home today after nine days with kidnapers. Officials of Chicago's "Secret Six" almost immediately charged that his captors had eluded arrest only because his relatives had refused co-operation.

The youth was abducted the night of April 29, shortly after he had driven away from the home of his fiancee. He was found by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Miller, early this morning, 65 miles from here, standing by a roadside at Starved Rock State Park, where his kidnapers had informed his parents he would be left.

"Secret Six" investigators disclosed they had been working secretly on the case and had discovered the identities of four of the six kidnapers. They said that they informed the Miller family Thursday that they knew four of the men and the Millers had agreed to lure them into a trap. Instead, the investigators said, the Millers informed the kidnapers that they were known, thus procuring their son's release without ransom but frightening his captors from the planned trap.

TELLS OF $2,000,000 CREDIT EXTENDED TO KREUGER FIRM

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 7.—Premier Ekman declared in Parliament today that the Government had "no reason to hide anything" concerning the late Ivar Kreuger and told how a $2,000,000 credit was extended to save the Swedish Match Co. from bankruptcy.

He said he was urgently summoned to a meeting of the board of the Riksbank on Feb. 23, when Sweden's National Bank granted the credit.

Kreuger, the Swedish "match king," was ill in New York, the Premier said, and with only a few minutes to spare the bank decided to advance credits on the basis of information received from the United States. At the same time the board decided to investigate the Kreuger concern and demanded Kreuger's immediate return, he added.

Kreuger had just returned to Europe from New York when he committed suicide in Paris on March 12.

FRANCE SEALS HOUSE FOR TAX

Dead Pittsburg Woman's Home Closed Pending Collection.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 7.—The Pittsburg home of Miss Rosalie Spang, 87 years old, who died in Nice, France, early last month, has been sealed by the French Government pending tax collections on jewelry, art treasures and other possessions.

Miss Spang left an estate valued at $1,000,000 and an art collection. The latter have been offered to the Carnegie Institute. The executors of the estate have retained French attorneys to expedite proceedings.

HOOVER AND G. O. P. LEADERS CONFER ON ECONOMY BILL

MEETING HELD IN WHITE HOUSE

Secretary Mills Says Purpose Is to Secure Partisan Effort to Balance Budget.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Hoover and Secretary Mills at a special conference with Republican senatorial leaders tonight discussed further "methods of co-operation to bring about prompt enactment of the revenue bill and economy legislation."

The words are those of the Secretary of the Treasury, who was delegated spokesman as the group broke up after an hour and a half of discussion.

Those Present.

Those who sat down with Mr. Hoover and Mills in the Lincoln study were Vice President Curtis, Senator Watson of Indiana, the majority leader, Senators Smoot of Utah, Reed of Pennsylvania, Bingham of Connecticut, Dickinson of Iowa and Walter H. Newton, the presidential secretary who deals especially with Capitol Hill.

One after another of the conferees declared on leaving the White House that political matters had not entered into the deliberations.

Mills, when questioned about the course of the co-operative endeavor, said it would lead "eventually" to bi-partisan co-operation toward the ends sought. He refrained from saying whether any specific conclusions had been reached.

No Democrats at Meeting.

It was noted that no Democrats participated, but Mills was emphatic in asserting that only a general discussion of "methods" for co-operation had taken place and the means was to be non-partisan effort.

"Our job now is to balance the budget," he reiterated. "It must be done along non-partisan lines."

Mills cited the abrupt adoption of a compromise tax bill by the Senate Finance Committee yesterday as the type of co-operation set as the goal.

Asked whether the President was pleased with that bill, he returned jovially: "Well, I haven't lost my job, yet."

It was virtually a bill recommended by Mills at an executive session that the Finance Committee approved without ado after days of work on the House tax bill in which it reversed itself repeatedly.

Mills also expressed approval of the manner the House Ways and Means Committee this week rejected on legislation to cash the veterans' bonus.

Mills Gives a Hint.

While declining to give details of any program that may have been agreed upon, Mills referred questioners to the Hoover message to Congress of Thursday and the amount mentioned therein as the goal wanted.

In that message, the President declared: "There are opportunities to increase the direct savings provided for in the House economy bill from $30,000,000 to from $130,000,000 to $150,000,000, plus many indeterminate items which would result in further economies."

In the House today Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York, said that last Sunday stock brokers sent out word the Senate tax bill was ruining the market. President Hoover sent up his economy message Thursday and Secretary Mills went before the Senate Finance Committee and word went out that the budget would be balanced by the revenue bill. La Guardia termed it a trick to send up the market.

"The U. S. Steel Corporation carefully timed its announcement of additional reduction of 15 per cent in wages," La Guardia said. "That was the cause of the rally of the stocks. They so timed it as to fit with the President's message and the appeal of the Secretary of the Treasury before the Senate Committee as the cause of the rallying of stocks. I say this: It makes no difference how much these stocks rallied yesterday, it did not put a single man to work, and this is the proof absolute of this program to bleed the weak. That is all there is to it."

DESIGNER OF CUNARD PIER ONLY ONE KILLED IN FIRE

Lieut.-Col. Ralph A. Kluge Struck on Head When Hose Line Ripped Loose.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The sole fatality of the $2,000,000 fire that raged uncontrolled for 23 hours on the Cunard Steamship Co.'s pier 54 was disclosed tonight as the man who designed the pier. Lieutenant-Colonel Ralph A. Kluge, engineering architect and soldier.

Kluge was lunching with a friend Friday noon when word of the fire reached him. "Come on," he said, "let's run over there and see how my old job is holding up."

At the scene, while Kluge was describing the steel trusses he had designed and speculating on their chances of resisting the fire, a hose line ripped loose from a hydrant and struck him on the head. Its metal noozle fractured his skull and he died in a hospital.

Kluge was born in Elmira in 1882 and educated at the University of Pennsylvania. He served as assistant to the chief engineer of the Reading Railroad and later was city engineer of Harrisburg, Pa. In 1915 he joined a firm of New York architects. He designed the steel work for the wrecked pier in 1905.

Military services will be held on Monday and burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

KILLED RUSHING DERBY PICTURES TO NEWSPAPERS

Motor Cycle Driver Loses Life, But Injured Companion Gets Photographs Through.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Painfully bruised, suffering from shock and a dislocated arm, Harry L. Hall, Associated Press photographer, arrived in Chicago at 7:47 p. m. tonight with the first consignment of news pictures of the Kentucky Derby for telephoto distribution over the country, after narrowly escaping death in an accident in which his companion, John Irvin Lautz of Louisville, was killed. On the way from the race track to a Louisville airport, where an airplane was waiting to transport the photographs to Chicago, a motor cycle upon which Hall and Lautz were riding crashed into a telephone post. A fire alarm box attached to the post was smashed and the electrical connection set off an alarm. Lautz was removed to a hospital by firemen who responded to the alarm, and died a few moments later.

After attending his injured companion, Hall went on to the airport, despite his injuries, and was taken to Chicago by plane.

The injured photographer was met at the airport here by an ambulance and taken to Jackson Park Hospital, where an X-ray examination indicated no bones were broken.

Gus Pomquist, pilot of the plane, said Hall told him that Lautz apparently fainted and fell from the machine. The motor cycle ran along for more than a block without a driver, then struck a post, caught fire and was destroyed.

Congressman Weds Governess.

WASHINGTON, May 7. — Representative Thomas R. Amlie of Elkhorn, Wis., and Mrs. Gehrta Beyer, governess to his three sons for the last two years, were married here tonight. The bride, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, came to the capital with the 35-year-old member of Congress last fall, after he was elected for his first term and moved his family to the city. She is 33 years old and a member of the Association of University Women.

SUBPENA SERVERS UNABLE TO FIND WIFE OF MASSIE

Police Told at Pearl Harbor Naval Reservation That Her Whereabouts Is Unknown.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, May 7.—Mrs. Thalia Massie, who is reported suffering from a nervous breakdown, was sought unsuccessfully today by police who held a subpena for her presence May 25 at the retrial of four men charged with assaulting her. Mrs. Massie had planned to sail tomorrow for the mainland with her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, who, with her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two enlisted men, was convicted of manslaughter for the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, one of her alleged attackers. Massie and the three others were freed after serving one hour, their terms of 10 years each having been commuted by Gov. Judd.

Failure of the police to locate Mrs. Massie left her contemplated departure in doubt.

The policemen took the subpena to Pearl Harbor after the public prosecutor, John C. Kelley, had been assured naval authorities would permit its service. The navy yard is a Government reservation. They returned to the city with the assurance of naval authorities that they would be notified as soon as Mrs. Massie could be found.

No Word of Whereabouts.

The policemen said they went first to the gate of the navy yard where, under navy regulations, they were required to check their guns. Then they drove to the administration building and paid their respects to Rear Admiral Yates Stirling. From there they traveled to the old ship Alton, which was "jail" for Lieut. Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and the two sailors after Kahahawai was killed.

Aboard the ship, which is about a half mile from the Administration Building, they found Lieut. Massie and Mrs. Fortescue, but not Mrs. Massie. Both the officer and his mother-in-law told the police they did not know the whereabouts of Mrs. Massie. The policemen reported officers on the ship also said they did not know where she had gone. Admiral Stirling instructed Capt. F. J. Horne, his chief of staff, to conduct a search.

Since all the Massie-Fortescue party had planned to sail tomorrow on the liner Malolo, friends believed that Mrs. Massie would be aboard the liner when it clears the harbor and heads for San Francisco.

Officials considered Mrs. Massie had no intention of remaining here for the retrial of her alleged attackers, the first trial having ended with the jury deadlocked on the question of guilt or innocence.

Darrow and Prosecutor Absent.

Efforts to reach Clarence Darrow or George Leisure, defense attorneys, were unavailing. Mrs. Darrow said they had gone to the country. She said she did not believe Mrs. Massie's illness was serious. It was understood Mrs. Massie was with friends.

Prosecutor Kelley could not be found. Not even his office would

STATE HONOR FOR DOUMER AT FUNERAL ON THURSDAY

SUCCESSOR TO BE CHOSEN TUESDAY

Paul Gorgulov, Assassin, Declared Sane by Alienists, Arraigned— Mourning Drapes Election Booths Today.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 7.—France began its last tribute to its murdered president today while the agencies of the law set in motion the machinery to deal with the assassin.

A national funeral will be given Paul Doumer Thursday. This is the highest honor accorded by the republic to its eminent dead. The 75-year-old President died of bullet wounds early this morning after lingering for 12 hours.

He will be laid to rest in the Pantheon besides the great of past days—Voltaire, Jean Jacques Rousseau and Victor Hugo.

The funeral preparations were made by the Cabinet today while Dr. Paul Gorgulov, the Russian who killed him, was formally charged with the assassination before an examining magistrate. Monday an attorney will be named to defend Gorgulov and as quickly as possible he will be placed on trial.

Body Lies in State.

The body of Doumer lay in state in the Elysee palace. The body will lie in state Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Premier Andre Tardieu will deliver the funeral oration from the steps of the Pantheon in which national shrine the body will be buried.

The public was not admitted to view the body today. But there was an unending flow of notable visitors, including diplomats of all the nations of the world bearing expressions of sympathy from their Governments.

Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris, sprinkled the body with holy water and pronounced his blessing.

Throughout the nation flags were at half staff. Public buildings were draped in black and all civil and military officials were ordered to wear mourning for a month. The state theaters were closed today and will be closed again on Thursday.

From Premier Tardieu, on whom fell the principal executive burden of the Government, came a a message to the people asking that "with all calm and dignity we render the chief of the state the only homage he would have desired."

U. S. Ambassador's Tribute.

United States Ambassador Walter E. Edge was one of the diplomats who called at the presidential palace today with the official condolences of his Government.

"President Doumer," he said, "has to a singular degree exemplified for the American people the finest ideals of the French race. His heroic sacrifices during the war and his devotion to the highest interests of the state command our profound admiration.

"He had shown himself invariably through his long years of public service a warm and close friend of my country."

Edge announced that the laying of the cornerstone of the new American Embassy, scheduled for May 25, had been canceled on account of the period of mourning for President Doumer.

Alienists Say Assassin Is Sane.

Three alienists have examined Gorgulov and declared him sane, responsible for his crime. This finding contradicted police, who asserted yesterday that he was insane.

From two sources came statements that the assassin was linked with a Bolshevist organization.

Piere Jullien, head of the secret service, announced he had obtained evidence which led him to believe Gorgulov was involved with a Bolshevik group. Former President Alexandre Millerand declared he had personal information which "permits me to say in the most categoric way that this assassin belonged to the regular Bolshevist forces."

It was disclosed that four foreigners had been questioned in connection with the assassination. The

SEABURY ASSAILS 'SICKENING' GRAFT IN NEW YORK CITY

SUGGESTS 4 WAYS TO EFFECT REFORM

Tells Law Institute in Washington Right Against Self-Incrimination Should Be Modified.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the New York State Hofstadter Legislative Committee, in an address to the American Law Institute here tonight, made several references to "the sickening corruption which characterizes the Government of New York City."

After explaining that the Mayor of New York City was charged with the appointment of City Magistrates, he said: "These inferior courts, by reason of political influences governing the selection of judges and interfering with their processes, have been reduced to a low state.

"Political pull and favor often reign in them. . . . The whole system of the administration of justice in these courts has completely broken down by reason of the control which the dominant political organization exerts over them.

"Justice Shamefully Bartered."

"As a result, justice to the poor is not only shamefully delayed, but is bartered away in response to political influence.

"Those who assume judicial station in these courts are in many instances the appointees or favorites of corrupt district leaders who possess no qualifications for selecting judges, and do so in order that they may use and improperly influence them in the discharge of their official duties. . . .

"The appalling conditions which have been found to exist in the magistrates' courts—under which, in the name of the administration of justice, innocent women have been subjected to imprisonment in order that a corrupt group of scoundrels, composed of police officers, bondsmen and so-called lawyers might extort money from them—is only one of the manifestations of the sickening corruption which characterize the government of New York City."

Makes Four Recommendations.

Seabury made four specific recommendations:

1. That City Magistrates should be appointed by Justices of the Appellate Division, instead of "by the Mayor upon recommendation of Tammany Hall district leaders."

2. That the legal privilege against self-incrimination should be modified so investigators could inquire into the private lives and acts of public officials.

3. That all contracts for public works should contain an explicit waiver of the privilege against self-incrimination in any proceeding involving the contract, in order to facilitate the discovery of bribery.

4. That a lawyer's right to refuse to disclose communications between him and his clients be modified so that "in all an attorney's dealings with public officials or political organizations or their leaders in relation to public concessions, public contracts or favors, there should be no privileges against the disclosure of the full facts."

Lawlessness Well Organized.

Seabury began his address with a declaration that in "some of our great cities" the forces of the underworld are better organized than the forces of law and order, have no rules impeding efforts as organized government has, and "often act in co-operation with local political machines which masquerade under the name of a political party."

He said the constitutional guaranty against self-incrimination acts as a deterrent to administration of justice and should be modified "so that no public official or contractor or any other person engaged in the performance of public work should be permitted to invoke it as a reason why he should not be called upon to explain his actions in connection with public affairs."

In urging that such modification be not limited to official acts, Seabury said no one "should be suffered to hide behind the privilege against incrimination and at the same time occupy public office."

In discussing the professional privilege between lawyer and client he said experience had shown "the safest way to bribe a public official is to do it under the cover of a professional relationship."

"In consequence," he added, "we have a group of politically-influential lawyers who are retained not for the exercise of legal knowledge or skill, but for their political influence, that is, to act as political brokers in public contracts and governmental favors."

$2,000,000 Fire on Steamship Pier

A quantity of poison sufficient to destroy the whole population of Monaco and a will dated May 3, leaving everything to his wife were found by police in the home of Gorgulov in Monte Carlo.

The assassin's wife, will reach Paris tomorrow and will be questioned there by the authorities, who chiefly desire to learn her husband's means of living, as he appeared to have no regular work. After hours of questioning, Monte Carlo police said they were convinced that Mme. Gorgulov had no part in her husband's crime.

Crape-Draped Voting Booths.

The assassination added to the complexities of the already complex run-off election for the remaining 361 members of the Chamber of Deputies tomorrow. What effect it will have on the voters is uncertain, but some observers expected it to stop the tendency toward the Left noticeable in the first balloting last Sunday. The electors will cast their votes in booths draped in mourning.

France's new President will be selected by the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate in joint session at Versailles Tuesday. Albert Le Brun, who succeeded to the presidency of the Senate when Doumer left that post to become President of the nation, has been mentioned as the most likely choice. Le Brun was a candidate for the presidency May 13, 1931, when Doumer was elected.

Tardieu had a conference tonight with Le Brun and Fernand Bouisson, President of the last Chamber of Deputies.

The new President of France will take office immediately after his election and according to custom Premier Tardieu will present his resignation, after which he will continue to carry on the Government until a new Cabinet is formed in accordance with the political complexion of the new Chamber.

Le Temps asserted editorially that the President died a victim of "the moral disorder by which nearly the entire world is permitting itself to be dominated." The newspaper addressed an appeal to the world to check panicky influences, abandon discord and seek conciliation.

HOOVER'S CONDOLENCE MESSAGE TO FRANCE

Note to Tardieu Expresses Sorrow at Murder of President Doumer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Hoover today sent this message of condolence to Premier Andre Tardieu:

"I am grieved beyond expression to learn of the death of President Doumer. The great grief of France is shared by all the United States and my fellow countrymen join with me in extending to you and the French people sincere sympathy in their sorrow. I beg you to convey to the family of President Doumer, Mrs Hoover's and my own heartfelt condolences in this bereavement."

The Acting Secretary of State, William R. Castle Jr., sent to Premier Tardieu the following message:

"The sad intelligence that President Doumer has succumbed to the injuries so cruelly inflicted by an assassin has cast a gloom over the entire country. France has lost a loyal citizen and a beloved President who has made the supreme sacrifice for his country. The world at large will mourn Mr. Doumer's death, and my Government and fellow citizens join with me in extending heartfelt condolences."

LONDON, May 7.—The Lord Chamberlain announced at Buckingham Palace that the court would observe mourning over President Doumer of France for one week.

At Berlin today flags were at half-mast over President Von Hindenburg's place, the Chancellery, the Foreign Office and the Reichstag Building.

"The assassin struck not only one man, but wounded and humiliated humanity," Premier Mussolini told the Chamber of Deputies at Rome. "In this moment when politics is silent and only humanity speaks we wish the French people to feel the frank and heartfelt sympathy of the Italian people."

The Polish Government decided to send a special delegate to the funeral. The Russian Emigre colony at Warsaw met and condemned the assassin's act.

Salvador De Madariaga, Spanish Ambassador at Paris, was instructed by Madrid to express official condolence and to attend the funeral.

'LOBBYIST SWARM' CROWDING CAPITOL THE SAME AS EVER

Members of Congress Not Worried Although Hoover Assails Representatives of Business Interests.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The "locust swarm of lobbyists" on Capitol Hill, so-called yesterday by President Hoover, is actually one of the largest in recent history. Taxes and tariffs always attract these representatives of special industries.

The room where the Senate Finance Committee has been working to raise enough tax money to balance the budget has been the particular attraction of late. Lobbyists have cluttered the corridors there, lolling and pacing, and swarming about the doors of members.

The President said the fiscal issue was in part one "between the people and the locust swarm of lobbyists who haunt the halls of Congress, seeking special privileges for special groups and sections of the country, misleading members as to the real views of the people by showers of propaganda."

Legislators Not Worried.

Legislators consider the influence of the average lobbyist negligible. In fact, the temper of the weary Senators and Representatives just now seems such that a lobbyist's appeal is likely to have the opposite of its intended effect.

But business has convinced itself it must have these agents around. Perhaps the agents also have convinced business they have influence. Anyway, they are crowding Capitol Hill. The "big boys" who are fairly wise at the game seldom hang around the corridors buttonholing members. Their approach is far more subtle.

It is not business alone that is represented by lobbyists. Many organizations have their agents at work. Two rival womens' organizations are seemingly constantly at war at the Capitol. They come by groups and droves to press their causes.

The lobbyist is supposed to go to the general reception room in the Senate and send in his card for a member with whom he desires to speak. But the drove following the tax bill has kept no bounds. The Senate Finance Committee met for the last two weeks in the Military Affairs Committee room just off the Senate floor, so that members could go in for roll calls without losing much time.

Corridor Always Jammed.

The small corridor leading from the committee room to the Senate floor was jammed constantly with newspaper men, representing the public, and lobbyists, representing special interests.

Members have had to elbow their way through the crowd. Occasionally the lobbyists would surround one, but for the most part they would just wait to pick up the news the newspaper men got. The lobbyist usually tries to work more privately with a member.

Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, one of the chief opponents of the lobby group, has pointed out that some lobbyists "sell" the votes of members, although they have never even approached them. He said there was evidence of a "racket" whereby certain lobbyists find out how a member is going to vote on a proposition. The lobbyist, Reed says, then goes out, and for so much money claims he can get that vote.

1000 IN GRANDSTAND COLLAPSE

Five Hurt at Celebration of First Delaware Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

LEWES, Del., May 7.—Collapse of two grandstands bearing about 1000 persons caused injuries to five this afternoon. One of the injured was former United States Senator L. Heisler Ball of Wilmington. Mrs. Alice Sharpley of Townsend, Del., is being held for hospital observation. The others were not seriouly hurt.

The occasion marked Delaware's payment of homage to 28 sturdy Dutch settlers who landed at Lewes 300 years ago and established the first settlement on the Western shore of Delaware Bay and river.

MAN IS KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE; DRIVER IS HELD

John Trantina Fatally Hurt in County—Ran Into Path of Car Louis Swahlstedt.

John Trantina, 58-year-old sign painter, of 1332 Gregan place, St. Louis County, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile at Page boulevard and Gregan place. His skull, neck and left leg were fractured.

The driver, who said he was Louis Swahlstedt, 6825 Melrose avenue, University City, told police that Trantina ran into the path of his car. He was held under $1000 bond for the Coroner.

Paul E. Petuignot, a 60-year-old metal worker, of 629 Loughborough avenue, suffered injuries to the spine and shoulder last night when hit by an automobile which did not stop. Petuignot, who was taken to City Hospital, was struck as he was crossing Virginia avenue at Robert avenue. Witnesses gave police the license number of the car.

Boy, 12, Killed When He Falls Under Wheels of Truck.

Nick Valenti, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Valenti, 1510 Hogan street, was killed yesterday when he fell beneath a truck on which he was riding on the east approach to the Municipal Brdge.

A 9-year-old companion, Philip Bozza, 1613 North Nineteenth street, said he and Nick had been to East St. Louis during the morning "to see what Illinois was like" and were returning when the older boy boarded the truck, climbing up over a rear wheel.

In attempting to climb farther up on the truck, Nick fell to the street when a lever to which he was holding gave way. Robert Robinson, a Negro chauffeur, 205 South Eleventh street, was driver of the truck.

Woman Hurt in Auto-Street Car Collision Dies.

Mrs. Minnie Koons, 50 years old, 3726 Cozens avenue, died at City Hospital yesterday of a skull injury suffered April 29 in a collision between an automobile and a street car.

Mrs. Koons was riding with Ralph Pearson, 6550 Julian avenue, University City, at Grand boulevard and Garfield avenue, when Pearson, in attempting to avoid striking another automobile, skidded his machine against the street car. The street car was in charge of G. D. Spies, 3840 Indiana avenue, motorman.

Operator of Produce Stand Killed on Illinois Highway 13.

George Deffenbaugh, 70 years old, who operated a garden produce stand on Illinois Highway 13, three miles south of Belleville, was killed yesterday by an automobile driven by Miss Ilma A. Thorpe, an ear, nose and throat specialist of Louisville, Ky.

Miss Thorpe, accompanied by another woman, was en route to St. Louis. They said Deffenbaugh started across the road in front of them, hesitated as though he were going to wait for them to pass, and then continued in the path of the car.

60 Getting War Disability Pay Here Escaped Review of Cases When Clause in Bill Was Killed

Allowances to Former Officers Range From $71.25 to $250 a Month—147 in State Who Receive $250,000.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—When Representative A. L. Bulwinkle (Dem.), North Carolina, succeeded in striking out the entire World War Veterans section of the omnibus economy bill in the House, 60 former officers living in or near St. Louis who receive Government compensation escaped a reopening of their cases. If Bulwinkle's efforts had failed, all emergency officer compensation grants would have been reviewed, and it was the intention of the Special Economy Committee that the names of 3200 former officers should be removed from the compensation rolls at a saving of approximately $3,386,000 annually to the Government.

In Missouri there are 147 former officers who receive from the Government disability compensation ranging from $106.25 to $250 a month. The total payments annually amount to approximately $250,000. The payments were authorized by the Tyson-Fitzgerald Act of 1928.

In recommending that this act be revised, the Special Economy Committee said that when the Tyson-Fitzgerald bill was considered in Congress, the members generally believed that it would benefit only those officers who had become disabled in the line of duty.

"In the light of certain rulings, however, by the Attorney-General," the committee continued, "several thousands of ex-officers have been paid emergency officers' retirement pay although they had to rely on ....certain liberal presumptions provided for in the 1924 World War veterans' act. As a matter of fact, it is known that many of these officers either had their disabilities when they entered the service or acquired them subsequently, but under the conclusive presumptive provisions of the law, they are presumed to have acquired them in the service. Further, there are many officers who acquired their disabilities as the result of disease which arose in point of time with service, but which disease was not in any way brought on by any military or naval duty which they performed. This amendment will restrict the eligibility within reasonable limitations and at the same time is believed to be sufficiently liberal to protect the rights of those men whose disabilities are directly the result of the performance of duty in the active military or naval service."

The committee was trying to get at such grants as that of $187.50 monthly to William Wolff Smith, who also receives an annual salary of $9000 from the Government as an attorney in the Veterans' Bureau. Smith was commissioned in the Quartermaster Corps two months before the armistice and received his disability allowance for chronic bronchitis and hernia.

Records of St. Louisans who receive emergency officers' disability compensation do not disclose whether the disability was incurred in active service. Only one St. Louisan, Leon M. Ochs, University Club Building, receives a salary from the Veterans' Bureau in addition to his disability pay. Ochs is a Veterans' Bureau physician at $4800 annually and receives $125 a month disability compensation.

Of the 59 others, one receives $71.25, many are paid $106.25 and the remainder range upward to $250.

Will Leave Lakehurst at Sunrise and Head Towards Southwest.

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 7.—The navy dirigible Akron tomorrow at sunrise will start her flight to the Pacific Coast unless weather conditions are too unfavorable. The start is set for 4 a. m., Lieutenant-Commander Charles E. Rosendahl said today.

The ship, the route of which will depend on weather, will head southwest.

There will be 64 men in the crew, 14 officers in addition to Commander Rosendahl, and two naval officers as passengers.

Progress of the flight will be messaged twice daily to the Navy Department. On arrival, the Akron will report to the Admiral of the Pacific fleet.

The length of her stay is uncertain. Rosendahl will be relieved of his command by Commander Alger H. Dresel and report for sea duty, a measure necessary for his promotion. The smaller aircraft, Los Angeles, will start south on a training flight Monday.

Held Up by Two Men.

John Leslie of 529 North Sixth street, East St. Louis, reported to police that two Negroes, one carrying a revolver, held him up in the 600 block of North Third street in East St. Louis last night and took $18.

$8,000,000 CREDIT GRANTED TURKEY BY SOVIET RUSSIA

Moscow Makes Arrangement for Exchange of Goods Without Money Consideration.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, May 7.—A new economic alliance between Soviet Russia and Turkey, under which this country is extending an $8,000,000 long term credit to Turkey, was announced by Foreign Minister Tewfik Rushdi Bey of Turkey tonight.

The credit is the first ever granted by the Soviet Government, which until now has been a seeker instead of a giver of credit in the world market. It is based on an exchange of goods, without actual monetary payments.

Under the agreement, Soviet Russia will sell industrial tools, agricultural machines and fertilizers to Turkey, receiving as payment its choice of Turkey's natural resources, such as tobacco, wool, fruits and minerals.

The Turkish Foreign Minister was vague as to the exact length of the credit, but mentioned 15 years as the possible term. He did not disclose the interest rate or other details, explaining that the credit was negotiated by economic experts who accompanied Premier Ismet Pasha of Turkey on his good will visit to Russia and will remain to iron out details.

Rushdi Bey added that Soviet Russia had offered to grant a larger credit, but that Turkey had no need for more at this time. He indicated the agreement was in the nature of an experiment, which if successful, might lead to further arrangements along the same line.

By the Associated Press.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., May 7.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York told a delegation of Tennesseeans who motored here today with reports of growing sentiment for him in that State that "everything will be all right" after the Democratic national convention.

"Governor, the 24 votes of Tennessee are in your vest pocket," he was told by "Uncle Bob" Smith of Knoxville, head of the delegation. "The opposition that existed has disappeared. The movement for Newton D. Baker has collapsed. If you are not nominated, I'm going to Europe." "Oh, you'll not need to do that," the Governor responded. "Everthing will be all right."

POLICE BOARD REFUSES TO CUT MEN'S SALARIES

Holds 10 Pct. Reduction Would Upset Morale of Force, Endangering Public Safety.

GROUP AGREED TO TWO OTHER SLASHES

Action Against Lowering Pay Makes It Difficult to Eliminate City Deficit, Neun Says.

The Police Board refused yesterday to cut the pay of policemen. It held it had no authority to do so and that salary reductions would upset police morale, endangering public safety under present-day conditions.

The Aldermanic Ways and Means Committee had asked the board to take a third out in the police budget, this time for about $500,000, through a "voluntary" 10 per cent reduction of salaries.

Possibility of an arbitrary reduction of the appropriation may be considered by the committee tomorrow, although there has been no disposition to adopt this step among the Aldermen. Under State law the city must appropriate whatever is demanded by the State-controlled police. The law also fixes policemen's salaries. An arbitrary cut in the police budget might bring about a test suit.

President Neun of the Board of Aldermen said the Police Board's refusal would make it difficult, if not impossible, to prepare a municipal budget that will eliminate the city deficit during this fiscal year. The annual budget bill is before the Ways and Means Committee now, suffering an unusual delay in passage because of efforts to economize.

Chairman Neumann of the committee announced he would not hesitate to submit an unbalanced budget. He said such a step apparently was unavoidable.

Reductions Already Made.

The committee and the Police Board conferred last Friday about police salary reductions. No suggestion was made by the committee as to how to adjust salary accounts in absorbing the proposed 10 per cent cut. In a letter to the committee yesterday the board called attention to budget reductions it already had agreed to. Summarized, the police accounts are:

Original request by board this year	$5,244,400
Reduction made by board	209,500
Further reduction at city's request	150,000
Pending appropriation	5,094,400
Appropriation a year ago	5,452,900
Spent during last year	5,264,873
Margin of pending bill over salary needs ..	350,000

Declaring its intention to prac tice economy and live within it budget, the Police Board asserte that its allowance could not stan a further reduction "with safety. The statement continued:

"It has been suggested that thi board ask the police officers to ac cept a 'voluntary' reduction an that we use something more tha moral suasion to accomplish thi result. Such conduct on the par of this board could only result i dissatisfaction of the men and decrease in morale. Performanc of public duty would be bound t suffer such an event. Patrolmen here are paid $2160 a year. The board presented data showing that patrolmen in other large cities receive more.

Senator David Reed, Pennsylvania old guardsman, has agreed temporarily not to renew his mation for a general sales tax on the Senate floor, but if Democrats and Progressives succeed in raising the taxes on wealth Reed probably will counter with a proposal to substitute a sales tax. It is not believed possible that such a move would succeed.

After the measure is adopted by the Senate it must still be submitted to revision by a conference committee representing both houses of Congress. This will be no easy job, since there are certain to be major differences between the respective bills passed by the two bodies. Morevoer, House Democrats are in a particularly vengeful mood over President Hoover's criticisms, which they consider to have been directed especially at them.

A resolution authorizing a levy of 1 cent on each dollar of gross income for three years to bring in $1,000,000,000 in each calendar year beginning in 1932 was introduced in the House today by Representtaive Griffin (Dem.), New York.

Explaining the purpose of his measure, Griffin told the House: "The object of this bill is to do away with doctoring incomes by paid revenue experts many of whom learned all the wrinkles while working for Uncle Sam in the Treasury Department."

Senator Watson, Republican floor leader, said today he believed the new revenue bill would be a law within two weeks, but Senator Watson also predicted in 1930 that prosperity would return within 60 days after the Hawley-Smoot tariff act was signed.

FALL'S RELEASE FROM PRISON IS EXPECTED TOMORROW

SANTA FE, N. M., May 7.—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, is expected to be released from the State penitentiary here Monday upon receipt by Warden Swope of a court order sent by air mail from Washington today.

The 70-year-old convict No. 6991 completes tomorrow his Federal sentence of a year and a day imposed on his conviction of accepting a $100,000 bribe from E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, for leasing naval oil reserves during the Harding administration.

Officials in Washington today overcame an obstacle that threatened to keep Fall in prison another month, at least, when they obtained from the District of Columbia Supreme Court an amendment of his commitment papers.

With time off for good behavior, Fall served his sentence in 10 months. By serving 30 days more and taking a pauper's oath, he could wipe out the fine, which now stands as a judgment against him and may be collected by the Government when, and if, he gets the money.

KITTENS RESCUED FROM LEDGE

Two kittens were rescued from a ledge just above a pool of water at the bottom of an 80-foot quarry by officers of the Humane Society of Missouri yesterday.

Their rescuers, summoned to a quarry in the 6500 block of Manchester avenue by a man who discovered the kittens' plight, found them perched precariously on a small ledge. They attached a rope at the top of the quarry and descended cautiously, bringing the kittens to safety in their pockets. The officers, Herman Miller and William O'Shaughnessy, said they appeared to be nearly starved and evidently had been there several days.

SEARCHERS FAIL TO FIND $100,000 PAID TO MEANS

Department of Justice Agents Inspect Safety Deposit Boxes in Hunt for Mrs. McLean's Cash.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The elusive trail of the $100,000 paid Gaston B. Means to bring about the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby today led Department of Justice agents to safety deposit boxes in the nation's capital as a part of a far-flung investigation.

The Federal agents also attempted to untangle the many other ramifications of the melodramatic case, including whether the former Department of Justice investigator had any associates in his alleged attempt to defraud Mrs. Edward B. McLean of the money.

The estranged wife of the publisher of the Washington Post has charged she gave Means the huge sum on his representation that he could recover the child. When she became convinced her plan was fruitless, she reported to Department of Justice officials that Means refused to return the money.

Means Arranges for Bail.

Meanwhile, the portly ex-convict made plans for his release from the District of Columbia jail on $100,000 bond if the grand jury indicts him next Tuesday for larceny after trust. He has arranged for bail with a professional bondsman.

A possible hitch in his arrangements was indicated, however, by a statement from Leo A. Rover, United States District Attorney, who has his own ideas about freeing Means.

Rover told newspaper men he would not be concerned if the prisoner were released—"provided he makes the right kind of bond."

"That means four bondsmen," he added, "each responsible individually for the whole amount."

His bond was fixed at $100,000 by Needham Turnage, United States Commissioner, at a preliminary hearing last Thursday a few hours after his arrest.

Prisoner's Home Searched.

Means is confined in a cell with John Kendrick, charged with assault with intent to kill. He is spending his time reading newspapers and talking with other prisoners.

An ineffectual search was made yesterday of his home at Chevy Chase, just outside of Washington, but no trace of the money was found. It is understood similar investigations are to be made at Concord, N. C.; Aiken, S. C., and El Paso, Tex., where Means is supposed to have visited.

Officials expressed interest in word from El Paso that Means stopped at a hotel there in which a man resembling Harry Fleischer, fugitive member of the Detroit "Purple Gang," was seen. There was no indication, however, as to whether they considered it of any significance.

Only Two Bills of Lindbergh Ransom Money Reported.

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 7.—Significance was seen tonight by New Jersey State police in the fact that only two bills of the $50,000 paid by Col. Lindbergh to the kidnapers had been reported.

"The list of bills used in the ransom money has had a very wide distribution throughout the country, neighboring countries and Europe," said Col. Schwarzkopf in his last bulletin of the day, "and if any of these bills are recognized in any of these places they are to be immediately reported to the Treasury Department or to these headquarters. The fact that only two bills have been reported is significant."

He said no more, but it was supposed the police believed the recipients of the $50,000 had withheld the spending of the money after the widespread publication of the numbers of the bills.

ANN HARDING AND HUSBAND DIVORCED, PART WITH A KISS

Movie Star Frees Harry Bannister So He Can Re-Establish Own Career.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., May 7.—Ann Harding, stage and movie beauty, obtained a divorce here today from Harry Bannister to permit him, they said, to seek a new career for himself.

Still professing to love him, she went into divorce court and had their marriage dissolved by Judge Thomas Moran at a private hearing. She emerged with tear-stained face.

Assisted to an automobile by her husband's attorney, Morley Griswold, Lieutenant-Governor of Nevada, she went to the airport where she departed in her own plane for California.

Bannister did not remain in court to hear his wife's testimony, but was at the airport to bid her farewell. They parted with a kiss.

A "single reason" existed for their divorce, according to both Bannister and Miss Harding. Only through dissolution of their marriage could he escape, they said, from being overshadowed professionally by Miss Harding's stardom. Since Bannister and Miss Harding were married at New York in 1926 he has had only small parts while his wife has been starred.

P. S. CO. PROMISES MORE CARS ON PARK AND TAYLOR LINES

Improvement in Service to Follow Introduction of Renovated One-Man Trolleys.

Service on the Park and Taylor car lines will be increased in connection with the introduction today of renovated one-man trolleys on those routes, the Public Service Co. has announced.

There will be 15 per cent more service in rush hours on the Park line, with 1¾-minutes between cars, and 25 per cent more service the rest of the day, with a 4½-minute space. On the Taylor route service will be increased 23 per cent in rush hours, with a three-minute headway, and 20 per cent the rest of the day, with a six-minute space.

Eleven other trolley lines have been converted to one-man service during the last 18 months and 17 lines continue to have two-man cars. On the one-man routes, however, two-man trolleys are used to augment rush-hour service.

MISS ASTAIRE AT DUKE'S HOUSE

Rumor That Her Marriage Will Take Place Tomorrow.

EDENSOR, DERBYSHIRE, England, May 7.—Adele Astaire, American dancer, arrived with her fiance, Lord Charles Cavendish, and his parents, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, at Chatsworth house, the ducal seat, today and there were rumors that the marriage would take place Monday afternoon.

The party came from Lismore Castle, in County Waterford, Ireland, and this little village was agog tonight with gossiping about the approaching wedding. Neither the Duke's vicar, the Rev. Foster Pegg, nor the Duke's secretary, nor the family would talk, but the windows of the little chapel, where King Edward and the former German Kaiser worshipped on occasion, had been cleaned for the first time in many months. A notification was given the village organist that his services might be needed at any moment.

BUTLER ENDS LIFE AFTER WOUNDING WOMAN EMPLOYER

Shouting 'I'm Going Crazy,' Shoots Mrs. Boice, Show Horse Owner, and Groom Who Ran to Aid.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7.—Mrs. Dora Boice, owner of a string of show horses and former wife of Nelson B. Boice, was shot today by her Japanese butler, Isainu Yanashita, who also wounded a groom, then killed himself. The shooting occurred in the home of Mrs. Boice near the Souriand Hills. Mrs. Boice is expected to recover.

Mrs. Boice was awakened by the butler entering her room, an automatic pistol in his hand and his eyes inflamed.

"I'm going crazy," the butler said. "I'm going crazy and I'm going to kill everybody."

Mrs. Boice screamed, jumped out of bed and ran to the bathroom, screaming for help. Then, crouching on the bathroom floor, she telephoned for the State police. The shots which wounded Mrs. Boice were fired through the bathroom door.

Larry Daly, the groom, heard the shooting and was wounded in the cheek as he ran to his employer's assistance.

Mrs. Boice, the former Dora W. V. Scott of Orange, is 34 years old. With Mrs. R. L. Benson of Princeton she founded the Stony Brook Hunt here. She frequently showed Mrs. Benson's horses in Eastern horse shows.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. MEN TO VOTE TOMORROW ON STRIKE

The 3100 union platform men and maintenance employes of the Public Service Co. will vote tomorrow on a proposition to strike in resistance to a 10 per cent cut in wages, which the company proposes to put into effect June 1.

The men will cast secret ballots at Unity Hall, Grand and Page boulevards, beginning at 8 a. m. Polls will be open until 10 p. m. and the result will be known several hours later.

Union leaders say they anticipate a large majority in favor of a strike, which probably will be called at midnight May 20, the date of expiration of the present working agreement. According to union officers, the men, who accepted a 10 per cent wage cut last October after arbitration, are incensed, and only the withdrawal by the company of its notice of a pay cut will avert a strike.

85 Species of Birds Seen By Club on Country Trip

St. Louis Organization Finds Great Variety on Annual Tramp in Creve Coeur Lake Region.

The chanting "teacher-teacher-teacher" of the golden-crowned oven-bird, the ringing "kill-deer" of the white collared killdeer plover, the shrill rattle of the stocky and quarrelsome belted kingfisher, and the hoarse "yank-yank" of the diminutive white-breasted nuthatch, acrobat of birdom, were heard by 25 members of the St. Louis Bird Club, who made the annual spring "bird walk" in the Creve Coeur Lake region.

Compilation of the notes of the leaders of the several groups, announced yesterday, shows that 85 species of birds were observed during the field trip Saturday, April 30.

Outstanding feature of the day was the observance of two blue-gray Gnatcatchers, known as the most dainty and exquisite of bird architects, constructing a nest high up in a tree. They were busy with one of their deep cup-shaped structures composed of strips of soft bark, thistledown and the like, stuccoed with lichens and spider webs. True to form, they were decidedly active and industrious, even to the point of exhibiting nervous twitchings of the whole body as they worked on the nest or left off to search crevices in the tree bark for insects and larvae.

Cliff Dweller Homes.

Some Baltimore orioles, with coats of jet black and flame scarlet, aroused admiration but failed to draw the interest that drab bank swallows, clothed in grayish brown, did with their cliff dweller homes in a clay bank. Their doors were horizontally elliptical and although the passageways were not torn open it is said that they extend from one to eight feet, with two feet the average distance to the end of the burrow—a slight affair of feathers and dried grass.

The cow bird, with whom ornithologists say no self-respecting bird will associate, was seen in large numbers. Maternal instinct, supposed to be one of the most strongly developed bird traits, means nothing to the female cow bird for she lays her egg in any vacant nest and flies away. Ninety species, most of them smaller than the cow bird, are victimized by this renegade. The cow bird's egg, usually larger than those of the owners of the nest, receives more heat from the body of the incubating bird, and hatches before the others. The youngster takes up so much more room and receives so much more nourishment that it not infrequently happens the other young are crowded out or starved to death.

Catbirds were observed giving their usual crude imitations of other birds. The trustful phoebe, which builds nests under bridges and often in sight of constantly passing persons, was heard contentedly singing its humble and hopelessly tuneless notes. Goldfinches, mistakenly called wild canaries, gave their monotonous "cheep-cheep." The exceedingly irritable crested flycatcher, with its shrill notes, and the humble least flycatcher, were seen by most of the observers. A few rosebreasted and blue brosbeaks, brightly colored but slightly disfigured by unusually large and thick bills, were reported.

15 Species of Warblers.

Observance of 15 species of warblers indicated the migration of that family from the Gulf States was at its height. Those observed were the warbling vireo, yellow-throated vireo, prothonotary warbler, Nashville, yellow, myrtle, magnolia, black joll, black-throated green, pine, palm, oven-bird, Kentucky, prairie and Tennessee.

Water fowl were scarce, the only one reported being the green heron, pectoral sandpiper and Louisiana water-thrush.

The scope of the Bird Club is to be greatly enlarged, said Robert L. Hobbs, president, with one of its features being publication of yearbook. This book, which will contain accounts of all bird walks, photographs of bird life taken by members, special articles on ornithology, and a summary of the club's activities, will be placed in all schools and also be for sale at a cost sufficient to cover expense of publication.

A bulletin will be published each month and exchanges made with bird clubs over the United States. Radio talks will be made regularly, stressing the importance of feeding birds when snow covers the ground, telling how to get birds to rest around homes, asking farmers to kill only those few hawks and owls that are actually destructive, and seeking to arouse more general interest in birds.

At the next session of the State Legislature an effort will be made to obtain a modification of the hawk and owl bounty law, which, according to Hobbs, at present permits collecting 50 cents a head on many owls and hawks that are non-destructive. Attempts will be made to have bird sanctuaries established at all golf clubs and cemeteries.

THINKS HADEN CLARKE WAS BEATEN ON HEAD

Mother, Discrediting Suicide Story of Aviatrix and Partner, Seeks Autopsy.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., May 7.—An autopsy on the body of Haden Clarke in the belief that he was slain in the home of his fiancee, Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, was asked by his mother today as State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne investigated a reputed leak in evidence against Capt W. N. Lancaster. Lancaster, flying partner of the Australian aviatrix for five years, is in jail here on a charge of murdering Clarke.

Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke, professor of journalism at the University of Miami, said a report of her family physician, Dr. Carleton Deederer, led her to believe her son was beaten on the head before he was shot in the temple. The physician's account of finding a fracture at the base of the skull and bumps on the head led her to discredit statements of Capt. Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller that Clarke committed suicide.

Six newspaper men were called before the Dade County grand jury in Hawthorne's investigation of the manner in which Lancaster's diaries were secured for publication by a number of newspapers. The diaries were presented to the grand jury as part of the evidence and have been under the State Attorney's lock and key since the killing. The reporters were in the grand jury room two hours but nothing they said was made public and Hawthorne made no comment after the examinations.

Mrs. Clarke's expression of a desire for an autopsy was made informally and no formal request had reached Hawthorne today. He was advised of her statement and replied "If there is sufficient reason for disinterring the body, I certainly shall order it done. I want to learn Mrs. Clarke's reason for such action, however."

LEGATION AID DROPPED

Christian Gross Absent From Post Many Months.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Christian Gross of Chicago, second secretary of the American Legation at Ottawa, who has been absent from his post without leave for many months, has been dropped from the diplomatic service. He was granted leave in November, 1931, to go to Chicago, his home, to be present at a court case in which he was judged the father of the youngest child of his former wife and that the child could participate in a $1,000,000 trust fund of which he was executor.

His wife was formerly Virginia Harrison, daughter of the one-time Governor-General of the Philippines. The child was born after the divorce.

SAYS ECONOMY BILL ONLY SCRATCHES TOP

Letters and telegrams of protest, regarding the failure of the national House to frame an effective economy measure, have been sent to St. Louis and Missouri Congressmen by a number of St. Louis business houses, at the request of the Chamber of Commerce, Associated Industries and other business bodies.

Not only the St. Louis representatives, but those from all Missouri districts, must seek the support of St. Louis voters in this year's primary and election, when 13 Missouri Congressmen will be elected at large. Hence, some of the firms have sent their protests to all the members of the Missouri delegation.

Duplicates of some of the messages were sent to the business organizations. Quotations from a few of the messages, made public by the Chamber of Commerce, are:

"We are noting with the greatest interest how each of the men representing us in Congress is voting on the different bills, with the firm intention of doing everything in our power to prevent any man who does not have the interests of the taxpayer at heart from being re-elected."

"Even as originally proposed, the economy measures do not even scratch the surface of possible reductions in expenditures."

"I feel that unless some statesmanship is shown and unless Congress does something to reduce the expenses of government, the only solution is an entirely new deal."

"Congressmen should take a week off and come home and find out what the public (excepting government employes and relatives) thinks of government economy.

"To be brutally frank, we think that any Senator or Congressman who lends himself to continuation of the ruthless expenditure of government money will be a marked man in the future."

Mrs. Grund, who was 83 years old, died Friday night of infirmities of age at Midland Hospital. Surviving are four children, Mrs. Charles E. Rose, Mrs. Bertha Anslinger, and Edward Grund of St. Louis, and Val J. Grund of Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Grund, a Civil War veteran, died 30 years ago.

Says "Technique of Living" Helps Combat Depression

Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth of Hoover Unepmloyment Commission Discusses Lessons Learned From Her Work.

A few "techniques of living" which have sustained their masters through current economic stress were discussed at a Town Club luncheon yesterday by Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J., the only woman member of President Hoover's Employment Commission.

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
DR. LILLIAN M. GILBRETH.

Dr. Gilbreth—she is a doctor of both philosophy and engineering—is a psychologist, an industrial engineer, the author of several books and the mother of 11 children. She spoke at a dinner of the Society of Industrial Engineers last night at the Melbourne Hotel.

Work and leisure must be studied together, she said in her Town Club address, since the sort of leisure desirable depends on the nature of one's work. Time and energy, she said, should be budgeted along with money, since expenditures of one affect the other two.

The Employment Commission has found in the year and a half since it was appointed, she remarked, that persons with a philosophy of life "are getting along very well no matter what happens to them." Certain techniques of living were found to be tremendously useful.

"One of those techniques is that of keeping adequate physically," she continued. "All along we have found that women who have not kept up their physical technique could not make the swing from one sort of work to another. It is rather an indictment on our type of training, is it not, if a woman in the 'white collar' groups cannot swing through another sort of work? I believe it is a challenge to our work activity and especially to our use of leisure.

"It is a tremendous asset, also, to keep mentally alert. We all know that education is a great asset if along with it we keep mentally alert. If not, one is in the same position as the person who has not maintained physical technique. When one line of opportunity is closing, and another seems to be opening up, she just cannot shift.

"Another technique is that of keeping the emotions controlled, serene. I sort of think that's the most important one."

Passing on to describe the "wise spending" campaign and the organized effort of retailers to determine just what housewives want in both goods and service—and what services are most efficiently and least wastefully used—she returned later in the address to add a "sartorial" technique to her list for efficient living.

"It deserves mention with the other techniques not because it is so important in its effect on others," she explained, "but because it is tremendously important so far as one's feelings toward oneself is concerned."

BERRY IMPLIES WALKER WAS AWARE OF GRAFT

New York Comptroller in Open Break With Mayor Over Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—A terse statement implying that Mayor Walker had tolerated graft and corruption was made today by Comptroller Charles W. Berry. It marked apparently an open break between the two city officials who for months have been anything but in agreement.

The statement, in reply to one in which the Mayor accused the Comptroller of conspiring with those "enemies of the public"—the Hofstadter Investigating Committee—was interpreted by some political writers as an indication that Berry would attempt to lead a faction of New York City Democrats away from the regular organization.

Berry, regarded as an Al Smith member of the present city administration, as opposed to the old line Tammany forces Walker represents, said:

"I am a Democrat and have been in the service of the Democratic party for nearly 40 years, and I assert that the loyal, honest Democrats in this city do not believe that graft and corruption are assets of their party, or that those who oppose such things in our Government are in any sense public enemies.

"I believe anyone who calls himself a Democrat, and who tolerates such contemptible practices as have been described on the front pages of the daily newspapers for weeks past does not truly represent the Democrats of the City of New York, and let me add that the rank and file of the Democratic organization in the five boroughs resents this condition of affairs just as emphatically as I do."

Mayor Walker's attack on Berry was made yesterday at a Board of Estimate hearing on Queens bus franchises. Deputy Comptroller Prial, examining one of the advocates of certain companies, was interrupted by the Mayor and retorted: "I want these proposed franchises cleared up now. I don't want to be invited to the State building five years from now to explain why they were granted."

"You won't have to wait five years," the Mayor replied. "You'll be breaking in to testify if you follow the precedent heretofore established. You belong out there in the gallery. This attitude almost indicates a rehearsal beforehand with those enemies of the public who have made vituperative and false statements about this Board of Estimate and its members."

The statement was generally interpreted as referring to Berry's taking the stand and testifying concerning equitable bus franchises five years ago.

Dr. Herty Gets Chemistry Medal for Discovering New Way to Cut Turpentine Trees.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7. — Dr. Charles H. Herty, who turned the mistake of a left-handed Negro into $10,000,000-a-year revenue for the turpentine industry, received the medal of the American Institute of Chemists tonight.

The Negro figured in it by picking up a right-handed ax to gash some pine trees under Dr. Herty's observation. The mistake produced a cut slightly different from the one intended, and in this small difference Dr. Herty discovered a method to make pine trees yield more turpentine.

When he told the story to a trade convention, Dr. Herty was laughed at, but in little more than a year the operators had added $10,000,000 worth of turpentine to their production by following Dr. Herty's tip.

In awarding the medal, Dr. Frederick E. Breithut credited Dr. Herty with improvements in producing turpentine which "have added more than $10,000,000 annually to the South."

Dr. Herty now conducts an experimental plant at Savannah, Ga., to show that newsprint and fine grades of white paper can be manufactured from Southern pines, heretofore considered worthless for any except the cruder grades.

WINTER PUTS IN HIS BID FOR WET SUPPORT IN CITY

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

Lieutenant-Governor Edward H. Winter issued his bid yesterday for support of the 100 per cent wet St. Louis Republican City Committeemen of his candidacy for the nomination for Governor.

He went a short step farther toward the wet side than did his opponent, Secretary of State Becker, in his recent pronouncement, but still not far enough to antagonize any of his dry supporters.

Winter favored "resubmission" as his personal position on the plan recently recommended by the Republican State convention, while Becker, without stating a personal position, said he was bound by the action of the convention.

Maneuvering for St. Louis Support.

For two months Winter and Becker have been maneuvering to obtain the St. Louis organization support.

Becker, with the disadvantage of a long record as dry-voting legislator, picked William Sacks, member of the Republican State Committee, and, if there is such a thing as degrees of wetness among St. Louis politicians, the wettest of all the wets, to conduct the negotiations in his behalf. Sacks obtained definite pledges of support from four or five of the committeemen, but Becker's dry record held most of the committeemen aloof.

Winter, without anything exact in the form of an official record on wet and dry legislation, had the advantage in that the Koeln faction did not like Becker as a candidate and, with others on the committee, looked on Becker as a candidate who would be weak in the general election if nominated. The decision of the Koeln group was to support Winter, but that left many committeemen uncommitted.

Winter's Statement Long Delayed.

In numerous conferences before and after Winter's formal announcement of candidacy, Koeln insisted the Lieutenant-Governor should issue a wet statement. Winter promised, but delayed and deferred. At one time Koeln forces began to negotiate with others who might be induced to enter the race.

Dr. James Stewart, State Health Commissioner, was considered. But Stewart was not available, having given his word to support Winter. Next they approached Supreme Judge Berryman Henwood. But the jurist could see no favorable signs for Republican success in Missouri this year, and politely declined the honor. Then the Koeln politicians decided to stay with Winter, their decision being contingent on Winter's taking a position on prohibition which at least would give the leaders among his St. Louis supporters a talking point for him with their followers.

While Winter had under consideration the exact form his statement of position, the Republican State Convention met in St. Louis and adopted a platform plank advocating the calling by Congress of a convention to consider "the whole subject" of prohibition with a view to its resubmission to the states.

Becker's Statement of Stand.

This helped the candidates a lot, making the way easier. While Winter was still considering, Becker came forward with a statement of his position. He stated no personal opinion. He said that both wets and drys had denounced the platform plank as an evasion, and he took refuge in party loyalty, asserting that "as Republicans we are bound by that expression until the regular platform convention in September gives us a final plank."

There were a considerable number of additional words in Becker's statement, but nothing of a position, except that if elected Governor he would not exercise the veto power if the Legislature should vote ratification of repeal of the eighteenth amendment in case it should be submitted to the states.

Winter yesterday directed attention to the fact that a Governor has no power to veto ratification of an amendment to the Federal Constitution, or to veto a memorial to Congress asking it to call a convention to submit amendments.

"As a candidate for Governor," Winter said, "I might well take the position that the office is entirely divorced from the prohibition question, and that I should concern myself solely with problems of State economics and administration. The Governor has no more to do with the question of modifying the Volstead law or repealing the eighteenth amendment than he has with matters of religion."

He recognized, however, that the subject of prohibition was one of absorbing interest to the people, and that its consideration was taking precedence over other important governmental questions, and that it should be faced and settled.

Gist of Winter's Position.

After some further preliminary discussion, he said:

"I favor an immediate action by Congress for submission of this question as prescribed by the Constitution, and favor the convention plan of submission, as proposed by the Republican State convention, as this will give a deliberative body an opportunity to study the question and to submit a proposition the convention may deem an improvement over present conditions."

Thus Becker stands squarely with the Republican State convention, and Winter stands squarely with the Republican State convention. The difference between them is that Becker avoided expressing the opinion that he believed the convention action proper, while Winter adopted the convention plank as an expression of his own position.

But the voters remain in the dark as to whether either Becker or Winter favors the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. With true candidatorial finesse each has put himself in the position that the wets can say that he favors resubmission and so "is with us," and the drys can say that he only said he favored resubmission, "to which we have no objection, so he's with us."

What the Records Show.

Republican voters in their dilemma can only turn to the records.

The Journal of the Missouri Legislature, as has been told in the Post-Dispatch, shows that when a member of the House of Representatives during three sessions Becker consistently voted for the dry measures sponsored by the Anti-Saloon League and the W. C. T. U. He cast more than a dozen dry votes and no wet vote.

Winter, as a member of the Legislature three sessions, has virtually no record on dry bills. The Journal records him absent on all roll calls taken on the passage of such bills. In fact, the only dry bill of importance that reached a vote during Winter's three terms was the celebrated McCawley bone-dry law. And Winter was absent.

But an absence counts the same as a negative vote because 76 aye votes are necessary to pass a bill. So, as far as wet St. Louis is concerned, the Lieutenant-Governor as a candidate has a little the edge on the Secretary of State as a candidate, while out in the supposedly arid rural sections they are both looked on as drys.

Injured in Fall in Home.

Carl Schoen, a druggist of 5401 Gravois avenue, suffered a skull injury early yesterday in a fall down the stairs at his home. Relatives found him at the foot of the stairs and took him to City Hospital.

MANY QUARTERS NOT DATED

Attention directed again to the fact that many 25-cent pieces of the Liberty coinage bear no dates, prompted the Secret Service bureau here to explain that many were minted that way, while the dates have been worn from others. The fact that a quarter has no date does not mean necessarily that it is counterfeit.

Many quarters were minted at San Francisco without dates, and thousands of others were stamped with dates in raised figures, which speedily wore off. Quarters minted at Washington have depressed dates, which wear better under handling and normally are discernible after several years of circulation.

ANTI-SMOKE WORK TO GO ON

The Executive Committee of the Citizens' Smoke Abatement League has decided to continue the organization.

Mrs. Marion C. Blossom, chairman of the Executive Committee, said the funds obtained during the two weeks' campaign for membership, which closed yesterday, will enable the league to continue for some time. The total amount of money obtained during the drive was not announced, pending a check-up.

DROPS SUIT, SAYS SHE DIDN'T AUTHORIZE IT

Mrs. Gertrude Schuette Differs With Attorney and Witness on What Took Place.

Dismissing a $10,000 personal injury suit in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday, Mrs. Gertrude Schuette, 4537 Adelaide avenue, charged that it was filed by two attorneys, Everett Hullverson and Adam Henry Jones, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, without her authorization.

The suit was one of three filed against Alex Moretta, 5532 Clayton avenue. The other plaintiffs, also represented by Jones and Hullverson, were Mrs. Augusta Schien, 4122 Grove avenue, sister of Mrs. Schuette, and Mrs. A. Flachs, daughter of Mrs. Schien.

Jones said yesterday that he and Hullverson were called into the case by a son of Mrs. Schien, who summoned him to the Schien home on Grove avenue. Mrs. Schuette was there when he called, he said, and asked him to represent her also.

Mrs. Flachs told a Post-Dispatch reporter that this was a correct report. Mrs. Flachs said she was present and heard Mrs. Schuette's invitation to Jones to become her lawyer.

The suits of Mrs. Schien and Mrs. Flachs are still on the docket. Mrs. Schuette's attorney, in dismissing her suit, was George A. Hodgman, lawyer for the Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York.

The three suits carry the allegation that the plaintiffs were injured in a collision between a motor car in which they were riding and an automobile driven by Moretta, on March 12 last. In her stipulation of dismissal, Mrs. Schuette declared she suffered no injuries in an accident on that date. Jones told reporters that a clerical error was responsible for an incorrect date in the petitions, and that the accident really occurred April 12.

'NATIONAL HEARING WEEK' OPENS TODAY WITH ADDRESS

Dr. Francis Reder to Speak at League Meeting at 3817 Olive Street.

Dr. Francis Reder, president of the St. Louis Medical Society, will address a public meeting of the St. Louis League for the Hard of Hearing at 3817 Olive street at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. The program will observe "national hearing week," which is devoted to the consideration of the problems of deafness and partial deafness.

Music appropriate to Mother's day will be on the program and there will be refreshments. The Rev. John S. Bunting, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, will speak before the league's Bible class at the same place at 6:30 o'clock this evening.

The league will give free instructions in lip reading this summer. The classes will be held on Thursday evenings, starting May 26 at 3817 Olive street.

CLAIMS TO DATE FOR HOOVER AND FOR ROOSEVELT

President's Backers Say He Has 818 Votes, 409 of Them Pledged, With 578 Needed to Nominate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Hoover's criticism of the Democratic House for its failure to date to balance the budget and Speaker Garner's primary victory in California stirred up presidential politics this week.

President Hoover struck with unexpected force in his message to Congress. Placed on the defensive, Democratic leaders replied in kind in both Houses.

The victory of Garner in California came as a blow to those hoping to nominate Franklin D. Roosevelt on the first ballot, although they are still hopeful of that.

Primaries and conventions continue to swell the total delegates pledged and claimed for President Hoover's renomination. Washington State gave him 19 and Utah 11 more today to bring his convention vote to 818, including 359 claimed, with only 578 needed to nominate. A total of 841 Republican delegates have been chosen to date, with 313 to come.

Democratic Lineup.

With 770 or two-thirds required to nominate a Democratic candidate, the lineup tonight stood as follows:

Roosevelt: Instructed, pledged and claimed, 333; Lewis, pledged, 58; Smith pledged, 46; Garner pledged, 44; Reed instructed, 36; Murray instructed and pledged, 23; in doubt, 168; total, 708.

Roosevelt's managers still assert he will go into the convention with more than 600 votes, despite California. While spokesmen like James A. Farley of New York, in reiterating that claim, do not specify where they expect the additional votes to come from, the prediction obviously must be based upon their expectation that various favorite sons will retire from the field and switch their delegations to the New Yorker before the first ballot is tabulated.

Roosevelt Possibilities.

As an illustration, the Roosevelt spokesmen both in New York and Washington regard as significant the declaration of Senator Long of Louisiana that he would use his influence to throw the 20 from that State, heretofore regarded doubtful, into the Roosevelt column.

They also note that the expected instruction of the Ohio delegation of 52, to be named in next Tuesday's primary, involves only a nonbinding obligation to support Gov. George White as a favorite son for four ballots.

A pronounced Roosevelt drift on the first ballot, to supplement his predicted strength of 623, it is argued, might influence strongly the action of the Ohio delegation and Gov. White himself.

Still another favorite son block upon which the Rooseveltians are known to be turning expectant eyes is former Senator Reed's 36 from Missouri. There have been intimations for some weeks that a Roosevelt - Reed rapprochement might have been effected.

The reaction of Senator Lewis, Illinois' favorite son, with 58 votes, to the California primary result is still another factor in the situation. Lewis regarded that vote as perhaps pointing toward a Roosevelt-Garner ticket which implies that the Illinois Senator does not expect to participate in any long drawn-out deadlock over the nomination.

Third Party Talk.

Another development of the week just ended that aroused speculation was the declaration by Senator Norris, Nebraska's Republican insurgent, that he would bolt Hoover again this fall and support Roosevelt should the latter be nominated at Chicago.

Third party talk was revived following Norris' statement that a progressive of Roosevelt's caliber in the White House would be the only hope for the country. Without Roosevelt or some other Democratic candidate of his type as an opponent of Hoover, the speculation is that a third party ticket likely will be placed in the field as in 1924. Norris, Borah, Johnson, La Follette and Pinchot are names that have been mentioned heretofore in this connection.

Tammany Said to Be Seeking to Make Alliance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Tammany Hall which has not indicated its choice for the Democratic presidential nomination, is seeking alliances with which to give it a powerful voice in selecting the party nominee.

Attempts have been made to line up Illinois and New Jersey Democrats through agreements with Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

It is known that at Tammany Hall there has been much discussion recently about the availability of Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker, while in New Jersey Mayor Hague is represented as favoring Alfred E. Smith or Owen D. Young. Young and Traylor, along with Newton D. Baker, are considered here the most likely "dark horses."

The convention strength of New York, New Jersey and Illinois is 184 votes. Curry and McCoey expect, through the aid of Albany and Troy leaders, to control a majority of New York's 94 uninstructed delegates.

James A. Farley, field marshal of the Roosevelt forces, said he expected the Governor to pick up 28 more votes early next week. He received a telegram from Fred W. Johnson of Wyoming, who organized the Rocky Mountain district for Smith in 1928, which stated three-quarters of the delegates to Wyoming's Democratic convention next Monday had been instructed by their counties for Roosevelt and that Wyoming's six national convention votes were assured for the New York Governor. Farley is also counting on the six delegates to be selected at Arizona's convention the same day and the 16 to be elected at West Virginia's primary next Tuesday.

$1,063,952 SPENT BY CATHOLIC CHARITIES

The Catholic Charities of St. Louis during 1931 spent $1,063,952 for the relief of the sick and needy according to the report prepared for distribution at the annual entertainment to be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Odeon.

The 41 agencies spent $65,206 more than the previous year, but expenditures of St. Vincent de Paul Society, the principal family relief agency, jumped from $116,447 to $205,509.

The Rev. John J. Butler, executive secretary of St. Vincent de Paul Society, said practically all of the agencies carried increased burdens, but were able to do so with less money because of lower cost. His report estimates that the services of 220 members of religious orders would have required an expenditures of an additional $148,861 had they been paid salaries.

The greatest expenditure of any group was that of the 10 hospitals, which gave 109,116 days of free care at a cost of $425,767.

The relief agencies were next, with St. Vincent de Paul Society accounting for the bulk of their expenditure of $226,064. It aided an average of 12,926 persons a month. Others in this group were the Catholic Women's Association, the Catholic Women's League, Ladies of Charity, the Cheer Club and the Queen's Daughters.

Fourteen institutions furnishing permanent homes for children and the aged spent $361,194 and had an average of 2135 residents a month. This group included the Convent of the Good Shepherd, Father Dunne's Home, and the orphan asylums.

Eight institutions such as Father Dempsey's Hotels, and the Catholic Outing Home spent $50,925. Institutions in this group aid the poor at their headquarters or in their own homes, but offer no permanent home.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION IN KILLING BY ROBBER

Court Awards $3000 to Mother of Man Slain Defending Employer's Property.

Mrs. Ida Sweeny of 3609 Cass avenue is entitled to a $3000 award under the workmen's compensation act for the death of her son, Clarence A. Sweeny, who was killed by a robber March 9, 1930, in his father's tire store at 1501 North Grand boulevard. The young man was an employe of his father, who carried industrial insurance. The insuring concern contended it was not liable, because he assumed a risk outside the scope of his duty when he resisted the robbers. The St. Louis Court of Appeals yesterday upheld Circuit Judge Rosskopf in deciding against the insurance concern.

"When peril to his employer's property presented itself," the Court of Appeals said, "the deceased in offering resistance to armed robbers was acting within the legitimate scope of his employment, none the less than if he had been protecting the property against loss from any other cause." Mrs. Sweeny qualified as a dependent on her son, from the fact that he was paying her $15 a week board.

SOUTH SIDE G. O. P. WOMEN IN DISPUTE OVER CLUB'S NAME

Old Organization Seeks Injunction to Prevent Incorporation of New One.

A petition was filed in Circuit Judge Hall's court yesterday by the South Side Republican Women's Club objecting to the application of the New South Side Women's Republican Organization for a pro forma decree of incorporation. The application was filed May 3, signed by Mrs. Anna K. Holthaus, president; Mrs. Marie L. Roberts, secretary, and Mrs. Gail McFarland, treasurer. The matter has been referred to Attorney Fred Weissmann, Republican committeeman of the Fifth Ward, who was appointed by Judge Hall to investigate the dispute, in which an injunction is sought.

The objectors say they are not opposed to the formation of the rival club, but they object to its bearing a name so similar as to cause confusion. Mrs. Holthaus was formerly vice president of the protesting organization, which obtained a pro forma decree of incorporation in 1929. She withdrew from the club and formed the new one two weeks ago and it now embraces a membership of more than 100, it was said.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., May 7.—Charles Barkett caught a Negro shoplifting in his store and as they grappled the latter drew a knife.

Before the Negro could strike, however, Sammy Barkett, 10 years old, drew a pistol from beneath a counter and shot him in the neck. Doctors said he probably would die.

Body Taken From River.

The body of an elderly man, clad in a sweater and trousers, was recovered from the Mississippi River near East Carondelet yesterday afternoon. It was taken to the Kurrus funeral establishment, 2525 State street, East St. Louis. Fishermen who discovered the body said they believed it to be that of a fisherman, whose name they did not know, whose boat overturned in the river last January. The man had a light mustache.

RECEIVERSHIP SOUGHT FOR MISSOURI ORE CO.

Execution on $23,750 Damage Suit Judgment Against Company Stayed by Order.

Suit for a receiver was filed in Federal Court yesterday against the Missouri Ore Co., formerly the Iron Mountain Co., to determine whether the holders of $500,000 in bonds have a prior lien over that of a former employe with a judgment for personal injuries. The company operates in St. Francois County.

The receivership suit was filed by the Union Trust Co., and the M. A. Hanna Co., both of Cleveland, which obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent execution tomorrow of a $23,750 judgment in favor of William Holley, the former employe. The restraining order, signed by Federal Judge Faris, is returnable next Saturday.

According to the petition, Holley obtained the judgment in the Circuit Court of St. Francois County. The Missouri Ore Co., appealed, furnishing bond through the Southern Surety Co. The suit states that the Southern Surety Co. is in receivership, and the Missouri Ore Co. is unable to furnish security for a new bond ordered by the State Supreme Court. The petition points out hat, should C. O. Inman, to whom Holley assigned his claim, execute judgment, the property would be seized, making it difficult for the Federal Court to enjoin the order of the Circuit Court.

The Hanna company bases its claim on an advance of $500,000 to the Missouri Ore Co., beginning in 1927, to remove a mortgage and supply money for investment. The company accepted 6 per ent bonds of the Missouri Ore Co., placing them with the Union Trust Co. as trustee. The petition alleges that the bonds are in default and that the Missouri Ore Co. is insolvent.

ARLINGTON BURIAL FOR GEN. CROWDER, WHO IS DEAD AT 73

Services Tomorrow Morning in Washington for Author of Draft System in the World War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—A long illness, accompanied by a gradual weakening of resistance and aggravated by an attack of pneumonia, resulted in the death today of Major-General Enoch Crowder, soldier-diplomat.

His death at 73 at Walter Reed Hospital ended a brilliant military career, interspersed with one of diplomacy. He was the first American Ambassador to Cuba.

Ore sister, Miss Nell Crowder, was with him when he died. Another, Mrs. A. P. Duvall, lives in Louisville, Ky.

The funeral will be held in the chapel at Walter Reed Hospital at 10 a. m. Monday with interment, accompanied by full military honors, in Arlington National Cemetery.

Crowder was one of the most noted military lawyers in the country and at one time was Judge Advocate-General of the Army, retiring from that post in 1923 after 12 years' service to become Cuban Ambassador. He resigned from that post four years later because of illness.

One of his outstanding acts as a military man was the formulation and supervision of the system of selective draft in the World War which sent to France millions of American soldiers. As a diplomat he was active in reorganizing the Government of Cuba after that nation's fight for liberty.

The General was taken to Walter Reed Hospital from Cuba two months ago after another of a series of breakdowns from which he had suffered in the last five years. The development of pneumonia made the fight for life an almost impossible one.

Gen. Crowder, Born in Missouri, Took Law Degree at State U.

GEN. CROWDER was graduated from West Point in 1881 and for a time served as instructor in military science in the University of Missouri. While at the university he studied law and received a degree in 1886.

Gen. Crowder's bent for military law turned him toward the judicial aspects of the army and within 10 years after his graduation from West Point he was assigned as acting judge advocate of the department of the Platte with headquarters at Omaha. Thus began more than 30 years' service in the judge advocate general's department.

In the Spanish-American War he was Judge Advocate of the Fourth Army Corps and later, in the Philippines, for the Eighth Army Corps. For a time he was Associate Justice of the Islands' Supreme Court.

In 1904 he was detached to serve as an observer for the United States with Japanese forces in the Russo-Japanese conflict. He witnessed the siege of Port Arthur, was present at the battle of the Yalu and saw much of the final struggle along the Mukden line.

Called back to the Atlantic division to become chief of staff in 1906 Crowder was transferred to Cuba, where he supervised the Department of State and Justice under the provisional government headed by Governor-General Wood.

Ambassador to Cuba.

After an absence of nearly three years, Crowder returned to the Judge Advocate General's office. He was made chief of this department in 1911 and retained the title until he retired in 1923 to become the first United States Ambassador to Cuba. He resigned four years later because of ill health.

When the World War broke out he formulated the selective service act under which the national army was raised and was made Provost Marshal-General.

He personally directed the drawings of the numbers which decided when the manhood of the country would be called upon to fight.

Returning to his duties as Judge Advocate General after demobilization, Crowder was summoned by President Wilson to go to Cuba to assist the Government in clearing up the confusion into which the election laws had fallen. This special service was continued by President Harding.

When his diplomatic and army service—covering nearly half a century was done—Crowder opened a law office in Chicago. As a counsel for Cuban business interests, he was drawn into the limelight again in 1930 with implications declared unjust by both American and Cuban authorities.

A Senate committee investigating lobbying activities in connection with the tariff obtained testimony from one witness implying that Gen. Crowder had given to a Cuban information that the Army General Staff planned to abandon the traffic lane from the Philippines to the mainland. Secretary of War Hurley wrote a letter exonerating Crowder of the charge of betraying confidential information.

The General went back to his Chicago office, but soon afterward he shut up shop. He was suffering from a physical disability which had necessitated two operations, but to which he rarely referred. Late in the summer of 1931 he was seriously ill in Colorado.

For his services in the World War Gen. Crowder received the Distinguished Service Medal, France made him a commander of the Legion of Honor, and Great Britain created him a Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George.

Gen. Crowder Among Missourians of High Rank in War.

Gen. Crowder was one of three Missourians distinguished by high rank in the World War. Gen. Pershing, Commander in Chief of the American Army, was born at Laclede in Linn County. Admiral Robert E. Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations during the war, is a native of Hannibal. All were retired after the war, when they reached the statutory age of 64. Gen. Pershing is 71, Admiral Coontz 67.

GEN. RAUPP WANTS PROMOTION DEFERRED

Says He Wants to Attend One More Encampment at Nevada, Mo.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 7.—An agreement by the Governors of Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska to recommend Brigadier-General W. A. Raupp of Pierce City, Mo., for promotion to Major-General to command the Thirty-fifth Division, which broke a deadlock existing for more than 10 years, has encountered an obstacle in a request by Raupp that action be deferred until after Sept. 1.

Gov. Caulfield said Raupp's move for delay would result in recommendation of Brigadier-General Charles I. Martin of Wichita, Kan., to the War Department for the post. Martin is next in line under the Governors' agreement.

Reorganization of the National Guard division following the war as a part of the Seventh Corps took place late in 1920, but the division has been without a commander or divisional staff since that time.

Raupp, at his home in Pierce City, said his request that the appointment be deferred was purely from sentimental reasons, as he desired to attend one or more National Guard encampment at Nevada, Mo. at his present rank before taking over the major duties of organizing the Thirty-fifth Division. Raupp has attended the annual encampments since he joined the service 45 years ago. The encampment this year will be in August.

Raupp said he believes that even though the War Department denied his request for a delay in the appointment that he would be permitted to attend the encampment.

"I want to accept the appointment," he said, "and do as much as possible toward organizing the Thirty-fifth Division before my retirement in 1934."

The promotion, while an advancement, would deprive Raupp of most of his military salary. He now receives $4500 a year, including $300 a month as executive officer of the military council of the Missouri National Guard, $500 a year from the Federal Government and regular pay of his rank while on active duty as a Brigadier-General during the annual encampment of the State troops. As a Major-General he would receive $500 a year from the Federal Government and the regular pay of that rank only for such time as he was called to active duty. He would have virtually no active duty status as Major-General, it was said.

George M. Berry New President Of Auto Dealers

E. C. Sanner Elected Vice President and Joseph A. Schlecht, Treasurer.

At the annual meeting of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at the Coronado Hotel on Monday, George M. Berry, of the Berry Motor Car Co., was elected president of the association.

Other officers elected were: E. C. Sanner, General Motors Truck Co., vice president, and Joseph A. Schlecht, of the Milstrand Motor Co., re-elected treasurer. Schlecht formerly was treasurer of the association for nine years and also was president for two years.

Three directors were elected to serve two years—W. L. Johnson of the Johnson Automobile Co.; G. W. Oliver of the Oliver Cadillac Co. and L. M. Stewart of L. M. Stewart, Inc. The latter is the retiring president of the association.

W. N. Love, of the Love-Johnson Motor Co., and William Walsingham, of the Western Automobile Co. and the secretary, Robert E. Lee, were tellers for the election.

R. C. Frampton, of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., recommended that the association conduct another Safety Lane to help to make motor car owners realize that cars with bad brakes, steering mechanism, lights and wheel alignment are dangerous in operation and are the cause of many of the motor car accidents. He also suggested that the association back both the State Legislature and the Board of Aldermen laws requiring a physical examination of automobiles to make sure they are in safe condition.

It was suggested that the by-laws of the association be changed to admit to active voting membership the present associate members.

The meeting was attended by 90 per cent of the active members and by many of the associate members.

Goodyear Airwheel Tires Available for All De Soto Models

The De Soto Motor Corporation announces that Goodyear airwheel tires are now available on all models of new De Soto cars, at a small extra charge.

Reports have it that De Soto's lead will be followed by a number of other automobile makers.

The new tire is a low-pressure, pillow-like balloon that increases braking efficiency, improves riding qualities and adds smartness to the general appearance of an automobile.

De Soto's new airwheel tires are a direct development of the aviation airwheel introduced some years ago which revolutionized airplane tire equipment. The same advantages of extreme cushioning, traction and safety for planes, so vital in safe landings and takeoffs, are offered in the airwheel tire for automobiles.

Air pressure in the new tires varies with the weight of the car. The De Soto airwheel tire size is 15 inches by 7.50 with pressure ranging from 16 to 20 pounds.

Chevrolet Dealers Have Best Ten-Day Period Since August

Chevrolet dealers reported the sale of 19,672 new and 35,322 used cars to retail buyers in the second 10-day period of April, H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager, announces.

This is a gain of more than 2000 new and 9000 used cars over the first 10 days of the month, and is the best 10-day period enjoyed by the company since last August, Klingler says.

In the second reporting period of April, dealer stocks of used cars were reduced by 2320 units. Since March 1, when an intensive used car campaign was opened by Chevrolet, dealers reported the sale to retail buyers of 147,000 used cars up to April 20.

Sale of new cars in the first two periods of April were in excess of 38,000 units.

Klingler attributed the gains to four major factors—the aggressive campaign Chevrolet is now waging to stimulate sales, the regular seasonal upturn usually evident at this time, the stimulation due to recent price reductions, and the benefit being derived from the national exhibits held by General Motors in 55 leading cities early in April.

Clinic for Brake Mechanics Tomorrow

A number of local brake service stations and brake servicing departments were to hold a "clinic" for their mechanics at the Dealers Brake Supply Co., 2028 Olive street, tomorrow night. Wilkes Campbell, brake engineer, who has been loaned for this purpose by the L. J. Miley Co., Inc., Chicago, manufacturer of Ebonite and Black Gold brake linings, will conduct the clinic.

Explaining the purpose of the clinic, Walter Evers of the Dealers Brake Supply Co., said: "The greatly-increased power and speed of the modern cars as well as the rapid change to very complex braking mechanisms, along with other complications resulting from free wheeling and other recent developments have created many new and difficult braking problems."

'Rail Tires' Built By Goodyear Prove Value to Railroads

Gasoline motor powered railway coaches capable of maintaining speeds up to 100 miles per hour are a development through the application of pneumatic "rail tires," first of which have been manufactured in this country by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., which received the first license to make them under Michelin French patents.

Quiet, easy-riding, comfortable travel is assured those traveling in the railway coaches equipped with this new rail tire, first of which have been applied to coaches built by the Budd Manufacturing Co., in Philadelphia. Three trips are made daily by one of the coaches operating on a nine-mile stretch of branch railway tracks of the Raritan River line, starting at New Brunswick, N. J. Coaches have been made in two sizes, the 24-passenger type using 10 tires and the 40-passenger size equipped with a dozen pneumatic rail tires. A gallon of gasoline is consumed by the 90 h. p. coach motor for every 10 miles of travel.

The Goodyear-built rail tire has a load capacity of 1650 pounds per tire and the new coaches constructed of stainless steel weigh 11,000 pounds as compared with as high as 150,000 pounds for the large Pullman cars.

Hudson and Essex Convertible Coupes Shown in St. Louis

Two new convertible coupes, one a Hudson and the other an Essex, which can be changed from a closed to open cars and back again in a moment, are being introduced by the Hudson-Frampton Co.

Both convertibles have trimly tailored tops which fold back into deep recesses just back of the drivers' seats, and practically flush with the decks. A glove fastener cover, of the same color as the top, fastens over the folded top, giving the cars a sporty streamline effect.

The new cars really are three cars in one—coupe, convertible coupe and sports roadster—changing their capacity from two to four passengers and back again with ease. A coupe for two can be changed to an open roadster for four in a moment by lowering the easy-working top, and utilizing the rumble seat. To raise the top and fasten it into place is but the matter of another moment and the turning of two thumb screws at the windshield top. Then, when the windows are raised the occupants are snugged into a closed two-passenger coupe.

Pensacola Has Highest Gas Tax

Pensacola, Fla., has the highest gasoline tax in the United States, for it adds a cent to the State tax of seven cents.

Hudson's New Convertible Coupe

The new Hudson Eight convertible coupe just announced and now being shown in St. Louis. The coupe pictured was the first off the assembly line and was placed at the disposal of Morton Downey, the radio tenor, when he was playing a Detroit theater the past week.

Fast Driving Expensive.

According to tests made by the Motor Club of Chicago, Ill., speeding in an automobile is expensive. Traveling at 55 miles an hour increases oil consumption seven times as compared with 35 miles an hour. Tires wear out twice as fast at 50 as they do at 40 miles an hour, and gasoline consumption is one-fourth greater at 50 miles than at 30. The conclusion was that driving between 40 and 45 miles an hour was most economical.

Another Car Rental Fleet

Pan-American Highway.

The proposed Pan-American highway spanning the Western Hemisphere from Canada to the southernmost tip of South America is forecast within the next 10 years. Stretching approximately 12,000 miles, no highway in the world will offer a wider variety of scenic and climatic advantages, ranging from the Canadian north woods to the wind-swept plains of the Argentine—a thousand climates, 10,000 vistas and a constantly changing and colorful panorama. Once completed, there is little doubt that the Pan-American highway system will stand forever as man's greatest achievement in road building.

Beauty in Filling Stations.

The Architects' Emergency Committee of the Region of New York is promoting a contest for artistic gasoline filling stations. The contest is limited to unemployed architects and draftsmen living or working in the metropolitan district and registered with the committee. At present about 2000 are so registered.

Car Thieves in London.

A total of 5056 automobiles were stolen in the metropolitan area of London, England, la year, and 4869 were recovered.

New Highway in Italy.

An automobile highway in Ital linking Florence with the sea Viareggio, 50 miles away, h been completed. Only passeng cars may use it.

Jobless Build Roads in Canada.

As an unemployment relief measure, 40,000 men are working on the trans-Canadian highway. The length of the new road will be [illegible] miles.

Buddy Rogers, Lupe Velez and Bert Lahr join the throng who have accepted our invitation to a Dodge Floating Power Ride. Were they thrilled? Yes sir!

"Righto, DODGE
. . . We'll take a bow to your Floating Power Ride"

"All together now, let's tell the world," say these three bright Ziegfeld stars. "Floating Power is a HOT-CHA hit in a motor car. It's one of those things you just can't miss if you want to know about everything that's new and different and up-to-date."

And we've started something!

For the word is going around that this is just one of those things you have to know about.

And frankly, the only way to know about it is to drive a Dodge car. We can't try to describe it to you. You'd set us down as just plain over-enthusiastic.

We can tell you conservatively that Floating Power is a patented new kind of engine mounting that completely removes vibration. You've probably heard that. As a matter of fact if you've been around auto row, you've probably heard rival salesmen trying to claim they have it. We can't blame them much!

It's when you get behind the wheel of a Dodge Six or Eight that the idea really clicks. Why here's a car that's different! Strangely effortless. Unbelievably quiet. Amazing in the way it does the dog-gonedest things without even seeming to try.

Sound interesting? Try it . . . see if you don't agree with Walter P. Chrysler that any new car without Floating Power is out-of-date.

And try the new Dodge Automatic Clutch and Silent Gear Selector. It's like having a chauffeur do your shifting!

But if we start telling you, we won't be able to stop. Drive these spirited Dodge cars yourself.

We're inviting people by telephone and personal calls. If you would like to go right now, give us a ring. No salesman will pester you. We promise that. Fair enough?

DODGE SIX $795 to $895. DODGE EIGHT $1115 to $1185. F. O. B. Factory. Low delivered prices. Convenient terms. Five wire or demountable wood wheels, no extra cost. Duplate safety plate glass: $9.50 Coupes to $17.50 Sedans. Automatic Clutch standard on Eights; only $8 on Sixes. Closed models wired for Philco-Transitone Radio.

Franklin 'Twelve' Shown for First Time in St. Louis

Has Supercharged Engine Designed to Develop 150 H. P.—Four Body Styles.

Models of the new Franklin 12-ylinder line—a companion to the ranklin six lines—are being shown St. Louis by the Central States otors, the distributer.

The Franklin 12 comes in four ody styles, each by LeBaron. The ody models consist of a five-pasnger sedan, seven-passenger sean, limousine and four-passenger ub brougham. The wheelbase of 4 inches has provided latitude for ominess and opportunity to proce the latest conception of reamlining.

The exterior has a graceful slope the hood front, which is carried so to the windshield and front or line. This design is combined ith a piercing "V" of the hood ont to give the effect of motion. e shape of the rear avoids the tarding pull of air pockets in uch the same degree as the front educes wind resistance.

Bodies by LeBaron.

The low appearance of the car emphasized by the doors which liminate intervening metal work etween running board and body ge. By extending hood panels raight back to the windshield and or lines, LeBaron has met an arstic problem in a new way.

The 150-horsepower Franklin enne is said to require 100 less arts than the usual 12-cylinder ower plant. Cylinders are 3¼-ch bore by 4-inch stroke, with a ompression ratio of 5.12, and dever maximum power at 3100 r. p. . The valve-in-head cylinders are ounted in two banks at a 60-deree angle. Cooling is simple, as he air draft is led directly to the pace within the "V" and thence cross the cooling fins on the two ows of cylinders down to the outde air.

The supercharger forces the mixure into the combustion chamber nder pressure of air traveling as igh as 110 miles an hour.

The transmission has the roller pe of free wheeling mechanism. n addition, an easy-shift synchroesh gear is provided. The helical econd gear gives silence of operaon.

Safety and Riding Ease.

An element of safety is provided the low swung body. The lower enter of gravity causes the car to ug the road at high speeds. Ease f steering is provided by caster ction of the front wheels and a am an dlever steering device. A shimmy" eliminator in the left ront spring breaks up vibrations hat may cause the wheels to aver.

Upholstery material is in broadloth. The woodwork is burled alnut, delicately colored.

Ventilation of the body is regulated by two cowl openings, one in ach side of the ridge line of the ood. Insulation of the hood gainst sound, heat and cold is orked out in detail.

Riding ease is given by semi-elliptic springs encased in metal covrs and mounted on ball bearing hackles. Ride control for the rear prings compensates for road varitions and makes possible uniform erformance in city and country.

Woman Driver Safer.

According to Magistrate David Malbin, youthful jurist in Brooklyn, N. Y., the woman automobile driver s more law-abiding than the man perator. He says, "Women are arely arrested for driving while ntoxicated, operating a machine in reckless manner, or playing 'hitnd-run.' ".

First Steam Car Did 12 Miles an Hour.

The first appearance of a power ehicle on the streets of New York City was 65 years ago. This early automobile, an adaptation of a raiload locomotive, cost $1500 and ad a speed of 12 miles an hour.

Cylinders are 3¼-inch bore by 4-inch stroke, with a compression ratio of 5.12, and deliver maximum power at 3100 r. p. m. The valve-in-head cylinders are mounted in two banks at a 60-degree angle. Cooling is simple, as the air draft is led directly to the space within the "V" and thence across the cooling fins on the two rows of cylinders down to the outside air.

The supercharger forces the mixture into the combustion chamber under pressure of air traveling as high as 110 miles an hour.

The transmission has the roller type of free wheeling mechanism. In addition, an easy-shift synchromesh gear is provided. The helical second gear gives silence of operation.

Safety and Riding Ease.

An element of safety is provided in the low swung body. The lower center of gravity causes the car to hug the road at high speeds. Ease of steering is provided by caster action of the front wheels and a cam an dlever steering device. A "shimmy" eliminator in the left front spring breaks up vibrations that may cause the wheels to waver.

The hydraulically operated brakes have drums of "centrifuse" construction.

Upholstery material is in broadcloth. The woodwork is burled walnut, delicately colored.

Ventilation of the body is regulated by two cowl openings, one in each side of the ridge line of the hood. Insulation of the hood against sound, heat and cold is worked out in detail.

Riding ease is given by semi-elliptic springs encased in metal covers and mounted on ball bearing shackles. Ride control for the rear springs compensates for road variations and makes possible uniform performance in city and country.

Woman Driver Safer.

According to Magistrate David Malbin, youthful jurist in Brooklyn, N. Y., the woman automobile driver is more law-abiding than the man operator. He says, "Women are rarely arrested for driving while intoxicated, operating a machine in a reckless manner, or playing 'hit-and-run.'".

First Steam Car Did 12 Miles an Hour.

The first appearance of a power vehicle on the streets of New York City was 65 years ago. This early automobile, an adaptation of a railroad locomotive, cost $1500 and had a speed of 12 miles an hour.

Posters to Warn Drivers.

Filling stations in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania are displaying colored posters warning motorists against violation of traffic regulations which are responsible for the loss of life, injury and heavy property damage. The display is to be changed monthly. The first one warns motorists "Don's pass on hills."

Free Wheeling in the Air.

A "free wheeling" airplane engine has been perfected. It is a new Diesel-type motor featuring a single throttle fuel control which automatically changes the timing of the motor according to the amount of fuel injected. It is said this permits the engine to be operated at maximum efficiency at all speeds from idling to 2000 revolutions a minute.

New Seiberling Tire Total and Anti-Skid Mileage Same in Test

Tires are now being manufactured which give 100 per cent anti-skid service, according to the Beverly Rubber Co., local Seiberling dealer, which has just received word of the completion of a series of scientific road tests at North Carolina State College. In these tests Seiberling duo-tread tires gave a total mileage of 39,025 miles each and the same anti-skid mileage.

"We have long felt that the duo-tread construction would give full anti-skid life," Seiberling engineers said. "Our preliminary tests proved this. But late in January we put a fleet of cars on test on the roads near Raleigh, N. C. We ran these cars 18 hours a day and paced them to average more than 700 miles daily. We changed the tires from right to left and from car to car. We checked the pressure periodically to keep it to the 32-pound standard.

"During the test we encountered every kind of weather except snow. The roads used were concrete and asphalt, permitting of high speeds, and we had every car loaded to the maximum carrying capacity as recommended by the Tire and Rim Association.

"Not only did these tires average 51 per cent greater mileage than the average, but they gave 123 per cent more anti-skid mileage. Moreover the total non-skid mileage was rendered at a cost of 36-1000 of a cent per mile."

De Soto Dealer Organization Sets New Sales Records

All weekly sales records in the history of the De Soto dealer organization were broken during the week ending April 23, when retail deliveries mounted to a new high total of 1787 cars. This figure includes Plymouth sales by De Soto dealers in addition to De Soto.

Business during the week showed a 100 per cent gain over the corresponding week of last year when sales totaled 894 units. The best previous week for the organization was the week ending Aug. 1 last year when 1745 cars were sold at retail.

For the year to date sales of DeSoto and Plymouth cars by De Soto dealers are running 60 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of last year.

Chevrolet Dealers Reduce Prices of All Service Operations

Effective tomorrow, substantial price reductions on all service operations will be made by all authorized Chevrolet dealers in Greater St. Louis, according to announcement by Harry Hal, St. Louis zone parts and service manager for the Chevrolet Motor Co.

Hale pointed out in announcing these reductions that this action was based upon Chevrolet's standard policy of providing Chevrolet owners with the lowest possible cost of car operation and maintenance. In conformity with the general reduction in labor costs at this time in all industries, this reduced schedule of service rates reaches its lowest level in Chevrolet history.

Only factory-trained mechanics, Hale said, using only factory-designed equipment and genuine Chevrolet parts, are employed in the service departments of authorized Chevrolet dealers in Greater St. Louis.

St. Louis Auto Top Firm Moves Into Larger Building

The St. Louis Auto Top Co. has moved from 3029 Olive street into the large brick building at 3019-21 Olive. In the new structure, which is 60 by 145 feet, all departments are on one floor, which is easily accessible by large driveways from Olive street and from the rear. New latest type air compressor equipment has been installed.

W. H. Shaw, owner of the company, announces the appointment of Walter Prack as sales manager. Prack has spent nine years with various St. Louis automobile concerns serving both the wholesale and retail trade.

The St. Louis Auto Top Co. for 26 years under Shaw's direction, has specialized in complete automobile body repair, refinishing, paint, trimming and wreck rebuilding.

Willys Optimistic On Sailing to Wind Up Affairs in Poland

A favorable economic turn in the near future was predicted by John N. Willys, United States Ambassador to Poland, just before sailing to return to Warsaw after receiving President Hoover's permission to be relieved at an early date from his duties as Ambassador in order to take up again actively the board chairmanship of Willys-Overland. He will conclude his affairs in Poland and return by the end of this month.

After spending two weeks in Toledo conferring with his Willys-Overland associates, he expressed optimistic opinions about the future of Willys-Overland and the return of American prosperity.

"I expect to return within a few weeks and put my efforts into doing what I can to help the policies and finances of the Willys-Overland Co., which I founded 25 years ago," Willys said.

U. S. Rubber Co. Works Three Shifts Five Days a Week

Beginning last Monday, the tire department of the United States Rubber Co. increased operations to five days a week with three eight-hour shifts a day. The department had been working an average of four days a week.

The May production schedule calls for a 15 per cent increase in tires, according to J. F. O'Shaughnessy, general manager of the tire department.

"At the rate orders are now coming in from both car manufacturers and tire dealers, I believe June output will surpass that of May by another 15 per cent," said O'Shaughnessy. "I see no reason why we should not continue at even a higher rate throughout July."

O'Shaughnessy said that approximately 3000 men were at work at present and that this was close to a normal payroll.

Ross D. Williams Appointed District Manager for De Soto

Announcement has just been made by the De Soto Motor Corporation of Detroit that A. J. Schaefer, who has been district manager of the St. Louis district for the past year, has been transferred to the home office for special work.

Ross D. Williams has been appointed district manager to succeed Schaefer in St. Louis.

Williams has served for a number of years in a ismilar capacity in St. Louis for a manufacturer of another car.

Studebaker Racer Does 102 M. P. H. in 600-Mile Track Test

Running 600 miles as a test in preparation for its competition in the 500-mile race on the Indianapolis speedway on May 30, one of the Studebaker semi-stock racing cars made the distance in a total running time of six hours, 26 minutes 13 seconds. Tony Gulottfa and Luther Johnson drove the car for a running average of 102.6 miles an hour.

With this performance by the first car of the five-car team, Studebaker race mechanics started immediately to complete the four other cars to get them on the track this week.

The record for 500 miles in competition on the Indianapolis bricks is held by Peter De Paolo, who rode to an average of 101.13 miles an hour for 500 miles.

Charles Merz, a member of the A. A. A. Technical Committee in charge of the race, was amazed that only one quart of oil was added to the car's supply during the 660-mile run.

"These semi-stock cars use their oil where it is needed—in the motor——instead of dropping it out on the track, where it is a hazard," he commented.

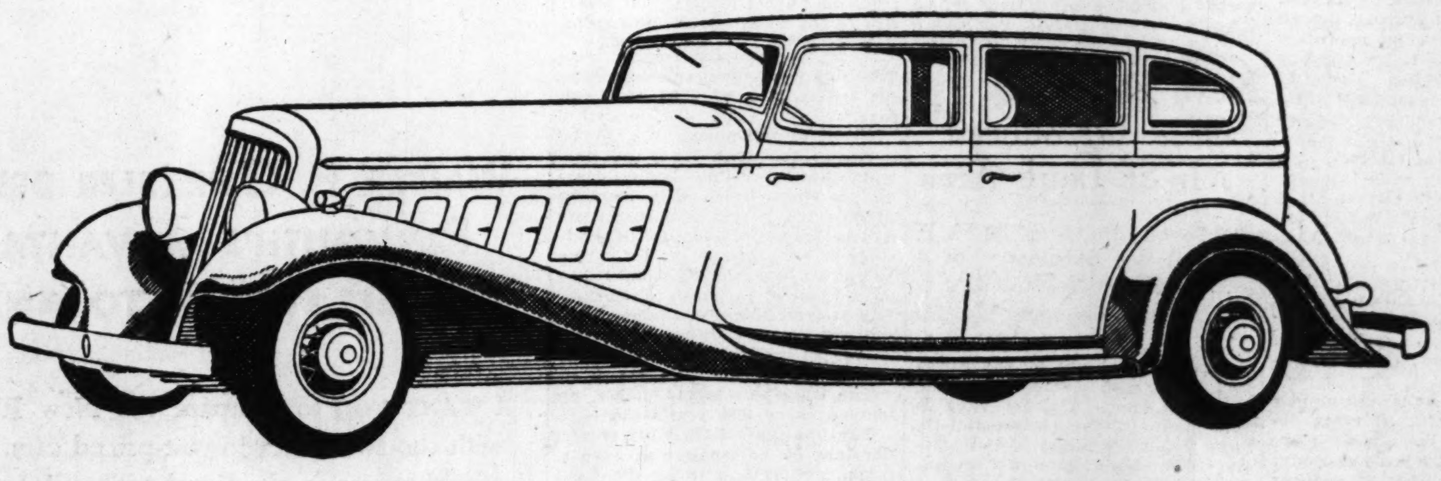
Specially built race cars of the type used at Indianapolis have used from a gallon and a half to 65 gallons of oil in 500 miles of competition, drivers who watched the Studebaker run said.

ANNOUNCING THE

SUPERCHARGED AIR-COOLED

Twelve Cylinder

FRANKLIN



For four years Franklin engineers have studied, experimented, tested, proved—and now present the Supercharged, Air-cooled, Twelve Cylinder Franklin. For the first time in a motor car, this new Air-cooled Twelve incorporates the one thing that has given aviation its greatest impetus—the high-powered, multi-cylinder, air-cooled engine.

To see the car is to feel instantly the freshness and brilliance that Le Baron has styled into the Franklin Twelve—the year's pattern of beauty and luxury. And when you drive this responsive, amply proportioned car of 144-inch wheelbase, that feeling is immediately transformed into thrilling admiration for the sensational performance which carries you to new luxury in travel.

The Supercharged 150 horsepower air-cooled engine is extremely simple in operation, requiring 100 less parts than comparable water-cooled engines. So accessible is the engine and so free of complication that low maintenance becomes an important feature. The Supercharger achieves flowing, turbine-like power, smoothness and acceleration by forcing a full charge of perfect mixture into every cylinder equally. Actual tests show gas consumption is appreciably lower. And engine life is much greater, for even at high touring speeds the engine is purring effortlessly. Pressure air-cooling adds greatly to the economical efficiency of the engine and allows you to drive all day at high speed without over-heating or loss of power. In Franklin there is no water to boil, freeze or leak.

You are invited to examine and drive the new Supercharged Twelve as an example of the really modern motor car. Franklin also offers the new Supercharged Airman, with 132-inch wheelbase and 100 H. P. airplane engine.

Head of Plymouth Factory in Visit To Local Dealers

Rockelman Tells of 236 Per Cent Shipments Gain Over First Quarter of 1931.

"Plymouth's invitation to the public to look at all three of the lowest priced cars before buying any one of them has brought most gratifying results," said F. L. Rockelman, president of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, when in St. Louis Wednesday.

Rockelman is touring the country visiting De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler dealers through whom Plymouth cars are sold. While here he was a guest of the Mound City Motor Co., Milstrand Motor Co. and L. M. Stewart, Inc., local De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler distributers.

"I think the very sincerity of our advertising had a lot to do with the response," said Rockelman. "We have found that we have established a good will that would be impossible by the time-honored screaming of 'biggest and best.'

"In seven of the principal cities of the country the new Plymouth took second place in sales soon after its introduction on April 3, leading the third of the lowest priced cars by a ratio of more than five to one in some of these places.

"We built and shipped to dealers more than 30,000 Plymouths up to the end of April. At the rate orders have been coming in, we expect to beat that in May. Within a week after the car was put on the market, our factory production schedule had jumped up to 1100 cars a day. There have been two increases in the production schedule since.

"Our shipments in the first quarter of 1932 were 236 per cent greater than those of the corresponding period in 1931. In March, we shipped 323 per cent more cars than in the same month a year ago.

"The last figures that I have on shipments show an increase in the week ending April 16 of 34.9 per cent over the preceding week, which, in turn, was 90 per cent better than the week before that. Actual registrations for the whole 48 states in January, 47 states in February and 28 states in March show an increase of 96 per cent over the same states for the same period a year ago.

"Please do not misunderstand me as saying that the country is out of the depression. We know it is not, and I am not rash enough to venture any predictions in that direction. Nevertheless, we have set 200,000 Plymouths as our goal this year, and we believe that we are going to reach it. In fact, the first month's figures for our 1932 Plymouth are higher than we estimated when setting 200,000 as our objective.

"I can say in all sincerity that I hope every man who is able to buy a new car will do so at once. Nothing will serve more quickly to put American industry back on its feet. If, after looking at our car, a man prefers that of a rival manufacturer, I advise him to go and buy it. But buy something. Money in circulation means men at work, and men at work means prosperity."

Report Sales Gains.

At the conclusion of his meeting with the St. Louis Chrysler, De Soto and Dodge distributers, Rockelman asked each for a report on 1932 business.

"Our business for the first four months of 1932 is ahead of the corresponding period of last year," said L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., Chrysler distributer.

"April, 1932, was the best month, from the standpoint of units delivered, that we have had since we have been in business as Dodge distributer," said M. B. Strauss, president of Milstrand Motor Co., which took the Dodge distributer franchise on Sept. 1, 1929.

"April, 1932, was four times better than April of last year on our Plymouth and De Soto sales, and was far better than last July, which was our best previous month," said George Weber, president of the Mound City Motor Co.

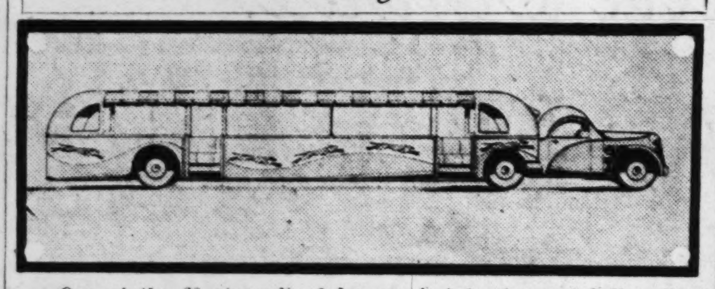
Busses for Chicago World's Fair



One of the 60 streamlined busses—fast tractor and balloon-tired trailer combination—that the General Motors Truck Co. is building for the Chicago World's Fair next year. The bus seats 50 with standing room for 45 more passengers. Over-all length of tractor and trailer is 46 feet. A fixed awning top will have sides that can be lowered. The trailer will have a low floor for easy entrance from loading platforms. The busses will operate over two routes to the Fair, one at high speed over an arterial highway, the other on slow routes for sight seeing.

New De Vaux Cars Introduced In St. Louis Area

The new De Vaux Six "80" models are being shown by the Burgdorf Motor Co., distributer in the St. Louis area. The De Vaux is now made by the Continental-De Vaux Co., a subsidiary of the powerful Continental Motors Corporation, the largest manufacturer of automobile engines. A reduction in price to a base of $725 a factory for the De Vaux is announced as a result of plant economies effected by Continental Motors Corporation. Prices of the standard coupe, sport coupe and standard sedan have been lowered $75, while the cut on the custom coupe, custom sedan and convertible roadster is $65. The May production schedule calls for the making of 1200 De Vaux cars.

Many improvements are to be noted in the 1932 De Vaux line, which has "aero-line" bodies, completely streamlined, with slanting windshields, curved panels, reveals and splashers. Bodies in all models are two inches wider. The height of the closed models has been lessened to barely 68 inches. The over-all height of the convertible roadster, an addition to the line, is only 64 inches, making it one of the lowest cars built.

The Continental-De Vaux engine develops 80 horsepower at 3600 r. p. m., and is said to be the most powerful motor used in any low-priced six-cylinder car. This engine is the only L-head passenger car power plant to use successfully a six-port intake and exhaust manifold. This method of fuel distribution accounts for the performance and speed of the De Vaux.

The constant-mesh, silent-second transmission was a De Vaux feature more than a year ago and is continued this year without change. It is possible to shift from high to second at speeds in excess of 30 miles per hour without clashing of gears.

Free wheeling is standard in all models. The unit is controlled by a push-pull button on the dash, making the change from free wheeling into conventional drive instantaneous.

"Startix," the automatic key starter which does away with the foot starter, may be had at slight extra cost. Automatic ride control, thermostatically operated, eliminates the necessity of a manual control on the dash. This feature is also available at low cost.

Form-fitting cushions, with contour-shaped backs, contribute to the riding comort. This method of cushioning is seldom found in cars selling for less than $1000. Arm rests, foot rests, robe rails, dome lights, assist cords are other features.

In 1931 nearly 7000 De Vaux cars were sold in all parts of the country. Some of these cars have been driven as far as 50,000 miles.

Automobile Industry Leads.

The automobile industry is first in manufactured products in the United States. It gives work to 5,056,000 persons directly and indirectly employed, out of a total of 48,832,589 people classified as gainfully employed in all industry. Twenty-six million cars are in operation throughout the country. They cost $24,000,000,000 a year's work for 12,000,000 men at $2000 a year apiece.

Easy to Jack Up This Car

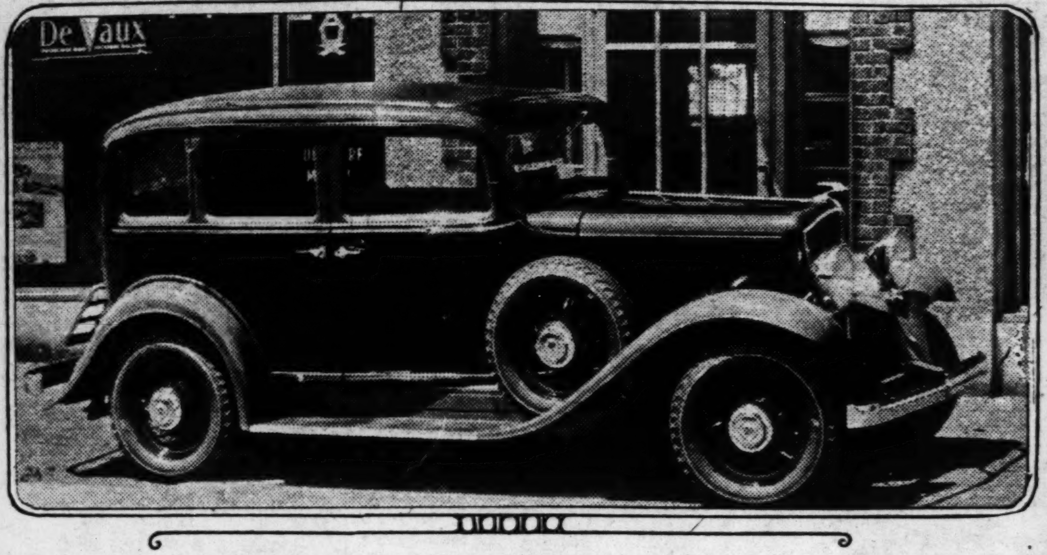
New De Vaux Six Five-Passenger Sedan



One of the new De Vaux Six models which are being shown in St. Louis. The De Vaux is now made and marketed by the Continental Motors Corporation, largest manufacturer of auto engines. It has an 80 h. p motor, and its body lines were designed by Count Alexis de Sakknoffsky, who is recognized as a leader among motor car stylists.

Race Timed From Airplane.

During the recent cross-country race of 421 miles over very rough roads from Durban to Johannesburg, South Africa, the time was kept by men in an airplane, which observed the start and arrived at the finish before the cars reached the tape.

Auto Death Rate High.

Automobile accidents killed 30 out of every 100,000 people in Illinois in 1931. Fatalities last year were 2333, an increase of 172 per cent over the 728 of 1920. Since 1920 a total of 18,051 persons have been killed.

Knudsen Reports 55,432 Chevrolet Units Built in April

Chevrolet built 55,432 cars and trucks in April, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announced yesterday.

This compares with 38,890 built in March and is the largest month's output thus far in 1932, Knudsen said.

Total production of the new 1932 line of Chevrolet sixes since its introduction last winter is now in excess of 260,000 units.

Knudsen stated that the April schedule was stepped up several times during the month, as commitments for cars were increased over the original estimates, and that Chevrolet dealers reported the sale at retail of 89.2 per cent more cars in the first 20 days of April than in the corresponding period of March.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER BELIEVES PLYMOUTH'S ADVANTAGES ARE SELF-EVIDENT TO ANYONE
I WANT YOU to compare the New Plymouth with the two other lowest-priced cars. I'm not afraid of your verdict because I know the Plymouth won't suffer. Can't suffer.
Besides that's the only right way to know this New 1932 Plymouth—or any other car.
I've been building automobiles for a long time, and I tell you I've never driven a smoother-running or easier-riding car than this New Plymouth. New sensational Floating Power engine mountings make the difference—a world of difference.
You must ride in it, and drive it, really to appreciate it. And I promise you a real surprise when you do. Words can't describe a Floating Power ride. It's something you have to feel and experience.
You'll like the New Plymouth when you see it. It's a bigger car. It's longer, more powerful, better looking. And it's priced to conform with the leaner pocketbooks of today.
Ride in the New Plymouth. Then ride in the other two lowest-priced cars. I'm ready to stand or fall on what the Plymouth can show you. I believe that a Plymouth ride means a Plymouth sale.

SPAIN'S ROYAL FEUD ENDS AFTER 100 YEARS

Carlist Pretender and Alfonso Make Peace to Help Recover Throne.

By the Associated Press.

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, May 7.—Confirmation that Alfonso XIII and the Carlist pretender Alfonso Carlos, have joined forces in anticipation of a possible restoration of a constitutional monarchy in Spain, has been given here by an authorized spokesman for the former King.

"Yes, an accord has been established between Alfonso XIII and Alfonso Carlos to work together to defend Spain against anarchy and communism," the royal spokesman said.

The statement marked the first admission on the part of a member of the royal entourage of the authenticity of a manifesto published Feb. 27 and purporting to be signed by the heads of the two opposing branches of the Bourbons.

The spokesman denied that either the former King or the pretender was formulating plans for a coup d'etat.

"We must wait for developments," he said.

Denies Claims Were Ceded.

The spokesman also denied that the former King had ceded his claims to the Spanish throne to the pretender Alfonso Carlos during the latter's lifetime.

"The King has ceded no claims to the throne," he declared. "He simply made this accord with Alfonso Carlos.

"This was in line with a wish expressed by the former Carlist pretender, Don Jaime, before his death.

"Don Jaime requested that all Carlist followers should support Alfonso XIII after the death of Don Jaime's successor, the present pretender Carlos, who leaves no heirs."

Asked whether Alfonso XIII had issued an appeal to Spaniards to overthrow the Republic and restore a constitutional monarchial government, the spokesman said:

"An appeal was made to all loyal Spaniards to rally to the support of the King and Alfonso Carlos and to defend Spain against anarchy, but it was not intended for publication.

Cause of Two Wars.

"The burnings of old churches and convents which have occurred under the Republican regime cause great sorrow to all loyal Spaniards. They all wish to defend Spain against anarchy."

The reconciliation between Alfonso XIII and Alfonso Carlos marked the end of 100 years' family feud which caused two wars. The feud began in 1830 when King Ferdinand VII, having no male heir, abolished the law prohibiting women from inheriting the throne, so that his daughter Isabella II might have the crown.

His brother Carlos claimed the throne and some of the later Carlists waged bloody wars in vain attempts to drive their relatives off the seat of power.

DENIED INJUNCTION TO PREVENT SALE OF HIS COLLATERAL

Ernest Boyd Says He Did Not Receive $7000 of $20,000 Loaned by Company.

A petition for a temporary injunction to prevent the Reserve Discount Co., with offices in the Century Building Co., from selling collateral security deposited with it by Ernest Boyd of St. Louis County, a public accountant, was denied by Circuit Judge Nortoni yesterday. The Court indicated that Boyd, who filed the suit, had another legal remedy.

According to the petition Boyd, on Oct. 1, 1931, executed a note for $20,000 as evidence of a loan from defendant company. He put in as security 2000 shares of Burroughs Adding Machine Co. stock and 100 shares of Reserve Discount Co., all alleged to be worth in excess of $30,000. He said he received credit for only $13,000 of the loan, the balance of $7000 not coming into his hands. He has offered to pay back the $13,000 but the loan company, he averred, insists that the full $20,000 is due and has threatened to sell his security to satisfy the claim.

In an answer it was set up that that defendant company issued three checks for the full amount and they were received either by Boyd or his agent, the proceeds being applied under his direction and authority. Henry Giessenbier, president of the company, who is also cashier at Scruggs-Vandervoort & Barney Bank, explained he negotiated the loan for Boyd, who was his friend. The $7000 in question, he said, was issued as a cashier's check and was applied to protect collateral for a relative of Boyd's wife at a brokerage firm.

Giessenbier asserted he was instructed to do this, although Boyd declared he was not aware of such trading account. In his petition, filed by Chase Morsey, the plaintiff also asked for an accounting.

ROBBED OF $950 IN JEWELRY

Fruit Dealer Also Loses $93 in Cash to Two Men.

James Lopiccolo, a fruit dealer of 809 North Fourth street, was robbed of jewelry valued at $950 and $93 in cash early yesterday by two Negroes who stopped him at an alley near Fourth street and Franklin avenue. One held a revolver while the other took two diamond rings, a watch and the money.

Edward Jumper, attendant at a gasoline station at 4928 Page boulevard, was held up by an armed man who took $25 and escaped in an automobile with an accomplice.

SOVIET ALTERS GRAIN COLLECTION POLICY

Reduces Quotas and Urges Disposal of Surplus on Open Market.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, May 7.—The most fundamental change in dealing with the Soviet agricultural problem since collectivization began in earnest in 1928 was decreed today by the Council of Peoples Commissars and the Central Committee of the Communist party. The decree alters the Government's policy of grain collection, reducing appreciably the quotas assessed against collectives and individual farms. Its purpose is to encourage these groups to dispose of their surplus production in the open market.

The order was signed by V. M. Molotov, president of the Council of Peoples Commissars, and Joseph Stalin, head of the Community party.

One of its effects will be to improve the supplies of grain for urban populations and apparently at the same time to enlarge the collectivized area by providing new inducements for holdout peasants to enter collective farms.

The new regulation, which increases the collection assessments against state farms in order to balance the scales, applies to the 1932 crop. It permits collectives and individual peasants to sell their surplus in the open market after Jan. 31, 1933.

Although the decree does not mention prices specifically, it is presumed that fixed prices will be set for the sale of this surplus, thus preventing speculation, and that most of such trading will be done through established collective markets.

The change in policy was made possible, the decree said, by the great victory achieved by collective economy over the individual system through the widespread use of modern farming machinery, through improved agricultural technique and through the liquidation of the village Kulak elements. A Kulak is a wealthy peasant.

In support of this contention, the decree cites figures showing grain collections increased from 396,000,000 bushels in 1928 to 810,000,000 i n1930 and 840,000,000 in 1931.

The decree asserts that industrial development has created the possibilities for a large increase in manufactured goods to satisfy the needs of villages. This has been one of the Government's chief problems because peasants have been unwilling to part with their grain without assurances that they would be able to buy necessary manufactured articles.

18 REPUBLICANS, 4 DEMOCRATS FILE FOR OFFICES IN COUNTY

Sheriff Lill Seeks Nomination for Assessor—Herpel Again Candidate.

Eighteen Republicans and four Democrats filed notice of candidacy for St. Louis County offices last week.

Republican candidates and the nominations they seek: Assessor—George M. Herpel, incumbent, and Alfred G. McHugh, McKnight Village; Judge of the County Court, First District—Thomas M. Bannon, Webster Groves and William J. Preiss, Clayton; Judge of the County Court, Second District—Emil F. Wohlschlaeger, Kirkwood; Coroner—Rolla Bracy, Wellston; Constable, St. Ferdinand Township—Rudy Baumer, incumbent; Committeeman, St. Ferdinand Township, Frank J. Burkamp, incumbent, who withdrew as a candidate for Treasurer, and John A. Dowdall, Ferguson; Committeewoman, St. Ferdinand Township—Miss May Gardner, incumbent; Justice of the Peace, Central Township—John W. Ward Jr., Shrewsbury.

ORDINANCE FOR WIDENING OF CHEROKEE ST. REPEALED

Aldermen Unanimous in Action Killing Major Street System Improvement.

An ordinance for the widening of Cherokee street, between Broadway and Eighteenth street, was repealed by unanimous vote of the Board of Aldermen yesterday. It also provided for a cutoff between Cherokee and McDonald avenue at Grand boulevard.

Condemnation proceedings for this improvement were started recently. If Mayor Miller approves the repealer, the improvement cannot be undertaken again for 10 years, unless paid for entirely by the city or requested by the affected property owners. The plan is part of the city's major street scheme.

Aldermen are inclined to oppose any street opening or widening, such as this, involving assessment of benefit taxes.

Bridge Building Time Extended.

PRE-SEASON CAMP FOR PATROL LEADERS

Open to All Non-Commissioned Officers of Boy Scout Council.

A patrol leaders' camp for all non-commissioned officers of St. Louis Boy Scout Council troops will be held at the Irondale Reservation, the council's summer camp near Irondale, Mo., next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. This will be the first of a series of pre-season camps the council plans to conduct before the reservation is officially opened June 20.

Spring patrol leaders' camps have been held by the council several years, to enable the junior leaders of scout troops to obtain new ideas on conducting troop programs. New games and new scout projects are taught by the camp leaders, and information on methods of handling troop activities is exchanged by the scouts. In addition the camp serves to brush up the camping knowledge of the junior leaders who will have much of the responsibility for their troops' summer camping activities.

The camp will be open to all senior patrol leaders, junior assistant scoutmasters, patrol leaders, assistant patrol leaders, scribes, buglers and quartermasters. Scoutmasters and assistant scoutmasters may attend with their junior officers if they desire. Headquarters for the three days will be in the reservation Cabin Camp, which will accommodate about 300 persons.

The campers will leave Union Station at 4:30 o'clock Friday evening, arriving at Irondale in time for supper. They will return Sunday evening, leaving Irondale at 6 o'clock.

The first section of the regular Irondale camps will open June 20, although the first roving camp of the year, to Washington, will leave St. Louis June 18. The camping season this year will end Aug. 22.

Troop Notes

South District.

The South Disrict field commissioners will hold their monthly meeting at Hotel Saum Thursday evening. Plans for participation in the scoutmasters' training camp and organization of the Camparall staff will be discussed.

All South District troops have been invited to take part in a celebration of the 200th anniversary of Washington, which will be given by the Cherokee Business Men's Association, Saturday, May 21. The celebration will include a parade and a number of tableaux.

Four South District troops are scheduled to re-register in May. They are: Troop 34, Shenandoah School; Troop 76, Winnebago Presbyterian Church; Troop 187, Jefferson Barracks, and Troop 192, Gardenville School.

Scouts Bartholic, Campbell, Burkesand Burkemeier have been appointed reporters for the troop paper issued by Troop 8 of Buder School. Mrs. Pearl Chalfant has been elected president of the Mothers' Club of the troop. Mrs. H. L. Wedemeier has been chosen vice president; Mrs. L. A. Zimmermann, secretary, and Mrs. C. Garrett, treasurer.

A new member, Albert Stamm, was admitted to Troop 68 of Mount Pleasant School, at the meeting a week ago Friday. He was assigned to the Flying Eagle patrol. The troop is on a three-day hike to Creve Coeur Lake this week-end.

Troop 129 of St. George's Catholic Church set a record at the recent Scout Circus by erecting a 10 by 12 Adirondack shack weighing approximately two and one-half tons in eight minutes of the allotted time of 14 minutes. Six new members were admitted into the troop during an investiture ceremony held a week ago Wednesday evening. Outdoor Committeeman Imfeld and Scoutmaster Jordan led a hike last Sunday in which 31 scouts, the troop committee and several fathers participated.

West District.

Patrol Leader Irwin Albrecht's Mohawk patrol won an inter-patrol contest staged by Troop 101, West Park Baptist Church. Scout John Kirchner of the Pirate patrol is leader in an individual contest, followed by Scouts Arthur Monken and Donald Simpson, both of the Cobra patrol.

The Iroquois patrol is leading by one point in an inter-patrol contest being conducted by Troop 135, University Methodist Church. The Iroquois have 81 points to the second-place Mohawks' 80. The Blackfeet patrol in third with 76 points, and the Osage fourth with 45.

Central District.

Troop 74, Sherman School, reregistered last week as the first step toward winning its second standard troop award. The troop also is working toward regaining the Central District flag, as it was the first troop in the district to win this honor.

A hike to Grant's Farm on the Gravois road was taken by Troop 223, Reen Memorial Church, last Sunday, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Miles Gregory. Nearly an hour was spent looking over the relics in the cabin. The remainder of the hike was spent in the neighboring woods, following nature trails and playing games.

North District.

Scouts Maurice Brouse, Leonard Richman, Albert Sheehan, Billy Werner and Norman Giese, members of the Flaming Arrow Patrol of Troop 114, Baden School, went on a nature hike to the Chain of Rocks a week ago yesterday, under the leadership of Troop Committeeman Arthur Richman. They collected a number of leaves for entry in an inter-patrol contest being conducted by the troop. The troop is planning a Troop Court of Honor for next Friday evening.

Troop 161 was awarded a gold streamer at the Scout Circus for obtaining a perfect score in the 1932 Achievement Roundup. The Beaver patrol held a patrol meeting at the home of Patrol Leader Hickles last week, this being the first patrol meeting ever held in the troop. A hike was taken two weeks ago today.

Suburban District.

Rock Hill 1, of the Rock Hill School, inaugurated the 1932 camping season with an overnight hike to Lions' Den last week-end, 20 members, including three committeemen, Scoutmaster DeYong, and Assistant Scoutmaster Schall making the trip in four automobiles. Assistant Scoutmaster Schall and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Ed Spinks were in charge of the cooking, including the preparation of a meal for a number of parents of the scouts and wives of the officers who visited the camp Sunday. Hiking, tree study and tracking were the principal activities, carried on under the direction of the patrol leaders. The troop committeemen acted as observers. Some of the scouts attended church at Kimmswick Sunday morning.

Mineral Area Council.

H. C. Thompson of Bonne Terre, chairman of the council Court of Honor, organized a group of Court of Honor counsellors at Hillsboro last Monday.

A joint hike with a St. Louis troop was held by Troop 1, Bonne Terre, last Sunday. The St. Louis troop is under the leadership of former Scoutmaster Clemmons of the Bonne Terre troop.

Four scouts were invested with first-class rank, four with second-class and three with tenderfoot rank at a troop court of honor conducted by Troop 2, Fredericktown, last Tuesday evening. The court was in the charge of C. L. Adams. Several parents and friends witnessed the program.

Troop 19, De Soto, held a parents' night last Thursday evening in celebration of the receipt of a new troop charter.

in the Many Conveniences and Advantages
That All Stix, Baer & Fuller Customers Enjoy

"No presentation of electrical refrigeration can be complete without Frigidaire." Believing this, we made arrangements to permit this introduction right at the commencement of the warm weather season. We are convinced that the market affords no better or more economical electric refrigerator for the home than Frigidaire. It will operate perfectly in your home, leaving nothing to be desired in electrical refrigeration.

You can depend upon Frigidaire to keep your foods fresh and safe regardless of how hot the weather or kitchen becomes. You can be sure that Frigidaire will give you great ice freezing capacity . . . superconveniences, long life and economy of operation. Then, there is no doubt about the dependability of Frigidaire. It is made by the world's largest manufacturer of electric refrigerators—backed by General Motors.

And today, first cost is no longer a reason for not buying a Frigidaire. As a result of economies in manufacturing costs due to increased demand and large volume, Frigidaire prices have been materially reduced. For these and many other reasons, we want you to visit our new Frigidaire Section on the Fifth Floor and see the new models on display.

EAST ST. LOUIS SERVICE CAR DRIVER SEEKS INJUNCTION

A petition for an injunction was filed in the City Court of East St. Louis yesterday by Joseph L. Arado, East St. Louis service car driver, asking that members of the Illinois Commerce Commission, other State officials and local police be restrained from interfering with his operation of a service car. Judge William F. Borders will hold a hearing on the bill tomorrow.

The petition states Arado has filed an insurance petition for the protection of passengers with the Secretary of State and has a driver's license as provided by law, but does not have to have a certificate as a public carrier from the Commerce Commission, as he does not operate over a "fixed route."

Arado states he was threatened with arrest during the last week in a joint campaign by State enforcement officers and local police to compel service car drivers to comply with State regulations.

Roosevelt Gets Sample of Hospitality in the Islands.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, May 8.—Theodore Roosevelt, new Governor-General of the Philippines, had a sample of Filipino hospitality when he called, alone and unannounced, at a farm hut near the tip of the Island of Luzon.

He asked the housewife how many eggs her hens were laying. She told him none at all, but handed him a native coin worth 10 cents and said he could buy some in the next village. The Governor was on a combined hunting and inspection tour and was attired in rough camping garb.

Woman Counterfeiter Sentenced.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 7.—Miss Lee Mollis Liebowitz of New York was sentenced in Federal Court here today to serve five years in the Federal Woman's Prison at Alderson, W. Va., on a charge of passing counterfeit money. District Attorney George Jeffrey said she had passed one of the best counterfeit $10 bills he had ever seen.

TWO OF SIX TRIED FOR CRIME CONVICTED

Three Acquitted of Felonies, One Freed on Demurrer —Other Cases.

Six Negroes were tried in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court last week on felony charges. Three were acquitted, two convicted and one freed on demurrer.

Leyton Payne, charged with murder in the first degree in connection with the fatal stabbing of Mandel Glatstein, fur broker, who was assaulted and robbed by three Negroes in 1930, was adjudged not guilty at his third trial. In two previous trials Payne got life sentences, but obtained new trials. A co-defendant, Dan Evans, received a life sentence in the case last week after his third trial. He has filed a motion for a new trial. A third defendant was acquitted at his first trial.

A. D. Gray, charged with robbery under the Henry law, was found not guilty, as was Jesse Hood, charged with assault. Van Harrison, who was charged with uttering a bogus check, was freed on a demurrer.

A jury convicted Louis Walker and John Gordon of robbery under the Henry law, and they received 10 years in the penitentiary.

Ed Loving, Negro, who held up two street car conductors on different days, received concurrent terms of 10 years. Elwyn J. Piel got seven years for holding up the office of the Pralle Bakery Co.

Others who entered pleas of guilty and their punishment, follow: James C. Menees, assault to kill, two years; Ross Cross and Lawrence McKinley, burglary, two years, Algoa Farms; Harold Le Resche, grand larceny, two years, Algoa Farms; Robert Mays, larceny by trick, two years; William M. Coker, assault to kill, six months; Willie Mitchell and Vincent Shelton, carrying concealed weapons, 50 days; John Giles and William Perry, petit larceny, 60 days; E. Clark Bobbett, drawing check on bank in which there were insufficient funds, 92 days; William Suggs, assault to rape, eight months; Lawrence Williams and Ralph Yarber, petit larceny, four months; Earl Chapman, larceny of motor vehicle, six months; Tollis Edwards, petit larceny, six months; Frank Jones, larceny of motor vehicle, 90 days; Carter C. Hockaday, obtaining goods by false pretenses, one year.

France Dickerson, operating automobile without owner's consent, 30 days; Charles J. English, larceny of motor vehicle, six months; Thomas Ivory, larceny of motor vehicle, 60 days; Adolphe Bostelman, petit larceny, 90 days; Harry Keller, driving motor vehicle when intoxicated, three months, paroled; James Brown and Eugene Cummings, petit larceny, year; Horace Steenburgen, petit larceny, four months, and John D. Pope, uttering forged instrument, four months.

Troop Notes

seined several hundred fish from a drying pond, and released them in a nearby creek, as a troop good turn recently. The scouts also served at a banquet.

Belleville Area.

A new patrol was organized at the last meeting of Belleville 6, Humboldt School, under the leadership of Patrol Leader Norman Goldberg. Patrol Leaders Frederick Stock and John Raab were re-elected.

Patrol Leader Quentin Wenzel demonstrated a telegraph set he had made at the regular meeting of Belleville 8 at Bunsen School, April 27. Scout Leo Munie was awarded 85 points for a wren house he has built and turned in at the preceding meeting. Troop Committeeman Walter Muendlein gave each Scout a package containing all parts necessary to assemble a motor.

The Bob White Patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest being staged by Belleville 16, Presbyterian Church Hall.

Belleville 10, Henry Raab School, held an outdoor meeting a week ago Thursday at a grove of trees about two miles from the school.

A hike to practice events for the Belleville Field day was held by Belleville 12, St. Paul's Church, a week ago yesterday. The troop also practiced a knot-tying relay and Skin the Snake at the preceding meeting. Plans for an individual and an inter-patrol contest were made, and several tests were passed.

SLIM CHANCE OF VOTE ON CASH BONUS PLAN

Supporters, Beaten in House Ways and Means Group, to Appeal to Rules Committee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Supporters of the cash bonus plan today began a movement for a summer session to keep the proposal alive.

"The bonus issue is dead this session," said Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, after he filed a report, signed by 13 members of the Ways and Means Committee. The report recommended that the Patman bill for $2,400,000,000 new money issue to redeem veterans' certificates "do not pass.'

That made it virtually certain that the bonus will not be taken up at this session if Congress quits before the conventions.

Bonus sponsors replied: "Henceforth the slogan will be: A vote to adjourn is a vote against the bonus."

In voting against the bonus, members of the Ways and Means Committee reaffirmed an adverse ballot of 15 to 10 on yesterday, thereby taking the most drastic parliamentary course for strangling the legislation.

Only one faint hope remained for a House vote before the national political conventions in June—a decision by the Rules Committee giving the rejected bills a special legislative status.

Representative Patman (Dem.), Texas, said he would appeal to this committee, but Rainey predicted that "the Rules Committee isn't going to approve it."

Patman said the fight would continue, and added: "It would not surprise me if the President changed his mind and indorsed the bill within the next 30 or 60 days. Purchasing power must reach the masses of the people in some way."

Chairman Collier and Representative Crisp (Dem.), Georgia, Representatives Ragon (Dem.), Arkansas, and Lewis (Dem.), Maryland, who voted with the majority of 10 Republicans, will file special reports, and some other minority reports also are expected.

Gist of Majority Report.

"The proposition seriously presented," the majority report said, "is that we start the printing presses to working and print additional money. * * * At the present time we have outstanding currency to the amount of $5,400,000,000. This would amount to an immediate inflation in our currency of almost 45 per cent. * * *"

Rainey said the impression seemed to prevail that Congress, in creating the $2,000,0000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation, "has authorized the donation to the banks and railroads of this enormous sum of money."

"We have appropriated $500,000,000," the report continued. "The R. F. C. is not making any donations. It is loaning money for the purpose of saving from destruction solvent banks and solvent railroads. * * *.

"Patriotic citizens throughout the country and newspapers ought to correct the erroneous impressions which are going out with reference to the operation of the R. F. C. * * *"

CHILDERS HERE, SEEKS BACKING IN RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Kansas City Lawyer One of Four Candidates for Democratic Nomination.

Grover Childers, Kansas City lawyer, who several months ago announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor, arrived in St. Louis yesterday looking for supporters. He will speak today in two churches.

He never has been active in statewide politics and such support as he may have is exclusive of party leaders known throughout the State.

So far there are four candidates for the nomination, Francis M. Wilson of Kansas City, State Senator Russell L. Dearmont of Cape Girardeau, the Rev. James Delk, an itinerant preacher of Sullivan, and Childers. The support of party leaders is divided between Dearmont and Wilson.

DEVOUT HINDU LEAPS INTO FIRE

Perishes With Figure of Rama Clasped to Breast.

By the Associated Press.

ALLAHABAD, India, May 7.—Death in a fire of holy sandalwood was the method which Rangaswami Iyengar, prominent Hindu of the Tanjore district, chose for "reaching heaven."

Iyengar, a devout Brahmin, went to a neighboring village to visit his 12-year-old wife and while there began to teach devotional dancing to the villagers. He prepared a deep pit, in which he lit a fire. Chanting Hindu hymns, Iyengar danced around the flames several times, and finally flung himself into the pit with hands crossed and with a brass figure of Rama, the Hindu god, clasped to his breast.

The estate of Samuel Leathe, who died Jan. 30, is valued at $199,162 in an inventory filed yesterday in Probate Court. Mr. Leathe, who was 72 years old, lived at 3835 De Tonty street. He was the son of the late Samuel H. Leathe, capitalist.

Wives or Relatives of Nine Missouri Congressmen Placed In Lucrative Government Jobs

Nepotism, Which Congress Has Just Refused to Forbid, Can Add $5000 a Year to the Family Income—Even Party Leaders Do It.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 7.

THE drive for governmental economy has again directed attontion to the large proportion of Congressmen who have relatives on the official payroll as clerks in their offices. Some of these relatives do the work for which they are paid, and some of them are merely paid.

In some instances the entire $5000 annually alloted to a Congressman for clerk hire is absorbed by members of his family. This means a $15,000 income for the family.

Nine of the 16 Missouri Representatives and one of the Missouri Senators—Patterson—practice or until recently have practiced this form of nepotism in some degree. Four of the eight Kansas Representatives fall within the same category.

The joint proportion for the two states—something over one-half the membership—hold good for the whole Congress, though the exact number could only be determined by a canvass of the 531 Senators and Representatives. In the annual official reports on the expenses of Congress, the employment of relatives by members is carefully veiled. The names of the employes are there, but not in connection with the names of the members who designated them. It is possible in many cases, however, to gain the requisite clue through a study of the rolls, for the surnames of the Congressmen are liberally sprinkled through the list of clerks. Newspaper men are refused access to the payroll records.

Wife Uses Maiden Name.

Various other difficulties are encountered by inquirers. The case has been uncovered of a Congressman who carried his wife on the payroll in her maiden name, and the Post-Dispatch has learned that M. T. Barton, who receives $2500 a year, is Mrs. Marietta Tweed Barton, the wife of Congressman William E. Barton (Dem.), of Houston, Mo. Congressman Barton, who is serving his first term in the House from the Sixteenth District, is a former Circuit Judge. He said yesterday that his wife worked daily as a clerk in his office and was there at the moment the inquiry was made.

There is no intention here to single out Mr. Barton for criticism. He is one of many who employ their wives, and in some instances they do efficient and faithful work. Mrs. John N. Garner, for example, has been for a long time the hard-working and capable secretary to her husband, the present Speaker of the House.

The rank and file of Congressmen who place relatives working or non-working, on the payroll can point if they wish to the example set by some of the outstanding leaders. As has been disclosed in a recent series of articles by the United Press, Speaker Garner, in addition to his wife, carries on the payroll his son Tully Garner, who lives in Texas; Senator Fess of Ohio, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, sponsors the payment of a Governmental salary to his daughter-in-law, in Ohio; and Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the Senate, has three relatives on his clerical staff—his nephew, who works regularly in the Senator's office here; his elderly mother-in-law, who is listed as an assistant clerk, and his brother-in-law, a bank president, who is the Senator's "contact man" in Arkansas.

The "Contact Man."

The employment by Congressmen of "contact men" in their home states is not unusual. In defense of the practice it is stated that these men (or women), who are variously listed as clerks or assistant clerks, actually do clerical work of a Governmental nature, even though they are absent from Washington.

Senator Roscoe C. Patterson (Rep.), has a son, R. H. Patterson, on the Senate roll as an "additional clerk" at $1800 a year. Senator Patterson said in reply to an inquiry that his son was a regular worker in his office when his "health permits."

M. A. Romjue (Dem.), of Macon, First District, has Lawson Romjue, his son, as his secretary at $2500. Congressman Romjue's son does the office work for which he is employed, and part of the $2500 salary, the Congressman said, goes to the employment of an extra stenographer.

The office work for Ralph F. Lozier (Dem.), of Carrollton, Second District, is performed by his son, Ralph Lozier Jr., at $3600, and the latter's wife, at $1400. Congressman Lozier explained that his son had been his secretary ever since he came to Congress and that Mrs. Lozier Jr., had been with him for several years. She and young Lozier were married about two weeks ago. Congressman Lozier said the clerical work of his office was so heavy that he had personally paid out $400 this year for extra help.

Relatives Recently Removed.

Jacob L. Milligan of Richmond, Third District, the assistant Democratic whip of the House, recently removed his wife, Mary K. Milligan, from the payroll. The last published report of the Clerk of the House, for the fiscal year 1931, showed her receiving $100 a month for clerical services.

Miss Peyton Dickinson has long been the secretary to her father, C. C. Dickinson (Dem.), of Clinton, Sixth District. She receives $3800 for managing his office.

Part of the clerk hire allotted to W. L. Nelson (Dem.), of Columbia, Eighth District, goes to his father-in-law, W. J. Boschert of Bunceton Mo. He is on the payroll for $3200. Congressman Nelson, explaining the arrangement, said this money was kept in a separate account and was used to hire additional help whenever necessary. None of it, he said, was retained by him or any member of his family.

The last published report showed Lola M. Williams receiving $3400 from the Government and Merle L. Williams $1600. These are the wife and daughter, respectively, of Congressman Clyde Williams (Dem.), of Hillsboro, Thirteenth District. Williams said that his daughter was taken off the payroll "some time ago" and that his wife was still a working member of his office staff. "It's going to remain that way," he added. "The arrangement is efficient, and everybody in my district knows about it."

James F. Fulbright (Dem.), of Doniphan, Fourteenth District, said that his son James W. Fulbright, who had been his clerk at $3600, was taken off the rolls the first of this year.

Alma W. Manlove, wife of Joe J. Manlove (Rep.), of Joplin, Fifteenth District, is on the list at $3500 a year. Manlove said the fact of her employment had been raised against him in two campaigns, but without effect, since everybody in the district knew that Mrs. Manlove was constantly as "busy as a bee" with duties in connection with his office. Russia as a Magnet for Workers From Other Lands

Most of Immigrants to Soviet States Have Come From Germany and Adjacent Countries, but Thousands of Americans Have Joined Them—Hope of Adventure an Apparent Lure.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 30.

An American bricklayer who went to Russia showing natives how to increase the amount of daily construction work—an increase of 50 per cent in the number of bricks laid.

EVERY new country attracts pioneers—adventurous spirits, discouraged at the lack of opportunity at home, who feel that a new country will give them another start in life.

Soviet Russia, a new industrial country, is today attracting so many pioneers that the Commissariat of Labor has established a Bureau of Immigration with the influential Michael Borodin at the head. From the United States last year approximately 10,000 persons, about 85 per cent of whom were American citizens by birth or naturalization, went to live in Russia. A larger group went from Germany. Smaller groups went from Austria, Hungary, Finland and Sweden.

In 1930 the Amtorg Trading Co., the Soviet commercial agency in New York, had 100,000 applications from Americans seeking work in Russia. At one time applications arrived at the rate of 1000 a day, and although Amtorg has not hired American workers for Russian service for several months the applications now average over 100 daily.

The present writer, after the Post-Dispatch had published his series of Russian articles last fall, received at least 50 letters from persons who wanted to know how to get jobs in Russia. That series did not paint a comfortable picture of Russian life as judged by middle-class standards.

Statistics have not been compiled regarding the number of foreigners who remain in Russia, but Amtorg officials say that the number of those now returning to the United States is small. Many Americans who went to Russia on one, two or three year contracts are said to have arranged with the Russian management of industries to remain at their work.

Motives of Job Seekers.

The Americans who have gone to Russia during the past three or four years have been divided into three classes: (1) Comparatively highly paid engineers, employed by American firms with "technical assistance" contracts for the design, construction or operation of large industries; (2) skilled workers, who became foremen or superintendents of small plants or divisions, and (3) adventurous and sometimes reckless young people who went to Russia on a lark. The second—the largest group—supplies most of the Americans who plan to stay in Russia indefinitely.

Amtorg officials estimate that 6000 American workers were in this class last year. The agency itself sent more than 2000, many of whom took their families with them. The remaining 4000 went over "on their own," or had friends in Russia who arranged their employment.

Many went over on cheap tourist tickets and announced in Moscow that they were without funds for the return journey. This created a serious problem for the Government, as the housing shortage in Moscow is acute. It was to meet this situation primarily that M. Borodin was made head of an immigration bureau.

The Amtorg agency in New York has announced several times that it is inadvisable for American workers to go to Russia unless previous arrangements for employment have been made. The agency adds: "Practically all foreign workers and engineers now being engaged in Soviet industries accept employment on the same conditions as corresponding Russian employes, including payment entirely in Soviet currency." The last phrase is important, because it is difficult if not almost impossible to change the Soviet currency into American dollars. It is against the law to carry Soviet currency out of the country, and if it is carried out, a rouble, nominally worth 52 cents in Russia, will be found to be worth only from 5 to 10 cents in Warsaw or Berlin.

One-Seventh Native Born.

The present Five-Year Plan at its beginning disclosed to the Soviet Government the need of foreign help. The present world-wide depression supplied the urge to foreign workers to go to Russia. Americans were given first choice because the industrialization of Russia is expected to be along American lines, and, so far as praticable, with American-designed machinery.

When Amtorg had more than 100,000 applications from Americans the officials selected those with the highest training. In no case were Americans accepted unless they had had experience in American industry. About 15 per cent of those who were sent by Amtorg last year were native-born, and most of the others were Europeans who had emigrated to the United States, 5, 10 or 20 years ago—Rumanians, Poles, Bulgarians, Germans, Hungarians, Finns, Swedes. Preference was given by Amtorg to the workers who were organized in groups of 10, 15 or 20. Amtorg called this "organized immigration," because every worker left the United States with the guarantee of a job and a place in which to live.

These skilled workers and the others who went to Russia on their own were scattered from the White to the Caspian Seas, from Minsk, near the Polish border, to the Sakhalin Island, north of Japan.

The workers were machinists, miners, railroad men, bricklayers, carpenters, farmers, fishermen. Over 800 American mechanics were distributed in the automobile plant at Nizhni-Novgorod, the tractor plants at Stalingrad, Chelyabinsk and Kharkov, and the steel works at Magnetogorsk. Several hundred former American workers went to the lumber camps in Karelia; more than 350 construction workers, mostly carpenters, bricklayers and concrete workers, went to various construction jobs throughout the Union; about 100 workers were sent to the mines and metallurgical plants in the Ural mountains, and several hundred tractor operators and repair men found jobs on the State and collective farms.

Consideration for Yankees.

In many instances wives went into office work on construction jobs, and in a few cases, they attended schools to prepare themselves for technical positions. In isolated communities the children attend Soviet schools, but in Moscow there is a separate school for the children of American specialists.

The writer knows from his own observation that Americans, even those who are paid in Soviet currency according to Russian standards, receive better accommodations than Russians or other foreigners. They get larger apartments—if apartments are available—and have better food. Russian officials make no secret of this. Their explanation is that the Americans have a higher standard of living and will not or cannot do their best work unless they are adequately housed and fed. Americans who have dollars or other foreign currency can have the best the country affords through the Torgsin shops—that is, shops in the larger cities where roubles are not accepted.

The more isolated the community, of course, the more difficult the living. Americans and Germans, however, are usually sent to the new developments where apartment houses are built at the same time as the industrial plants.

J. H. Freyn, president of the Freyn Engineering Co. of Chicago, who makes annual visits to Russia to inspect the work of his engineers, recently gave a detailed picture of how his men live at the Kuznetsk project in Siberia.

"The administration at Kuznetsk, headed by a highly educated, fairminded and forceful Red manager," said Freyn, "is going out of its way to make living and working conditions of the Americans as pleasant and comfortable as possible.

Community Dwellings.

"A spacious hotel—built of well-caulked logs, according to the local custom and style, equipped with a kitchen, dining room, social hall boasting an excellent piano, baths and simply but comfortably furnished individual bedrooms—houses the bachelors and the grass-widowers. Married engineers and technicians and their families live in artistic log apartment houses, equipped with simple modern conveniences. These buildings eventually will encircle a large open space serving as a recreation and playgrounds for the Americans.

"Good substantial meals, prepared in the hotel kitchen, are served in a large, pleasant dining room decorated with living plants, curtains, bric-a-brac and pictures. Married men and their families may have hot meals served in the apartments from the hotel kitchen, but their apartments are equipped with kitchens and other appurtenances for private housekeeping.

"Opportunities for outside amusement are extremely limited. There are moving picture places, of course, but they present largely educational films showing the 'old and the new,' propagandizing the Five-Year Plan, and they are over-crowded and generally uninviting."

That is a picture of the most favored group of Americans. The skilled workers, such as those at Kharkov, Stalingrad and Nizhni-Novgorod, live in apartments with the higher paid Russians and Germans. They enter more into the industrial and political life of the community. Since every worker is entitled to a vote, regardless of nationality or citizenship, they can take part in political meetings. According to Amtorg officials, several Americans have been elected to local Soviet governing bodies.

One Man's Experiences.

Russian officials say, however, that Germans adapt themselves quicker to Russian conditions than Americans. Amtorg officials who have lived with Americans and Germans in Russia explain that for some reason the Germans learn the Russian language sooner than American workers and are less clannish.

The Moscow News, weekly newspaper printed in English, discloses that American workers take an active and serious interest in the building of Soviet industries. Files of this newspaper kept by Amtorg contain scores of letters from American workers about working conditions and how they can be bettered.

By BENITO MUSSOLINI,
Premier of Italy.

ROME, May 7.

IN these times of great industrial stress, and especially after the Great War which absorbed the spiritual and material resources of nations, we are often called upon to face the problem of what should be done with the returned soldier.

Though it is 14 years after the conflict, times have been so uusettled that the claims and contentions of the former combatants are constantly being brought before the attention of the Governments.

Of course, as in practically every governmental problem, there is a lot of demagogy as well as a lot of justice.

Much confusion has arisen as to whether the state, having called their citizens to army service, then had to reimburse their soldiers as did medieval rulers their hired mercenaries. I think we have, however, traveled far from the medieval mercenary idea, and when today citizens are called to the colors for defense of their own land they should not, nor do they feel, that there is a contractual relation between themselves and the state in that they are to be reimbursed for their services.

If in this modern age we claim that the individual is part of the state, as is claimed in so many constitutions and statutes, there is a decidedly corresponding duty on the part of the citizens toward the state and its collectivity of individuals, which is in turn a duty to himself.

War and the Citizen.

The state is then not so much the taskmaster as it is the magnified protective parent which musters all its sons for the defense of the domestic hearth. That is to say, this defense is necessary as a collective whole for the salvation of the state, and hence is necessary for the individual's defense of his own fireside. It is a defense of his family and himself.

There has been too much demagogy about which class suffers the most. In these days of conscript armies, when the nation musters its sons without regard to their station in life but with special stress on their capacity to serve as fighters, we have arrived at a just valuation of the service required from each citizen. Since we conscript our armies we do not make a distinction between rich and poor, peasant and prince, and the cry that only the proletariat are made cannon fodder for the enemy is disproved decidedly.

The modern state calls for everyone, and the rich boy lays down his life as well as the poor boy. And in the demagogic claim that the poor do all the dying we forget the great middle class, which has given so much of its intellect and ability to all great causes. They suffer just as well in war or peace and do not raise the cries of lament which come from other sections of the body politic.

Today in the great world depression this class is suffering as much as any class and perhaps, as a whole, somewhat more acutely than the rest.

Tribute to Middle Class.

The middle class is the great custodian of intelligence. We are witnessing a great crisis in the intellectual classes of the whole world. The so-called "white-collar man" is meeting hard times, while all the rest are raising cries of distress. The great intellectual public continues to bear burdens and waits for days of return to plenty.

There are so many millions of them today in each nation of the world that it may be well to ask whether our social fabric is not somewhat over-balanced with a surplus in the intellectual class, and whether the pendulum of academic training has not swung too far, giving a top-heavy social organization with a corresponding impoverishment of the laboring classes. However, in this discussion of the claims of class we know that the intellectual stratum paid its full share and is entitled to worthy consideration.

The Italian Government has exercised a noteworthy benevolence toward returned soldiers. It has, however, been extremely careful that its efforts to provide for the well being and employment of ex-combatants shall be governed by the same standards we have adopted in meeting the general problem of unemployment. All our work must be productive. When the funds of the state are paid out for any state or semi-state enterprise, it must be conducted in such a manner that Italy will reap its harvest from participating in the enterprise.

Big Reclamation Projects.

This was especially noticeable in the efforts that were made for returned soldiers in providing plots of land where they can cultivate and develop the ground. Our reclamation schemes release large acreages from time to time on which we can settle thousands of war veterans. These reclamation schemes are located all over Italy. The largest is in the Pontine Marshes where the ex-combatant association acquired a stretch of 80,000 acres for use of its members. It was my privilege to inaugurate cultivation of this land recently. At a given signal, 100 tractors traveled over the land, opening it for cultivation.

This development for returned soldiers comprises but one-third of the development of the Pontine Marshes, which cover nearly 150,000 acres. In time, this vast plot will be rescued from the swamps and will accommodate 50,000 people in the work of cultivating it.

A new city will spring up in the midst of the swamp lands and we hope that with other developments along the same line we shall be able to give Italy an independent wheat supply. This is what I meant by productive work. We do not find work for our unemployed just for the sake of finding work. We provide them with employment that it may be capital properly exploited and able to give adequate returns over a reasonable lapse of time. The work assigned to ex-combatants on the Pontine Marshes had more than assured this result.

The Younger Generation.

Our land reclamation schemes are a campaign in themselves. They are a campaign to restore to cultivation vast stretches of land which lie dormant in marshes or rocky soil and which by draining or other systems can be brought to cultivation. The swamp lands have been the breeding ground for malaria and this we are gradually stamping out. It is this in turn that makes land reclamation a campaign. It is not undertaken without its share of sacrifice, but the good it will bring to future generations will be abundant.

It is true that such gigantic schemes, even though they require thousands of men, can not include that great body of "white-collar workers," of which I have already spoken. This particular class we try as best we can to absorb in Government service, and we have made it a condition that where the capacity of two applicants for a position is equal the preference shall be given to the ex-combatant. Our war cripples, war blind, and orphans and widows, we have

A New "Day."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OVER a century ago, one of our leading poets called this "a world of words," and our world today is rapidly filling the world's calendar with special words for special days: Independence day, Armistice day, etc., etc. All these days, however, take us back to the past, and another poet tells us to "let the dead past bury its dead."

Today we sorely need to consider live issues. The return of prosperity is what the whole world is longing for, looking for, and groping to find some way to achieve. One step in that direction is suggested by the very name of a newly appointed day. May 18 is to be hereafter known and observed as "World Good Will day."

Our own United States is this year commemorating Washington's bicentenary, and World Good Will day, if successful, means the attainment of Washington's "first wish," to see "that plague of mankind, war, banished from the earth."

Nor is world good will so wholly unthinkable and impossible in these days of interdependence of nation on nation. Independence, isolation and nationalism have failed to save the world from impending bankruptcy and present distress. These having failed, it surely is well to remind ourselves, at least on one day in the year, that world good will may succeed where isolation and ill will have failed in aught but to spread fear, suspicion and hate.

Approves Pension Editorial.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I FREQUENTLY have been pleased to compliment your editorials privately. "Stop the Pension Raid," printed May 4, gives me an opportunity to compliment you publicly, if you will print this letter. It is a rare thing, in these days of organized graft, privilege and plunder, to discover so fearless an opinion as that editorial expresses. I have clipped it and pasted it on the door of the locker in the shop where I am employed, so that, twice a day or oftener, I may be reminded of the existence of a courageous, outspoken public servant.

GEORGE P. LISCHER.

Mr. Hay and Jeffersonianism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I DESIRE to make a few comments on a letter that appeared recently in this column in regard to Mr. Hay's fitness.

Anyone has a perfect right to support Hay, but I challenge his right to do so on the ground that Hay is a Jeffersonian Democrat. To support prohibition, one must repudiate the principles of democracy so ably championed and advocated by the learned Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson plainly told us that our liberties could not be safe if we enacted any legislation of this character. He very ably outlined and championed a course for us to pursue in order to keep our liberties safe. Prohibition ignores Jefferson's advice and doctrines, and for anyone to claim he is a Jeffersonian Democrat and then support prohibition is to contradict himself.

It was said Mr. Hay demonstrated his fitness by announcing that he was prepared to commit himself to a policy of resubmission. Mr. Hay's kind of resubmission is that when two-thirds of Congress pass a measure to submit this question, he will then favor resubmission. Sure he will under these conditions, because he could not help himself.

If Mr. Hay desires to prove that he is sincere in what he says, he should announce that he will be among the two-thirds that will vote to give the people a chance to repeal the eighteenth amendment. Not until then will he have a right to term himself a Jeffersonian Democrat.

LARRY SHERMAN KENT.

Provision for the Unfortunate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WISH to express the conviction that failure to provide necessary city services to the poor, the sick, the insane, the feeble-minded and the old, would inevitably cause death, disease, disaster, delinquency and crime.

The immediate results of lessening our already too meager program of help would be intolerable. The ultimate results would be many times more costly to the city in money, as well as in human values, than would suitable provision at this time.

We need and desire public economy. But we also need to stand by our lawmakers in their determination to protect those who cannot help themselves and for whom private charity is unable to provide.

W. S. FORD,
Vice President, St. Louis Branch,
Missouri Welfare League.

Presaging a New Day for Labor

A Senate committee report which may prove the starting point for a program of far-reaching social import is that of the special committee on unemployment insurance. After studying the subject for a year, Senator Wagner, the minority member, and Senators Glenn and Hebert, the administration representatives, have come to conclusion that the states must enact legislation requiring employers to set aside funds to be used in caring for the unemployed during a slump in trade. These Senators have, moreover, decided to issue an official call to that effect.

That Senator Wagner would declare for some such plan to prevent human suffering because of unemployment was to have been expected. As a pioneer in Congress in favor of the systematic care of the jobless, he has made a name for himself. The Hoover administration has treated him shabbily, but in the eyes of those who place human welfare above partisan politics, he has carried on a work that will grow with the years. That old guardsmen like Senators Glenn and Hebert should consent to a report calling for compulsory state action is a surprise. It shows growing realization that the problem propounded by the machine must be solved.

While there are minor differences between the views of the minority and majority members, there is agreement on the major proposition. Senators Glenn and Hebert, who voted the latter into the committee chairmanship, which should have gone to Senator Wagner, since he proposed the study, now stand with him in saying that industry and business must assume responsibility for unfortunate situations which they create. The committee contends that neither Federal nor state governments should be required to contribute to a systematic plan of unemployment relief, but that it is up to employers to pay into a state agency a proportionate share of their earnings, to be drawn on during depressions.

Under the plan of the committee, the only Federal legislation would be a law permitting employers to deduct funds set aside for unemployment reserves from the sums upon which they must pay Federal income tax. Since legislation providing for these reserves would deal with employers in various states, where a variety of conditions exist, its nature and extent would be left to the states. This is as it should be. Only through freedom of experimentation in the states as laboratories can the most suitable system be found.

When Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin, a member of the Commission on Industrial Relations under President Wilson, made a study of voluntary out-of-work benefits in 1920, he found that of the 111 national organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, only the Cigar Makers' Union was known to have a national system of unemployment insurance. The idea, however, had made considerable progress elsewhere before that time. The Swiss city of St. Gall introduced compulsory unemployment service to the world in 1894. Although the administration was defective and the system did not last long, the trial opened the way for experiment in other countries.

The Ghent plan, established in the Belgian city in 1901, by which a municipal subsidy shared in the creation of the reserve fund, fared much better. Spreading through Belgium, it was soon adopted in some form or other in many cities in England, France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Switzerland and Finland. Prof. Commons, in reviewing the operation of the various kinds of social insurance, long ago found compulsory insurance the problem's solution.

At the present 17 European nations have unemployment insurance systems, eight of which are compulsory and nine of which are voluntary. Owen P. White, in an article in the current issue of Collier's, which sadly shows up the American shortcomings, says that it is simply a case of Europe's having advanced farther than the United States in the matter of social responsibility.

Mr. White's charts indicate that 81 per cent of the workers in Germany are insured against unemployment, while Great Britain is a close second with insurance for more than 75 per cent. Austria, with insurance for 54 per cent; Denmark, with insurance for 22 per cent, and Italy, with insurance for 18 per cent, all are found to be far ahead of the United States, which has insurance for but 250,000 out of 48,000,000 workers, or for one-half of 1 per cent.

That the United States will sooner or later fall in line is indicated by the increasing interest shown by American groups. On their recent return from a study of European systems, three officials of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. reported in part:

"There is a responsibility resting upon industry to devise an efficient mechanism on its own initiative for the provision of security against the major risks of life rather than to wait until the state is forced to step in. This responsibility of industry can be briefly stated. Reserves must be built up out of contributions of employers, or employes, or both, which shall be readily available for distribution to those employes, or their dependents, who meet with adversity through unemployment, illness, accident, old age or death."

Certain of the arguments for systematic care of the unemployed cannot be questioned. Without it, as we see on every hand today, jobless men and women must either suffer privation or seek charity. A reserve created by the industry in which the unemployed man belongs would tide him through such a period without objectionable features of charity aid. At present the employer who would care for the men he has been forced to lay off is put to a decided disadvantage by the selfish employer who has no such interests. Compulsory unemployment insurance would remove the competitive advantage of the latter employer.

That not only business but agriculture and all other industries stand to profit by the benefits of unemployment insurance is obvious. Sustained purchasing power will help all. Furthermore, just as workmen's compensation laws have brought countless safeguards to industry and lessened the accident hazard, so, it may be argued, would compulsory insurance tend to lessen unemployment.

Outstanding among unemployment insurance authorities is Sir William Beveridge, who has concerned himself with the problem in England for a quarter century. He went to the nub of the situation in the United States in a recent statement quoted by Mr. White. "The problem of unemployment," said Sir William, "is unsolvable by any mere expenditure of public money. It represents not a want to be satisfied but a disease to be eradicated. It needs not money so much as thought and organization, and how much harder it is to change men's habits and open their minds than to slit their purses—how much harder and how much more important!"

Early this year, the State of Wisconsin, outstanding pioneer in the field of social legislation, enacted the first state compulsory unemployment insurance law. The report of the Senate committee will give impetus to this movement. At last, in the field of industrial relations, the United States is preparing, as Senator Wagner put it, "during the sunshine to withstand the rain."

What history will record is the opening of a door to richer benefits for human life.

The Silver Illusion

In his recent speech, Senator Borah of Idaho ventured a solution of the world's present distress. He believes that restoration of prosperity is dependent upon raising the value of silver, adjustment of reparations and lightening of the burden of armaments.

Whenever the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee speaks, the world listens. From his views regarding the burden of armaments and the evil from the uncertainties of reparations there will be little dissent. But in seeking for an explanation of our present difficulties in the low price of silver, Mr. Borah is a victim of that confusion of symptoms and causes which is so easy in discussions of monetary problems.

He repeats the familiar notion that the purchasing power of the Orient has been destroyed by the decline in the price of silver. Attractive as this idea may be, it forgets the fundamental axiom of international trade that the purchasing power of a country is determined, not by the size of its monetary unit, but by the value of the products it sells abroad. It is not with silver but by the export of goods that China pays for its imports. China, like India, has for many years been a net importer of silver. The statistics of our exports and imports give no support to the "diminished purchasing power of the Orient" thesis. Our trade with China increased in relative importance during the past year.

The popular idea, re-echoed in Mr. Borah's statement that the purchasing power of the Orient "has been completely destroyed", evaporates in the face of the facts. The belief that prosperity follows the price of silver finds very uncertain support in monetary history. For example, between 1896 and 1902 the price of silver was falling, yet the world was recovering rapidly from the serious depression of the early '90s. In the past 15 months, while world conditions have grown steadily worse, the price of silver has risen slightly. Nor does the difficulty seem to result directly from a shortage of gold. The world's business is much less than three years ago, yet the monetary stock of gold is steadily increasing.

Why has gold piled up in the United States and France? Tariffs, governmental debts contracted in the past 10 years, and until recently war debts and reparations, have fostered this movement of gold. Political and economic instability has encouraged the transfer of foreign balances to France and the United States. The crushing burden of taxation has contributed to a general feeling of uncertainty throughout the world. A solution of these problems would do much to remove the monetary symptoms of our distress.

Senator Borah did well to point out the almost insufferable burden on debtors from the huge volume of gold obligations contracted before 1929. The attempt to settle these debts at the present level of prices would bring general bankruptcy in its wake.

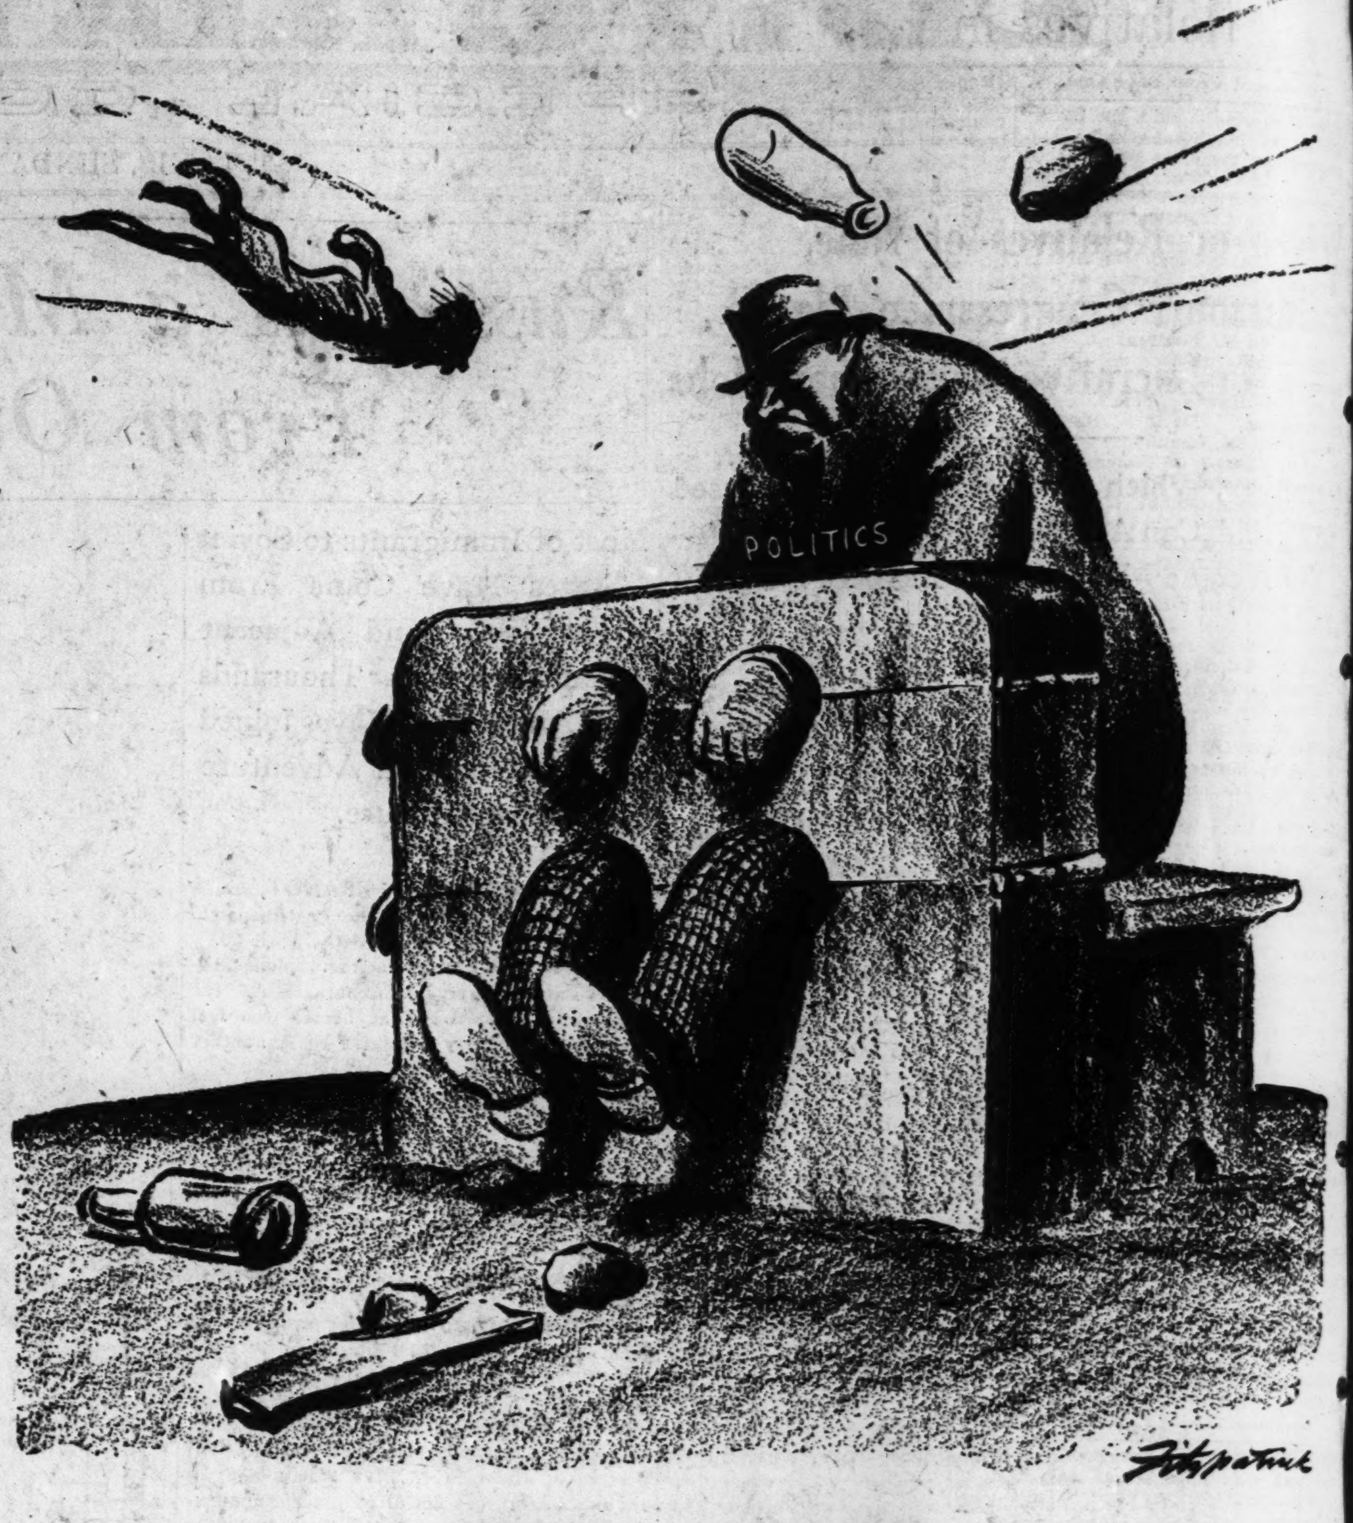
How can debtors find relief? Several courses are open. The simplest way is through a rise in the price level on the basis of our existing monetary systems. The present policy of our Federal Reserve Banks, with their extensive purchases of securities in the open market, and their low rates on discounts and bankers' bills, is directed toward this end. Other ways are by the issue of inconvertible paper money, the reduction of the gold content of the monetary unit, or finally by outright default. If milder methods are not successful, growing electorates of embattled debtors will probably demand relief through more radical measures. Australia, most of South America and several of the countries of Europe have already sought this way out. Though this gives release from the present burden of debts, it does not remove the causes which have brought about the disastrous collapse of values, nor does it insure against similar collapses in the future. In the removal of causes lies the task of statesmanship.

The Murder of President Doumer

Paul Doumer gave his life in serving his country, just as did the four sons he mourned. They, soldiers of France, were victims of war's destruction. He, President of France, was a victim of post-war turmoil. As nominal head of the nation, this elder statesman, waving aside the customary bodyguards, became the prey of a fanatic to whose warped brain the President's removal seemed a necessity. It is a tragic end for an admirable career. Born in poverty, M. Doumer rose by his own efforts, became legislator, colonial administrator, Minister and finally President, holding the while the respect of all parties.

The political assassin's bullet rarely changes modern world history, as the plotter fondly dreams, and this murder is marked by unusual futility. The President of France is largely a figurehead. He is prominent in parades and at reviews, a gracious host at state functions, and his removal does not alter the policies of the Government. To change that, it is necessary to get rid of the Cabinet, and the result of today's run-off elections for the Chamber of Deputies may bring that about.

Dr. Paul Gorgolov, the assassin, seems to be a Russian "white," a faction that has found unusual support in France. Thousands of emigres live in exile there, plots against the Soviet are constantly being hatched in Paris, and the Government's policy has long been anti-Communist. The non-aggression and trade pacts, made last fall, have opened commercial relations between the two countries, but Soviet Russia remains far from popular in French official circles. The assassin's action discredits his own party, which had received French hospitality. It adds to the tension in Europe at a sorely troubled time, and wantonly removes a distinguished citizen of France.



WASHINGTON'S PUBLIC ENEMY.

A World Without War

Glowing picture of peaceful, prosperous world in 1957 painted by writer on premise that mankind will solve its problems rationally; foresees end of war and armaments, based on confidence that other nations will unite against disturber; predicts tariff revisions on international scale; stable world currency can be developed.

Sir Arthur Salter, British Economist, in the Listener, Organ of the British Broadcasting Corporation (Reprinted from the Living Age).

BEFORE attempting to see what world government will be like in 25 years, if we assume that it will develop as it should, I must emphasize that this is, of course, a doubtful assumption. The world may fail for long to come to secure the kind of government it needs. Nationalism may oppose too strong a resistance.

We may have for a long period a constantly increasing clash between national frontiers and world trade. We may have many years of confusion, friction and unnecessary loss. We may fail to avoid the shattering disaster of another great war. Even if that is avoided, we may live under a perpetual sword of Damocles; we may fail to obtain the basis of confidence and security upon which alone the activities of the world can find their natural and normal development.

The forces that make on the one hand for world government, in which national governments shall take their proper place, and on the other hand for the continuance of competing nationalisms without the restraint of any wider authority, are not unequal. The balance, indeed, is so even that all of us have the greatest possible inducement to throw our weight upon the right side. The future of the world and of every country depends upon whether the balance finally turns in one direction or the other.

• • •

But let me for the moment assume the best and look into the future on that assumption. How will world government, then, be working in a quarter of a century?

If for 25 years we have successfully avoided a great war and have been making progress in eliminating the causes of war, the whole character of future international discussion will probably be different.

During the last 13 years, everything has been dominated by the embittered national feeling inflamed by the late war, and everything has turned upon a number of embittered disputes resulting from the treaty settlement. Perhaps many of us have come to regard such disputes as those about Danzig, or the Polish Corridor, or the frontier between Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia, or the connection between Austria and Germany, as the normal substance of the life of the world. Happily, they are not that.

If we can only progress as we should in the next 25 years, all these special disputes will have disappeared into history, and many of the embittered feelings that they have both expressed and caused will have disappeared with them. National rivalries and ambitions will still remain, but they will be more and more like the rivalries and ambitions between two counties or two states in a single country. They will be of the nature of healthy competition rather than of dangerous friction.

After a long period of peace and successful working of the peace system, each government and the public of the world will feel confident of the maintenance of peace, will take it for granted that if any single country should threaten war, the rest of the world will unite against it. With this confidence, one country after another will feel that this is the main factor in its own national security. More and more it will feel able to reduce its armed forces to the character of police forces to maintain national order.

As each country gives effect to this conclusion, others will in turn feel more confident and be encouraged to proceed along the same path. We shall then have a reversal of the process that brought us the last disaster and still threatens another. We shall have a friendly competition in disarmament instead of an embittered competition in arming.

With confidence so assured, the first essential condition for economic development's finding its fullest world range will be established. The savings of one part of the world will flow quickly, easily, cheaply, and above all regularly, in fructifying streams, wherever they can produce the richest results. This, however, is only the first condition. If the right of national governments to create national armed forces no longer threatens world peace as it does now, there still remains to be dealt with the second sovereign right—that of erecting tariff barriers.

I do not myself contemplate the complete abolition of all tariffs. They are, and are likely to remain, a convenient system for raising revenue to the extent to which they are not protective; they may also in certain cases be of use as a considered counterpart of general policy to secure certain social purposes. But the great difference will be that world tariff policies will be reasonably stable, and will be a definite part of a considered policy, both national and international. It will be recognized that changes, when they are required, must be made after prolonged and careful discussion of the international consequences involved.

In a word, future tariff commissions will not be just national but international. Those who are heard before a decision is taken will be not only the different classes of industrialists or consumers in a single country, but the representatives of all the countries on whom any proposed new tariff will react. The officials concerned will regard it as just as normal and inevitable a part of their procedure to discuss any proposed new policy with the corresponding officials of other countries as they now do to discuss it with the representatives of other departments in a departmental committee in their own country.

The specialized committees at Geneva dealing with economic, financial, social, legal, colonial and other questions will no longer be merely advisory bodies attempting with varying success to influence national governments to exercise the real power; they will be an integral and a central part of the real mechanism of the government of the world. And then, at last, on a basis of secure confidence and peace, and of stability in commercial policy, the way will be clear for the world to devote its real efforts to achieve positive progress.

Let me give a few examples only of what can and should be done. The world's official government at Geneva, side by side with an enlarged and developed international bank, can give the world a stable and satisfactory currency system, an inestimable advantage for the development of world trade. It can similarly develop a code and a tradition for foreign lending that will stop reckless borrowing and irresponsible lending, will reduce the risk of loss to the investor, will prevent savings from being wasted as they now are, and will direct them in fertilizing streams where they are most needed and will be most useful.

Upon such a securely established foundation of world government, man will at last be able to reap the fruits of nature's riches and of his own increasing skill and knowledge. The last quarter of a century has given us more power over nature than all the previous centuries of recorded history; the next quarter of a century may well do as much or more.

If these present and future resources of knowledge can be used in a world purged of war and of the fear of war, can find full scope in free and secure world markets aided by a single stable currency on a protected credit system, the general standard of living can be increased beyond all present imagining. The world can establish a point beyond which individual luxury and extravagance shall not be allowed to pass, and a level below which individual human comfort shall not be allowed to fall; and this level can be such that every man will have both the necessities and the reasonable luxuries of life, and adequate leisure to enjoy all our rich heritage of culture and civilization.

Veterans' Relief Justice

From the Cleveland Press.

A PROGRAM of remedies for abuses in veterans' relief, now costing the taxpayers a billion dollars a year, was offered by Talcott Powell, special writer for this newspaper, at the conclusion of his recent series of articles.

It is a sound program to which necessity and the sense of justice of the American people will compel the attention of Congress. The program:

Raise the compensation payments of men clearly injured in service to a permanent degree, providing they need the money.

Raise the payments to widows, children and dependent parents of men who really did die for their country in the World War.

Remedy the abuses in the emergency officers' pension law.

Compensate only for service-connected disabilities.

Hospitalize only for service-connected disabilities.

Eliminate absurd congressional presumptions of what did or did not happen in the World War or when it ended or what a man's physical condition was when he entered the service. Depend instead upon competent medical opinion.

Place war risk insurance upon the same business basis that obtains in a private company, with the exception that the Government shall make no profit out of its soldier insurance.

Treat the veterans of all wars alike.

Make the economic situation of the veteran a controlling factor in any benefit he receives from the taxpayer.

Create a permanent standing Senate Veterans' Relief Committee whose members will specialize in veterans' legislation. No such committee now exists. Such a committee would not only result in more intelligent veterans' legislation, but would make it possible for the public to fix responsibility.

McGugin said the money paid to his wife was used to hire extra stenographers, and that she was now working in his office without compensation.

In the recent debate in the House on the omnibus economy bill, Congressman Grant E. Mouser (Rep.) of Ohio, moved an amendment to prohibit Congressmen from alloting clerk hire to members of their own families, unless the latter were actually employed in Congressional work.

"There are members of Congress," said Mouser, "who have clerks established back home looking after the fences, who have nothing to do with the official business of the office. We are now asking Federal employes to make sacrifices. Is it right that members of Congress should divert that money for their own selfish purpose?"

Mouser called particular attention to the disclosure that "a distinguished member of this Congress had on the payroll his aged mother-in-law, who was not doing anything in connection with the office."

Notwithstanding the limited scope of the amendment, with its exemption of relatives who actually do congressional work, it was voted down by 88 to 40.

The result indicates there is no chance for the bill introduced this week by Congressman John R. Mitchell (Dem.), Tennessee, which would prevent a Congressman from appointing any relatives within the third degree of kinship to a position in the legislative branch of the Government.

"It is no surprise," said Mitchell, "that a tax-ridden people should look on Congress with suspicion and distrust as long as the members themselves insist upon engaging in a species of graft and racketeering by practicing nepotism. It is indefensible and inexcusable. I know this bill will not pass, but I know it is meritorious. The time has come to call a spade a spade."

The bill will not pass, but the agitation out of which it grew is already having a perceptible effect. There has been a significant number of separations of relatives from the congressional payrolls in the last month, and more are in prospect.

Russian officials point out, however, that in addition to the actual wages, the Russian worker has benefits rarely found in American industries. These include more security of employment, shorter hours, longer vacations with pay, free medical treatment and old age pensions. These benefits are called "socialized wages," and are claimed to add from 20 to 30 per cent to the rouble wages.

Amtorg officials hope that the suspension of hiring American workers is only temporary. They point out that with the drop in Russian purchases in the United States and the increase of purchases in Germany, the natural tendency is for the Soviet Government to prefer German workers who are familiar with German machinery.

It should be remembered that Amtorg's purchases in the United States in 1931 amounted to only $51,232,000, a drop of 55 per cent in comparison with 1930 and 47 per cent in comparison with 1929. Agricultural equipment accounted for only $3,498,000 of the total purchases, whereas in 1931 these purchases amounted to $60,820,000.

Purchases in Germany increased from $135,000,000 in 1930 to $219,184,000 last year, an increase of 62.3 per cent. Credits granted by Germany last April was responsible for about $100,000,000 of these purchases.

During the first quarter of 1932, purchases in the United States have slumped terrifically. Total purchases in this country during the three months' period amounted to only $2,056,000; in the same period in 1930 they were $18,962,000, and in 1929, $31,258,000.

Now for Second Plan.

The Second Five-Year Plan, which is scheduled to start early next year, would offer large opportunities to American manufacturers and American workers, according to Amtorg officials, if arrangements could be made for Russia to buy American machinery.

The Second Plan calls for concentration on lighter industries which produce consumers' goods. When it is well under way, the pioneers, Russian and foreign, whose lot is none too easy now—according to Western middle class standards—will be more pleasant and if the Communist theory is correct, there will be greater immigrations to the new industrial country.

Mussolini on Question of Soldier Bonus cared for in institutions and by pensions.

At the same time, while the returned soldier is entitled to his share of consideration, we are now in a period 14 years from the war. A new generation is gradually forcing itself into the social organization. Men up to 32 years of age are entering the body of the state as citizens. Should these be denied their opportunities just because they were not of the generation which fought the war? They would have been just as ready to shoulder a rifle as their elder brothers, but they were not called upon. Hence, while the merit of the country's defenders is without question, we must not forget that justice demands that our new citizens should not be denied their right opportunity.

As to Former Enemies.

Italy has persistently tried to liquidate this aftermath of the war. In this particular regard she also did not forget the soldiers of her former enemies when conquered territory was annexed to Italy and they became Italian subjects. We also have undertaken to care for war cripples among our former enemies now left within our borders. This is another proof that when Italy takes an international step she makes that step in the supreme interest of international restoration.

Our combatants first owe their duty to the State. In the great interest of the whole they were called to give services and even their lives. This was a sacrifice demanded for the wellbeing of all and even down to the family of the individual.

While it was a duty to the State, a benevolent Government recognizes the merit of the service accomplished and, in compliance with its policy, by achieving the welfare of all achieves the welfare of all its defenders.

STOCKS SHOW SHARP RISE FROM BEAR CYCLE LOW

STOCK PRICE TREND	Sat.	Fri.
No. of advances	145	400
No. of declines	170	81

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7. — The stock market, seemingly almost wholly under the domination of Washington developments this week, took fresh courage when President Hoover cracked the whip over Congress in effort to speed the vexatious taxation and economy measures.

Liquidation had already showed signs of drying up, and the administration's militant stand evidently found the market's technical position ripe for a rally. At any rate, the list experienced its sharpest upturn since mid-February on Friday, and held up well under profit-taking and hangover liquidation at the close of the week.

Uncertainties as to what interests, industries or businesses are to be called upon to bridge the huge Federal deficit through new taxation have been one of the more disturbing influences during the past several weeks, in the opinion of leading bankers. The latest slump in the market, starting in mid-March, has concluded fairly generally with the taxation snarl.

The latest phase of liquidation, however, had appeared to be definitely on the wane for the past several days. Nevertheless, prices drifted to new lows during the early days of the week. Selling was in meager volume, but buyers were timid.

Before the turn came, price averages drifted to new low levels for the 2½-year slump. Industrials, as measured by one leading price average, declined to the lowest since 1921, while another widely quoted average reached a level only a shade above the low of 1914, which in turn was the lowest since 1907. The rails penetrated levels for which there is no parallel in modern times. For some time these equities have been at the lowest levels since the 1890s, and one statistical record indicated the lowest level for leading carrier shares since the turbulent 1870s.

Sharp Rebound on Friday.

The Friday recovery in the stock market was helped along by U. S. Steel's announcement of a 15 per cent wage cut, but the rally was well under way before this news appeared. The economies which the big corporation effects by the wage reduction, it was unofficially estimated in Wall street, may not pull the corporation out of the red unless business improves.

Passage by the House of the Goldsborough bill directing the Federal Reserve System to endeavor to restore commodity prices to about the level of 1926 was apparently misinterpreted in some quarters abroad, where there has been a disposition to believe that the United States is ready to take the plunge into monetary inflation. At any rate, this factor, together with seeming inability of Congress to balance the budget, brought heavy selling of the dollar in foreign exchange markets, and a fresh outflow of gold from New York.

The outflow of gold was viewed calmly, inasmuch as the supply of excess metal has been greatly increased by the Glass-Steagall act, and is now approximately $1,300,000,000, or far in excess of estimated short-term foreign balances here. It was notable that there was no active foreign dumping of American securities.

The Standard Statistics Co. price index of 90 leading shares rallied 3.3 points on Friday, reaching 48.4. This was the sharpest gain since mid-February, when the Glass-Steagall measure, strengthening the banking position, was accompanied by a 10-point gain in two sessions. The price index ended the week at 47.7, up 1.4 from a week previous. The price index of 60 corporation bonds ended the week at 64.7, or 1.2 below the level of the previous Saturday.

Firm Undertone Saturday.

Although the rally in stocks was halted by week-end profit-taking today, the existence of a generally firm undertone suggested that encouragement given by budget news from Washington was still a constructive market factor.

There was a little selling in the first half hour and again at the close. Early losses were quickly recovered, but when leaders pushed above Friday's final prices, further realizing sales appeared, especially in industrials and utilities, and small net losses were the rule. Rails, however, held up well. Sales totaled 639,949 shares.

The late sag may have been influenced in part by concern lest the House Ways and Means Committee reverse yesterday's unfavorable report on bonus legislation. The market closed before it was learned that the previous decision was to stand. However, technical influences seemed to be dominant.

Major fractional declines for American Telephone, United States Steel, General Electric, Case and Woolworth were slightly exceeded by a few stocks, including American Can and Allied Chemical, on the other hand, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake & Ohio closed firmly. New York Central and Union Pacific lost about half a point. Standard of New Jersey and Pan-American Petroleum "B" maintained the good record being made by the oils.

Some other steel producers followed the leadership of United States Steel Corporation in cutting wages and salaries. One question brought up by these reductions is whether fresh pressure will now be brought to bear on prices, or whether renewed price cutting will make its appearance, but it was reported that manufacturers were determined to maintain present quotation schedules on finished materials.

Steel operations at the beginning of next week, according to advance estimates, will be unchanged on the average, although there is considerable irregularity as among the various districts.

The coming week will bring comparatively few important dividend meetings. Among them, however, are those of Union Pacific, Eastman Kodak and Atlantic Refining.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

SPECIAL ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Total sales today on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to 639,949 shares, compared with 1,628,700 yesterday, 439,480 a week ago and 1,157,350 a year ago. FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 7. — Continued buying prevailed on the Boerse today and prices were firm, with slight reactions at the close.

LONDON, May 7.—Stock exchange was closed today.

PARIS, May 7.—The Bourse will remain closed on Saturdays until next November.

Gold Stock Changes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Gold transactions reported today involved a further loss in the country's monetary stock, through an increase of $6,997,800 in earmark account. The decrease was reduced to $6,058,000 due to offsetting imports of $117,800 from Mexico, $21,000 from New Zealand, and the receipt at San Francisco of $801,000 from Australia.

Urges Oil Output Cut.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Further curtailment immediately of oil production was urged upon the producing states in a formal statement issued by the oil states Advisory Committee.

WEEK'S METAL MARKETS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Although the trend of steel production was slightly higher for the first week in May as a result of moderately improved buying of automobile sheets, official figures for April just released showed average production at 22.52 per cent of capacity, the lowest since July, 1921.

Production schedules vary considerably with districts, reflecting the effect of miscellaneous orders. Buying by railroads is restricted. Announcement of a 15 per cent wage cut by large steel corporations was made. Pig iron production in April declined 8.9 per cent from the March average. Demand continues limited at unchanged prices.

Copper remained dull although an easier undertone developed as metal became available through a custom smelter source at 5⅝c, while others adhered to a nominal quotation of 5¾c for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut valley. Moderate foreign buying tapered off, when London and the domestic price eased without a corresponding decline in the export quotation. Home consumers remained indifferent.

Tin advanced sharply when cabled reports were received indicating that the international tin committee proposed to reduce member production to a basis of 40 per cent with additional drastic summer curtailment. The release price of surplus holdings would be advanced to £200. Slight reactions from the highest occurred after moderately improved demand tapered off.

Moderate buying of lead continued at steady prices, although demand tapered off toward the close. With sellers well booked, there was no pressure to sell.

Zinc eased further as consumers restricted interest to carload lots. April statistics revealed that despite decreased production, stocks increased as a result of smaller shipments.

TURPENTINE FLAX AND LINSEED

Linseed oil in one or two barrel lots was quoted at 7.7c per lb. for raw and 8.1c for boiled.

DULUTH, May 7.—Flax on track $1.30⅝@1.32⅝; May, $1.29⅝; July, $1.25½; Sept. $1.24⅛.

SAVANNAH, May 7.—Turpentine firm 30⅝; sales 196; receipts 1063; shipments 113; stock 7682. Rosin firm; sales 767; receipts 1154; shipments 333; stock 170,623. Quote: B $1.00; D $2.05; E $2.30; F $2.60; G $2.80; H $2.85; I $2.90; K $3.05; M $3.60; N $4.30; WG $4.40; WW $4.55; X $4.55.

Dry Goods Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Cotton goods were slightly firmer today and sales were slightly improved. Finished goods were quiet. Silk goods are selling very moderately. Rayon prices are irregular. Burlaps were unchanged. The easing in raw wool led to uncertainty among fabric buyers.

TO DISCUSS FOREIGN OIL SITUATION WITH RUSSIANS

NEW YORK, May 7.—C. E. Arnott, president of the Socony-Vacuum Corp., today announced that forthcoming conferences with Russian oil representatives would be for the purpose of ending demoralization in foreign oil markets.

"For some years past," he said, "Socony-Vacuum Corp., operating in foreign markets, has made purchases from time to time of Russian oil products. The Russians have additional supplies available for export, with the result that a considerable duplication of distributing facilities had taken place, resulting in a general demoralization of the foreign markest outside of the United States, and a meeting will be held for the purpose of determining whether or not some understanding may be reached with a view to correcting this general demoralization."

Mr. Arnott emphasized that the conference would confine its discussion to the economic distribution of petroleum products produced in Russia and distributed in markets outside of the United States and its possessions. He made it clear that the conferences would in no way have any connection with production, prices or imports into the United States.

The statement is the first that Mr. Arnott has made with regard to the discussions which have aroused keen interest in oil circles throughout the world.

The Soviet delegation is headed by Phillip Rabinovich, member of the Russian Commissariat of Foreign Trade, who formerly worked in a Chicago metal shop, but left this country to enlist in the red army during the Russian revolution. K. Riabovolz, and R. N. Fridman, also leading figures in the Russian oil combine, are also members of the delegation.

Other prominent oil men who are expected to arrive here next week for the world oil peace conference are J. B. August Kessler, representing the Royal Dutch interests; William Fraser of Anglo Persian Oil and Robert L Watson of the Burmah Oil Co.

General Tire Once Made Offer to Fisk.

AKRON, O., May 7.—William O'Neil, president of the General Tire & Rubber Co., disclosed today that his company had initiated an offer to take over the holdings of Fisk Tire Co.

O'Neill said that negotiations were not now under way, however, because of inability of the companies to agree upon a price.

The two Fisk plants, the main one of which is at Chicopee Falls, Mass., have a production capacity of about 20,000 tires each.

While declining to comment of any of the various reports dealing with the financial aspects of the proposed deal, O'Neil said that negotiations may be resumed again despite the disagreement over price.

For several months, General has been reported as a possible buyer for Fisk but nothing was heard until today.

Republic Steel to "Adjust" Wages.

CLEVELAND, May 7.—Republic Steel Corporation "will make a general adjustment in wages and salaries on the same general plan as announced by the other leading companies," Tom L. Girdler, chairman and president, said today.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7. — Dollars were somewhat easy against leading foreign exchanges today. Most European currencies returned small gains which maintained the gold monies above rates at which further shipments of metal would be profitable. French francs improved slightly, together with the belga and the Swiss franc, but Dutch guilders were off a point. Sterling closed ⅝ cent higher at $3.67½.

BONDS SHOW QUIET STRENGTH MOST OF DAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The bond market again gave a quiet exhibition of strength today despite a wave of profit-taking near the close of the session which washed out substantial gains in a number of issues.

The average of the principal listed loans, however, held their gains of yesterday. Trading was comparatively quiet in the corporate groups, sales totaling $5,650,000, par value.

United States Government obligations repeated their ascending performance of Friday, although they did not close at the top quotations of the day. Most of the treasuries recorded net gains of around one-half point while the Liberties were moderately higher.

Low-priced railroads showed gains. Advances from 1 to 5 points were recorded by some liens of Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Chicago & Alton, Denver & Rio Grande, International Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Wabash.

Oils and communications company loans were conspicuous among the industrials and utilities. Strength was shown by bonds of American Telephone, Western Union, Columbia Gas, Dodge Bros., Goodrich, Humble Oil, Mercantile Marine, Metropolitan Edison, Morris & Co., Phillips Petroleum, Shell Union Oil, Sinclair Oil and Utah Power & Light. Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s gained 6 points following the company's wage reduction announcement.

The foreign section was comparatively steady. Colombians were strong, as were loans of Dutch East Indies, Brisbane City, New South Wales, Austria and Ontario Power Service. French bonds eased only slightly following President Doumer's death.

IRREGULARLY LOWER TREND ON THE CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The Curb market lost some of its vitality today with the result that, in comparatively quiet trading, stocks ended the short session with minor minus signs predominating.

The irregularly lower trend was generally attributed to profit taking. The turnover approximated 90,000 shares.

Some oils and a few utilities continued to exhibit quiet strength, but most of them failed to hold their high prices of the day. Standard of Indiana was the most active of the petroleum group, finishing with a net gain of ¼ of a point. Fractional advances were also recorded by Standard of Kentucky and Humble. Gulf Oil gave up ⅞ of a point.

Electric Bond & Share succumbed for a loss of 1½ points. Niagara Hudson Power held to its previous price.

The various industrials were mixed. Swift Internacional closed at its high for the session with a gain of ⅜ while Swift & Co. added ¼ of a point to its previous quotation. Ford of Canada "A" and Ford Motor Ltd. both advanced moderately.

COTTON MARKET STEADY, SMALL CLOSING CHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Demand tapered off following a further advance at the opening today and cotton reacted later in the morning under comparatively smaller offerings, with July selling down from 5.90c to 5.82c and closing at 5.84c. The general market closed steady, with prices net unchanged to 1 point higher. Spot quiet, mids 5.90c.

The opening was steady at an advance of 6 to 9 points on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement which included some trade and commission house buying as well as covering, promoted by the more favorable view of the Washington news. The advance to 5.79c for May and 6.16c for October, over approximately half a cent from the low levels of last Monday, seemed sufficient to attract considerable week-end realizing.

This supplied the early demand and the market later sold lower under comparatively small offerings which may have included some scattered selling on the development of rather an easier tone in the grain and stock markets, and the outlook for favorable weather in the South. May declined to 5.71c and October to 6.06c, but closing prices were a shade up from the lowest on renewed covering.

The failure of buyers to follow up the early advance more aggressively, no doubt promoted the tendency to take profits for over the week-end or pending further developments in Washington. Trading was fairly active at the start, but the volume of business tapered off later in the morning, leaving the market sensitive to small orders. Houses with continental connections were among the buyers here early, while there was a little selling believed to be for Far Eastern account.

Some Southern selling was also reported but advices received here from Texas said there had been an improved demand for spot cotton at the ports late yesterday, with the basis generally firm.

The Liverpool market just about met the advance reported here yesterday afternoon. Private cable reported trade calling, cover and local buying supplied by realizing in that market. Sales of fertilizer tag sales in the 13 Southern states for the month of April were said to be 77 per cent of last year's, and for the four months January-April 60 per cent of last year. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at U. S. ports was estimated at 107,000 bales against 61,000 last year.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

Orders, factory productions and other business items.

By Standard Statistics Co., Inc.

NEW YORK, May 7.

(Comparisons in earnings are with corresponding periods previous year. In sales statements see detailed reports for change in number of stores, if any, on comparative dates. Also for special charge-offs etc., if any).

Complete railroad earnings figures for the first quarter indicate that the carriers have benefitted but little from the 10 per cent cut in wages and the advance in freight surcharges. Net operating income for 167 class one roads during the three months period decreased 39.2 per cent from 1931 quarter while gross revenues diminished by 22.8 per cent. It is estimated the wage reduction saved these carriers about $15,000,000 in February and a similar amount in March.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation participates in 12,000-ton rail and fittings order of Great Northern Railway; reduces wages and salaries 15 per cent, effective May 15.

Inland Steel Co. participates in 12,000-ton rail and fittings order of Great Northern Railway.

McCrory Stores Corporation April sales off 9.4 per cent, four months off 0.07 per cent.

Pacific Coast Co. net operating income after depreciation and depletion, but before interest, quarter ended March 31, 1932 $24,412 vs. net operating deficit $27,061.

Walgreen Co. April sales off 16.5 per cent; four months off 10.2 per cent.

Western Auto Supply Co. April sales off 26.8 per cent, four months off 19.7 per cent.

Van Raalte Co., Inc., declared back dividend of $1.75 on first preferred stock, payable out of surplus.

General Motors Corporation April Chevrolet production totaled 55,432 units vs. 38,890 units in March; output since introduction of new model exceeds 260,000 units.

Melville Shoe Corporation April sales off 27 per cent, four months off 17.2 per cent.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Market commentators have said many times in the last year or so that the stock market is practically on a cash basis, meaning that brokers were borrowing very little to carry their customers' margin accounts. This statement appears to be amply borne out by the ratio of Stock Exchange member borrowings against collateral as of May 2. With the ratio at 1.87 per cent, a new low, it is estimated by the market observers that most of the speculative business in stocks is being financed by the brokers with their own money.

A total of $25,282,661 bond offerings by 38 municipalities is scheduled for next week, according to the Daily Bond Buyer. In the week just ended municipal offerings totaled $24,292,428.

A New York Cotton Exchange membership sold today at $10,000, a decrease of $1000 from the previous sale.

Stuart W. Webb, who has been acting as head of Pathe Exchange, Inc., for the past year since the resignation of E. B. Derr, has been elected president, it was announced today. His title heretofore has been executive vice president.

The value of heavy engineering contracts awarded throughout the United States in the first week of May totaled $22,658,000, or more than $1,000,000 under the weekly average valuation in April, according to the "Engineering News-Record." The average weekly total in May of last year was $54,458,000.

Production of lumber continues to run at about one-half the volume of a year ago, according to the Lumber Manufacturers' Association. For the week ended April 30 the cut totaled 121,565,000 feet, with orders exceeding it by 11 per cent and shipments by 24 per cent.

Silver futures on the National Metal Exchange, Inc., closed the week at slight gains and substantially above the low levels of the period. New York spot silver recovered ⅜c an ounce from the week's low level of 27 cents.

CORPORATION STATEMENTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7—McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. and subsidiaries report for the quarter ended March 31 net loss of $100,427 after taxes and charges, compared with net profit of $373,022, equal to 6 cents a share in the first quarter of 1931.

The report of the Brill Corp., controlled by the American Car & Foundry Co., for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, shows net income from all sources of $260,614 after taxes and other charges, equal after preferred dividends to less than 1 cent a share on 217,288 no par shares of class "A" stock. This compares with $330,362 or 32 cents a share on the class "A" stock in 1930.

The Duke Power Co. and subsidiary utility companies reports for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, net income of $4,958,778 after taxes, depreciation and interest, compared with $6,017,512 in 1930.

A net loss of $560,788 was reported for 1931 by the Foundation Co. compared with net loss of $3663 in 1930. Foundation Co. Foreign, a subsidiary, for the year ended Dec. 31 reports net profit of $24,319 after all charges.

Index of Agricultural Exports

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Although falling off slightly from February, the March index of agricultural exports—111 per cent of the pre-war level—duplicated the January figure and was higher than any March index since 1927.

Brisk foreign sales of cotton, the Agriculture Department said today, held the index figure up. With cotton eliminated, the index was 79, a new low monthly figure.

Wheat exports made a substantial gain in March over recent months. The index was 79 as compared with 73 in February and 74 in January. A year ago it was 53. All other export groups, however, fell off sharply, animal products slipping from 80 in February to 58 in March.

During the first nine months of the current marketing season, about 7,500,000 bales of cotton were sold abroad against 6,016,000 during the same period a year ago. The biggest sales were in the Orient. These have been associated with the earlier year conflict.

All principal European countries except Italy took more wheat in March than a year ago. Total exports thus far this season amounted to 106,998,000 bushels against 102,309,000 a year ago.

WHEAT FUTURES DOWN SLIGHTLY IN LOCAL TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 7.—Wheat largely followed the trend of securities today and closed slightly net lower. Corn also was off a small fraction.

Liverpool failed to respond to our advance of previous day, the British market closing ¼d lower. There was report of rain in Southwest. There was report of Russian buying of Australian wheat for shipment.

Rain in Southwest and West and failures of Liverpool to follow American rise of yesterday were cited in day's news. Liverpool closed ¼d lower.

Winnipeg closed unchanged to ¼c net lower.

July wheat opened at 54⅞c and July corn 32⅜c.

Local wheat receipts which were 77,000 bu. compared with 91,000 a week ago and 113,400 a year ago, included 11 cars local and 44 through. Corn receipts which were 40,600 bu., compared with 42,000 a week ago and 79,800 a year ago, included 29 cars local. Oats receipts which were 8800 bu. compared with 17,600 a week ago and 103,400 a year ago, included 3 cars and one through. Hay receipts were 4 cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady to ¼c higher. Tables held a rather poor selection and trading was a little slow. Hard wheat was nominally ¼@½c higher. Inquiry was fair, and No. 2 had 65¾c bid at the close. Corn was steady to ¼c lower. Market was rather draggy. Oats were steady. The market was quiet.

WHEAT CLOSES UNSETTLED AT A PRICE DECLINE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Keeping in step with the stock market, grain traders reversed their position late today and saw price advances more than undone.

Final dips by securities wrecked bullish sentiment.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅜@¾ under yesterday's finish; corn ⅜@¾ down; oats ¼@⅜ off, and provisions 2 cents to 7 cents up.

A transient advance in stock market quotations helped wheat to overcome an early dip that came after rain beneficial to the entire domestic grain belt. The temporary strength of securities was also more than sufficient to offset comparative weakness of the Liverpool wheat market, where yesterday's price advances on this side of the Atlantic met with little response. Wheat price gains followed.

Meanwhile, rumored Russian operations in the world wheat market aroused much interest. Purchase by Russia of Australian wheat for shipment to Vladivostok was rumored. Bulls laid stress also on a private estimate that world shipments of wheat would have to be about 17,000,000 bushels a week until the end of the crop year. Nevertheless, owing to late downturns in securities, wheat prices slipped down again before the finish.

Corn and oats tagged after wheat. Fairly heavy selling of corn was noted, and apparently Argentina was still effectively competing abroad against corn from the United States.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Raw sugar was quiet today and in the absence of business prices were unchanged at 2.58 for spots. The undertone, however, was steadier and there appeared to be nothing firmly offered below 2.60. It was reported that late yesterday another lot of 27,000 bags of Philippines sold to an outport refiner for June-July shipment at 2.64. Futures were firmer on increased covering and buying by houses with Cuban connections, influenced by a more favorable view of Washington advices, and a steadier tone to the spot market. First prices were 1 to 2 points higher in response to the firmer London cables and on reports that refiners were showing a little more interest in the spot market. Offerings were comparatively light and the market continued to advance on further covering, with the close at the best of the session and from 2 to 5 points net higher. Approximate sales 15,500 tons. May closed .54, July .62, Sept. .69, Dec. .76, Jan. .78, March .82 and next May .88. Refined sugar was unchanged at 3.75 for fine granulated with a fair inquiry reported, although still limited to nearby re quirements.

SHORT INTEREST IN STOCKS DECREASES 521,237 SHARES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The short interest on the New York Stock Exchange as of May 2 was 2,758,161 shares, a decrease of 521,237 shares from April 1.

The change was one of the largest to be reported by the Stock Exchange in recent months. It indicated that covering operations, or the purchase of stocks by shorts in order to close their commitments, had been greatly stimulated because of the Senate inquiry into short selling.

Despite buying of stocks for this purpose,, the stock market continued its downdrift throughout April. Stock Exchange figures showed a drop of $4,191,000,000 in the value of all listed shares on the "big board." Their total valuation on May 1 was $20,319,000,000, the lowest figure reported since the exchange started its present compilation on Jan. 1, 1925.

Liquidation of bank loans and selling of stocks by investors was shown by the figures to have exceeded the total of short covering purchases by a large margin.

A. N. Diehl to Head Columbia Steel

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The United Steel Corporation today announced that Ambrose N. Diehl will success to the presidency of Columbia Steel Co., its Pacific Coast subisidiary, on June 1.

Mr. Diehl, at present a vice president of the parent corporation, will follow A. T. Deforest as head of the Columbia company, as Mr. Deforest is slated for retirement on June 1, under the corporation's pension plan.

Spanish Ship Company to Discontinue U. S. Service.

By the Associated Press.

BARCELONA, Spain, May 7.—Directors of the Spanish Trans-Atlantic Steamship Co. announced today that they would discontinue service to Buenos Aires and New York because of the inability of the Spanish Government to continue its subsidy.

The last ship for Buenos Aires sailed May 5, and the last to New York today. The line will continue to serve Central America, Cuba, Venezuela and Colombia.

ZINC PRICE AT JOPLIN LOWEST IN 35 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 7.—Zinc prices slumped $2 a ton this week to the lowest price reached in the Joplin market in more than 35 years as a result of the decline of slab zinc quotations to a new all-time low. Coarse grades of zinc brought $14 a ton and floats $13.

Lead price was unchanged at $22.50 for odd lots to as high as $30 for larger tonnages.

Buyers were eagerly seeking zinc concentrates at the low price and did not complete sales until late this afternoon, producers were reluctant to part with concentrates at the low price, although the purchase was reported at 2900 tons. Eagerness of smelters to buy would indicate that consumers have no great faith in the present low price scale remaining for any length of time.

Talk was heard about a concerted shutdown of mines in the next week or so, but none of it had crystalized today. There has been considerable sentiment among producers for some time toward a drastic curtailment of production through the summer in an effort to stem the declining prices.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 8, 1932.

Prize Play Winner Is Busy

George Kaufman, Who Captured Pulitzer Award With "Of Thee I Sing," Writing Another Drama With Edna Ferber—A Word or Two About the Success of Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

EVEN though his "Of Thee I Sing" was awarded the Pulitzer Prize, George Kaufman is not a man to sit back at ease among his laurels. Already he has begun a new drama for September presentation. This one is called "Dinner for Eight," and his collaborator is Edna Ferber.

It was with Miss Ferber that Kaufman wrote "The Royal Family." As a matter of fact, he has written practically all his plays with someone helping. He has been quoted as saying that "Someone has to do the work," but, it is noticeable that Kaufman's plays are rarely failures.

Kaufman writes—with or without a helper—of timely things always and while his dramas are, more or less, the history of events today, he has not delved into past history for his subjects at all. Which, perhaps, is just as well for, compared to the number of plays written with historical personages as their heroes, the successes have been fewer than in any other kind of drama. Katharine Cornell's triumph as Elizabeth Barrett in Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," which she acts in the Shubert Theater a week from tomorrow night, recalls the many Waterloos less fortunate playwrights have met when dealing with genius behind the footlights.

THE Greeks, of course, found history a fertile field for drama. Shakspeare delved deeply into the lives of the famous figures of the past and his chronicle plays remain the most successful theatrical treatments of celebrities in the English language. In modern times, stage pieces dealing with history, which have reached substantial favor with the public, generally have been those in which one outstanding character has been acted by a player who was able to turn it into a personal achievement.

So much was Disraeli on the stage the accomplishment of George Arliss that the public sometimes still is caught referring to that actor by the name of the distinguished British statesman. The same play produced in London by another player failed quickly. Henry Irving's Louis XI and Richard Mansfield's Ivan the Terrible made reputations for the actual men as well as for the stars who brought them to the footlights. Three actresses, Lynn Fontanne, Clare Eames and Haidee Wright added to their fame by their appearances as Elizabeth of England. Napoleon and Josephine have had an endless appeal, sometimes successful, in the theater, but notably when their stage interpreters were players of sufficient talent to fill in the outlines supplied by the dramatists. Voltaire, Poe, Byron, all have come in for examination by dramatists. Though Lincoln in the English Drinkwater's play came through magnificently in both the London and New York productions, Washington as a stage figure never has been made convincing.

* * *

IT IS difficult to make genius real on the stage. Labeling a man Beethoven, as did Romain Rolland in his drama produced in the New Theater a score of years ago, conjures a person of greatness. Now, no matter how fine the writing, how authentic the incidents, how excellent the acting and exact the settings, unless the author and the actor in collaboration can bring convincing magnificence to the recreation of a historical subject behind the footlights, the play will fall short, as even a less well written and less well acted drama of fiction will not. Whether genius is imposing or not in life—and for the most part it is not—the audience, with its preconceived conception of how genius must appear, insists on being impressed by the physical and spiritual figure before it. It is not enough to say he is a genius; he must look and act like the ideal held by most people of great men. Mere spouting of verse, mere pretense at sculpting or painting, or playing of music are not sufficient. Thus, the playwright has to rely largely upon the players.

It was Arliss' personality, his expertness as an actor, which made Disraeli seem real. It is Cornell's vivid personality with its extraordinary other-worldliness coming through Besier's portrait of Elizabeth Barrett; it was Irving's strange quality and dynamic demoniac acting power in Louis XI, or Mansfield's cruel tyrannic zeal as Ivan that compelled their audiences to believe in the greatness of the characters.

* * *

THAT makeup and costume play but a minor part in this conviction is well illustrated, according to report, by the method of Miss Cornell in putting forth her Elizabeth, for she depends almost solely upon her ability as an actress and her personality as a woman to make her audiences believe in the poetess.

In this matter of makeup it is interesting that Arliss spent many days working over his appearance as Disraeli. In his autobiography, "Up the Years From Bloomsbury," Arliss' conclusion after much experiment is that the actor should not try to make himself like Disraeli, but to make Disraeli look like him.

Junior Players to Revive Fairy Play

Alice Martin and Belle Waddell are planning to revive the Junior Players, an organization of children, to produce a repertoire of plays based on the classic fairy tales.

The first play to be given will be "Hansel and Gretel," which will be put on at the Wednesday Club, Saturday afternoon, May 21. The members of the cast range in years from 3, the age of Georgie Gibson, who takes the part of Hansel, to Elizabeth Krone, the Witch, aged 14.

Musical Research Concert.

The Musical Research Club will hold its annual spring concert Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. at the Wednesday Club auditorium.

Joan Crawford In "Letty Lynton" at Loew's and In "Grand Hotel" at the Grand Central.

Joan Bennett in "Careless Lady," at the Fox.

Capella Choir Sings In Concert Saturday

The St. Louis a Capella Choir, under the direction of William B. Heyne, will present its annual concert at the Sheldon Memorial next Saturday evening at 8:15.

The choir, now in its fourth season, while specializing in choral compositions of Johann Sebastian Bach and his school, has directed its attention also to modern composers in the sacred idioms.

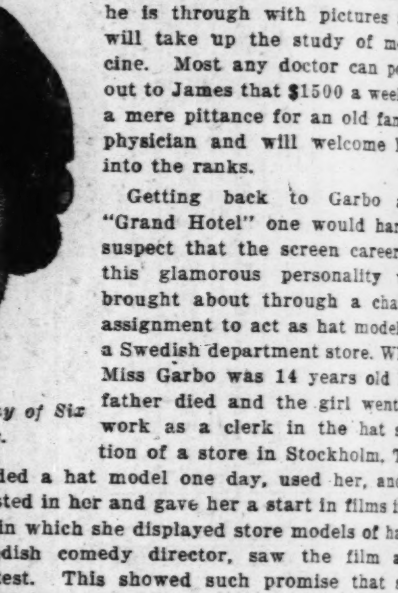
In the concert Saturday evening the choir will be assisted by Nora Rife, harpist. The program of the choral numbers range from a classic motet of Bach to modern American successes.

Garbo Talking Retirement

One of the Stars of "Grand Hotel," She Hints That She Will Return to Sweden, Where She Got Her Start in A Hat Shop—The Boys Are Taking Their Shirts Off Again in the Movies as They Did in the Silent Days.

CONTINUING the discussion in these columns during the last few weeks regarding the outbursts of temperament and other things by the movie stars it may be remarked that the Great Garbo, one of the five or more big shots in that fine picture, "Grand Hotel" at the Grand Central Theater, is not entirely in accord with the powers that be on the M. G. M. lot out in Hollywood. Greta is threatening to leave America flat on its back and return to the scenes of her earlier triumphs as a hat model in the sardine belt. Hat store models in Sweden may get the same sort of money Garbo has been drawing down out of her Hollywood films but then, again, they may not and her talk of retirement is not taken very seriously.

Another salary holdout on the Gold Coast is James Cagney, a sort of overnight sensation who is allowing a mere matter of $3500 a week to stand between him and his art. Cagney, getting $1500 every Saturday night, is demanding that the weekly insult be raised to four grand. He says if he doesn't get it—and, in passing it may be recorded here that he won't—he is through with pictures and will take up the study of medicine. Most any doctor can point out to James that $1500 a week is a mere pittance for an old family physician and will welcome him into the ranks.



Irene Dunne in "Symphony of Six Million," St. Louis.

Getting back to Garbo and "Grand Hotel" one would hardly suspect that the screen career of this glamorous personality was brought about through a chance assignment to act as hat model in a Swedish department store. When Miss Garbo was 14 years old her father died and the girl went to work as a clerk in the hat section of a store in Stockholm. The advertising manager needed a hat model one day, used her, and a Capt. Ring became interested in her and gave her a start in films in a short commercial picture in which she displayed store models of hats.

Eric Petschler, Swedish comedy director, saw the film and gave the girl a screen test. This showed such promise that she was signed to play in "Erick, the Tramp," a comedy. This picture brought her to the attention of Mauritz Stiller, then the greatest director in Sweden, and made possible her dazzling later career.

○ ○ ○ ○

GRETA GARBO'S first role for Director Stiller was Countess Elizabeth Dolin in "The Atonement of Gosta Berling." This picture won contracts with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for both Stiller and Garbo. The young Swedish actress' first American role was in "The Torrent."

When talking pictures first arrived, there was much speculation as to the effect of the changed medium on such a foreign star as Miss Garbo. She answered all these questions by turning in what was perhaps her best performance in "Anna Christie" and following this with outstandingly successful roles in "Romance," "Inspiration," "Susan Lenox, Her Fall and Rise," "Mata Hari."

Garbo's new vehicle, which she hints is her last, is "As You Desire Me," an adaptation of Pirandello's play of that name.

CAGNEY, incidentally, was getting back to first principles in his latest picture in which he appears as a box fighter for in the movies now the boys are taking their shirts off. If you happen to think that's nothing unusual then you don't know what a problem it has been these last few years making movies in which the heroes not only had to keep their shirts on, but also to wear dinner jackets and even morning coats over the shirts.

Silent pictures never had such a problem, and the talkies needn't have had if they had been more generously inclined toward silent picture actors. For in the old days a movie wasn't a movie unless it ended in a big fight from which the hero emerged triumphant, bleeding and shirtless—incidentally exposing for the admiration of the world a brawny chest. Frail heroines could cling to a frame like that and be sure of protection from villain's wiles.

Then, alas, the talkies, bringing muchly shirted heroes from the stage. Shirted? They had to be. Some had the complexion that comes from long hours in the glow of footlights, a city chest expansion and Broadway biceps.

At that, it didn't matter greatly. The drawing room drama was "in." Heroes tossed snappy dialog back and forth where they once tossed lefts and rights, and a withering volley of sarcasm was all a movie idol needed to slay a sneeringly polite villain.

○ ○ ○ ○

THE boy who really carried on the tradition of shirtlessness, however, was the screen's own George O'Brien. They say of George that only in one picture has he kept his shirt on throughout—they almost had to use an injunction to restrain him in that one, for George is proud, and justly so, of his physique.

George was lonely waving his banner, or was it his discarded shirt? Even Douglas Fairbanks and Victor McLaglen, the giant Hercules, took up boiled shirts and stiff collars for a film or two.

But that sort of thing couldn't last. Johnny Weissmuller, swimming champion, came along with a loin-cloth for costume to play "Tarzan," and Doug Fairbanks has been in Tahiti being "Robinson Crusoe of the South Seas," wearing as little as possible of a tattered old suit.

It may be a new trend back to shirtlessness.

○ ○ ○ ○

AND, speaking of old times, playing in "Scarface" a week or so ago at Loew's was one George Raft—he was the sleek gangster who was always tossing a coin in his hand—who suggests, in face and manner, the late Rudolph Valentino. So pronounced is the resemblance that Paramount has signed him up with the expectation of putting him in a series of film stories along the line of the old romances which made Valentino famous.

George Raft is a New York City boy who graduated from newspaper corners into the night clubs, and for years danced for Texas Guinan—the same Tex who's stage show, so called, was such a dismal flop at the Fox. And in between times he was a professional baseball player.

George's first intimation that he might get to Hollywood was an offer from Valentino to act as his double in silent pictures. Nothing ever came of that, though, and it wasn't until years later that he arrived in California. For months and months he got a job here and a job there, none of them very important, and it looked for a long time as though he would be just another hanger-on in Hollywood.

But somebody found George for Howard Hughes, when "Scarface" was being cast, and it was a lucky find. Lucky, that is, for George, for his pronounced hit in this one picture has sent him on the road to stardom.

Chorus Begins Work Tomorrow For Opening Of The Municipal Opera Season

WORK on the Municipal Opera season, now just a month off, really gets under way tomorrow with the start of chorus rehearsals for "The New Moon," the operetta which will open the Forest Park theater on June 6. The singing and dancing members of the chorus, selected in public tryouts last week, will get busy tomorrow afternoon under the direction of E. R. Simmons, J. J. Shubert's personal representative; Giuseppe Bamboschek, musical director; Edward Scanlan, associate stage director; William Holbrook, dance director, and Maury Rubens, assistant musical director.

J. J. Shubert, who returns for a second season as the opera's general productions manager, was picked for that post last year, after the Executive Committee of the Municipal Theater Association had canvassed the qualifications of New York's principal producers of operettas and musical entertainers.

* * *

E. R. SIMMONS, as Shubert's personal representative will serve not only in the capacity of casting director, but will have active supervision in co-ordinating the diverse units of production activity. He has been for many years the casting director of the Shubert producing organization and has personal contacts with more musical artists than any other man in the theaters of America. St. Louisans remember his first appearances here as the slim, black-haired, young pianist, who for many years was Madame Nordica's accompanist on all her concert tours.

Watson Barratt, who comes to the Municipal Opera as its scenic designer, has occupied a place in the American Theater for more than a decade. Among the notable things he has done were the last productions for Ethel Barrymore, beginning with "The Love Duel" and "The Kingdom of God" and continuing through "Scarlet Sister Mary" to the beautiful "School for Scandal" which St. Louis saw last season. Among his musical successes have been "The Last Waltz," "The Rose of Stamboul" and "Blossom Time," all of which are included in this year's Municipal Opera repertory.

* * *

E. C. LILLY, associated stage director comes to Municipal Opera direct from Ziegfeld's reigning New York success "Hot-Cha," which he directed. He has acquired a reputation as a director of dramatic productions of the highest type and has been not less successful in co-ordinating the dramatic action of many of the big musical successes including "Princess Charming" and several of the Ziegfeld Follies.

William Holbrook, dance production director, has had a unique career both as a dancer and as a producer of dances. His father, Al Holbrook, was himself a man of the theater and directed the first American production of "The Chocolate Soldier." After various attempts to fit himself into business life, the younger Holbrook made his stage debut as the front legs of "Emily," the late Raymond Hitchcock's famous horse in "Hitchy-Koo," which his father directed. It took him five years to get away from that horse's head. Every manager to whom he applied for work rated him for horse-power and, "I'd still be playing Emily" he declares, "if I hadn't sold that horse's skin to a couple of circus clowns." Meantime Emily's eccentric ambles turned young Holbrook's thought to dancing and he has appeared as solo dancer in many Broadway successes and was a dancing partner of Florence O'Denishawn and Barbara Newberry as well as Harriett Hocter, the latter being his pupil also.

Highlands to Open New Season Today

With a new free entertainment and dance pavilion policy and with a variety of new attractions, Forest Park Highlands begins its thirty-sixth consecutive season today, with all riding devices and other features in operation, except the swimming pool, which will not be opened until the weather is warm enough for outdoor bathing.

Among the new attractions are "Through the Chinese Trenches," which is announced as a realistic depiction of the Sino-Japanese warfare, and Pan-a-Ball, a combination of more than half a dozen sports. Both attractions have been worked out for the Highlands and will have their "world premiers" here. The free entertainment in the Pagoda, with 15 musicians and Harry Lange as master of ceremonies, will be presented daily.

Thyrsus Society in "Mr. Pim Passes By"

Thyrsus-Little Theater, dramatic society of Washington University, will present as its annual production, "Mr. Pim Passes By," a comedy by A. A. Milne, May 13 and 14 at the Wednesday Club. The play is in three acts with the action taking place in an English home.

In the cast will be Alex Guinn, as Mr. Pim; Carl Irwin, Vivian Guilford, Louise Kanasireff, Mary Tutle and Ruth Bowling. The play is being directed by Mrs. F. Ray Leimkuehler.

German Musical Comedy Film.

"Ihre Hoheit Befiehlt" (Her Highness commands), a musical comedy picture, will be shown, starting today, at the German Film Theater, 2345 Lafayette avenue. Kaethe von Nagy and Willy Fritsch are stars in the film.

Mitzi Mayfair, dancer, on the stage at the Fox Theater.

Dramatic League in Annual Tournament Of Single Act Plays

THE annual tournament in one-act plays under the auspices of the Dramatic League of St. Louis will be given at the Bishop Tuttle Memorial May 17, 18 and 19, when the winning group from the high school and Little Theater divisions will be presented with the Samuel French award.

The program for the three evenings includes the following plays: May 17, "Submerged," by H. S. Cottman, presented by Maplewood High School; "Old Wash Lucas," by Paul Lucas, produced by Poplar Bluff High School of Poplar Bluff, Mo., and "The Burning Light," presented by the Social Craft Players. On May 18, "Storm Before Sunset," by Willis K. Jones, will be presented by Soldan High School; "Highness," by R. Giorloff, presented by Webster High School; "High Heart," presented by Ferguson High School, and "Will O' the Wisp," by Ritenour High School. "A Game of Chess," by Alfred Sutro will be presented by the Block Players May 19, with "Two Crooks and a Lady," by Eugene Pillot, by the Swaby Players.

Webster College Play.

"Romeo and Juliet" will be presented by the Loretto Players of Webster College, at the College Little Theater, Tuesday evening. This is the annual Shakspearian production at Webster and marks the formal close of its dramatic year.

Walther League Play.

Tuesday and Wednesday night the Ebenezer Walther League Society of Ebenezer Evangelical Lutheran Church, Church road and Theobold avenue, will present "George in a Jam," a farce by Lillian Mortimer.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

LETTY LYNTON was a rich New York girl who had no father to guide her—Mr. Lynton, it seems, had an unfortunate encounter with a lady's husband who should have been in Boston but missed his train—so Letty went off to South America alone and got tied up with a hot-headed Uruguayan play-boy without benefit of clergy. Tiring of this sort of fun, Letty beats it for home and meets Robert Montgomery on the boat. You know what a fast worker Robert, is and this time, with plenty of speed and curves and a hop to his fast one he books Miss Lynton—who is Joan Crawford by the way—for a wedding party which is to be strictly on the up and up. But when the ship pulls into New York Joan's past is waiting for her at the dock, the airplane service between that city and Montevideo being what it is. Letty—Joan overlooks the fact that South American indiscretions are not considered serious by Our Set nowadays and goes into a most complicated arrangement to shush things, winding up with a sort of accidental murder which sets everything right. It's all very smartly and entertainingly told in "Letty Lynton" at Loew's this week.

* * *

Parisian Moonlight.

THE Joans, by the way, come in for plenty of mixups in the cinema palaces this week, for in another smart little picture, "Careless Lady," at the Fox, in which nothing worse happens than a raid on a speakeasy, Joan Bennett, bound for a visit to Paris, stops off in New York long enough to get caught in the raid and in the confusion finds herself in possession of a man's overcoat with his name sewed in the pocket. The police fasten it on her and so she goes to Paris, not as plain Joan Bennett, but as Mrs. Stephen Illington. Under the stars in the French city she bumps into Steve, played by John Boles, and you can guess the finish after that, although, like the other Joan in "Letty Lynton," Miss Bennett has to come back to America to wed her man, "Careless Lady" is amusing from start to finish and is backed up by a good stage show in which Mitzi Mayfair, a little St. Louis dancer, who made good in the Big City, is the headliner.

* * *

Another Retake.

THEY haven't done so well by Barbara Stanwyck with "So Big" at the Ambassador. Few of the silent films have been really successfully made over into talkies and Edna Ferber's fine story, which once served Colleen Moore in the good old quiet days, is no exception to prove the rule. Slow to get going and sketchily put together it does not give the talented Miss Stanwyck a chance to display her ability until almost the last part of the film and by that time nobody cares very much what happens.

* * *

The Song of the Ghetto.

FANNY HURST'S story, "Symphony of Six Millions," made into a picture at the St. Louis Theater this week is another "Humoresque," which was, you may recall, the saga of a musician. "Symphony" is the tale of a young physician who climbed the heights from New York's lower East Side to fame and fortune, but returned to his own people in the end to administer to their needs and take his pay in smiles and love and the culmination of an old romance. It is a great picture of a part of New York's six million and Ricardo Cortez, as the doctor, and Irene Dunne, who was with the Municipal Opera here once upon a time, as his sweetheart, are excellent. Another fine characterization is done by Gregory Ratoff who plays the physician's father, and the rest of the cast is way above the average.

* * *

Wanted, Male Help.

KAY FRANCIS and David Manners struggle with "Man Wanted" at the Missouri but even with the help of the charming Una Merkel the picture never gets very far. It's all about a lady editor who hires a gentleman secretary and discovers that she loves him about the time her own husband leaves for Paris to get a rapid-fire divorce. Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts are the stars of the Missouri's second feature, "Unexpected Husband," which isn't so hot, either.

* * *

The Toilers Arise.

To Give "American Review."

In keeping with the Washington bicentennial celebration this year, an "American Review" will be presented by the dramatic class of St. Elizabeth Academy Wednesday night. Miss G. Rowe will take the part of George Washington and a Betsy Ross group will be enacted by the Misses Stoab, Kurgas and Carney. Miss E. Schiller will take the part of Patrick Henry.

Engagements Of Two Sisters Announced

Daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter William Birge to Wed in Near Future.

TWO engagements in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Walter William Birge, 580 Park avenue, New York, formerly of St. Louis, are of interest here. Mr. Birge is a brother of Arthur B. Birge, 5501 Waterman avenue; Ernest N. Birge of Windermere place, who with his family recently returned after living in Boston for a year; J. Stanley Birge, who married Miss Jane Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford B. Allen a few months ago, and Mrs. Courtland F. Carrier, 5247 Waterman avenue.

Announcement was made a fortnight ago of the engagement and approaching marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Birge's daughter, Miss Claire Birge, and Dr. Fuller Albright of Lexington avenue, New York. The wedding will take place at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of May 20 in St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, New York. Bishop Coadjutor Frederick G. Budlong of Connecticut officiating. The bride's only attendant will be Mrs. Richard McCleahan, the former Miss Rachel Hammond, matron of honor. Raymond Albright, a brother of the bridegroom, will be best man. A reception will follow at the River Club.

Miss Birge is a graduate of Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., class of 1925, and made her debut the following winter. She is a member of the Junior League. Dr. Albright, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Albright of Buffalo, was a member of the 1921 class at Harvard University, and received his degree from the Harvard Medical School in 1924. His father was the donor of the Albright Art Gallery to Buffalo.

More recently announcement was made of the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. Birge's second daughter, Miss Grace Blackmore Birge, and Manuel J. Bon de Sousa Pernes of London and Paris, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Bon de Sousa Pernes of Paris, formerly of Lisbon, Portugal.

Like her sister, Miss Birge is a graduate of Miss Porter's School and was presented to New York society in 1928. She, too, is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Bon de Sousa Pernes attended Beaumont College and took his degree at Oxford, England, in 1929, after which he attended the Harvard School of Business Administration two years. The marriage will take place in June in the East, and the couple will live in Paris.

Engagement of Miss M'Connell Is Announced

MRS. GUTHRIE McCONNELL, 401 North Newstead avenue, yesterday announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Frances Shackelford McConnell, and Dr. Joseph Bondi Taussig, to a few relatives and friends at her home. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. A. Cyril Daldy, formerly Miss Lucelia Wakefield Taussig, and Miss Mary Taussig, sisters of the prospective bridegroom, and Miss Mary Tuttle, granddaughter of the late Bishop Tuttle.

Miss McConnell was graduated from the Hathaway-Brown School, Cleveland, and Smith College. She made her debut a few seasons ago, and served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. Her mother's father was the late Charles W. Knapp, and her paternal grandfather is the Rev. Dr. S. D. McConnell of Easton, Md., who will come to St. Louis to perform the marriage ceremony.

Dr. Taussig is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Albert E. Taussig, 5038 Washington boulevard. He is a graduate of the St. Louis Country Day School, Harvard, class of 1926, and Washington University School of Medicine, 1931. He is a grandson of the late Rev. Dr. John C. Learned, Unitarian minister in St. Louis.

The wedding will take place probably in the early summer.

Woman's Club to Hold Election Tomorrow

THE St. Louis Woman's Club season will be brought to a close with three more meetings. The annual meeting will be held tomorrow, with election of officers in the morning, and reports at a business ssession at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Felix Anderson, under whose direction the Card Committee has functioned this year, has arranged the final card day program for next Thursday, following a luncheon at 1 o'clock. This will be the last day on which members may entertain guests.

Officers will be installed Thursday, May 26, at 12:30 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock, and later Mrs. Robert Atkinson will give a reading to club members.

After a honeymoon trip to Florida and Havana, Cuba, Mr. Cullen and his bride will live in Rittman, O.

Parties for Miss Dougherty include a luncheon to be given by Miss Fink next Saturday at the Park Plaza, and a bridge luncheon and shower May 21, at which Mrs. James C. Thompson will be hostess.

Junior League Arranging for U. S. Meeting

350 Delegates, Including Group From St. Louis, Expected May 24-27 at Los Angeles Convention.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 7.

CITY-WIDE preparations are being made by the Junior League of Los Angeles to entertain 350 visiting delegates to the National Junior League convention here May 24-27. Many receptions and a visit to the motion picture studios are included in the program.

An outstanding feature of the convention will be a display at the Stendahl galleries of prize-winning exhibits from Junior Leagues in the United States, Mexico, Honolulu and Canada. The showing will be officially opened May 17 by a tea for Los Angeles society and members of the Art League, with Mrs. Lionel Odgen as chairman.

The St. Louis delegation will include Miss Alita Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, newly elected president of that chapter, and Mrs. Dalton Keats Rose, vice president. They will leave St. Louis May 21 and at Kansas City will board the Junior League special train from Chicago. A stop will be made at Santa Fe, N. M., where the delegates will be met by Mrs. John Chapple, vice chairman of the convention committee. There they will have breakfast in a pueblo and witness an Indian dance.

The train will be met here by members of the local league who will entertain the visitors in their homes. Miss Davis and Mrs. Rose will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prince Casey, the latter formerly Miss Marie Clarkson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Palmer Clarkson of St. Louis, a prominent member of the organization. The train will arrive Tuesday morning, May 24, and registration of delegates will start at once at the Women's Athletic Club, followed by a luncheon at the Bel-Air Bay Club, and the first official meeting. A fiesta banquet will be held that evening at the Biltmore Hotel.

Delegates will discuss various charitable undertakings of the league throughout the country Wednesday morning at the Ambassador Theater, with luncheon at the Coconut Grove. Delegates for the arts and interests will meet in the afternoon, then visit the Stendahl galleries. Barbecue dinners for the various regions of the Junior League will follow.

A forum will take place Thursday morning at the Los Angeles Country Club with a buffet luncheon at noon. Meetings by appointment with national leaders will be held in the afternoon, followed by dinner on the Roosevelt Hotel roof in Hollywood and attendance at the motion picture, "Grand Hotel," at Grauman's Chinese Theater in the evening.

National officers will be elected Friday morning followed by luncheon on a sound stage at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and a motor tour of movie star homes, officially ending the conference. The visiting delegates will be guests Friday evening and Saturday of the Pasadena Junior League.

Mrs. William Bradford Joyce Jr. is president of the local Junior League and Mrs. Walter Leimert is chairman of the national conference program. Mrs. Perry Howard and Mrs. John Chapple are vice chairmen of the Convention Committee. Mrs. Hans Koebig is chairman of entertainment, assisted by Mrs. Alfred Smith. Chairman of the committee to house delegates is Mrs. John O'Melveny.

Miss Davis and Mrs. Rose will arrive in St. Louis Tuesday, May 31, and the following day will give their reports of the convention at the annual luncheon of the St. Louis Chapter at the St. Louis Country Club.

June Wedding for Miss Janet Wallace

MISS JANET WHITELAW WALLACE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Brookings Wallace Jr. of the Price road, has chosen Saturday, June 11, as the date of her marriage to Dr. George Murdoch Saunders of Kingston, Jamaica. The ceremony will take place at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Wallace home, and arrangements are being made for a small wedding, with guests limited to the families and a few friends. A reception will follow. Mrs. Marion Niedringhaus, formerly Miss Grace Wallace, will be her sister's matron of honor, and Mr. and Mrs. Niedringhaus' young daughter, Gay, will be flower girl. Dr. Saunders will have Dr. Robert Schneck of Detroit as best man.

Dr. Saunders, who is associated with the research department of the Rockefeller Foundation in Kingston, will arrive in St. Louis June 4 or 5, to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace and their family. The week preceding the wedding will be filled with parties in honor of the couple.

Kirkwood

THE Kirkwood Little Theater group will present East Lynne, an old-fashioned melodrama, the evenings of May 20 and 21 at the Kirkwood Studio Guild. Miss Josephine Farrington will play the leading part, Lady Isabel, and others in the cast, with the characters they will portray, are Houston Compton, who will be Archibald Carlyle; Miss Jean Simpson, Barbara Hare; Miss Emily Boyd, Wilson; Mrs. John Jordan, Joyce; George Weston, Lord Severn; Edward Cobb, Sir Levinson; William Hedges, Justice Hare; Spencer McCulloch, Richard Hare; Mrs. Frederick Good, Miss Carlyle, and Vernon Carter, Mr. Dill.

The committees include Mrs. Paul Rutledge and Mrs. A. L. Beckmore, prompters; Mrs. Edmund Mack, chairman in charge of ticket sale; Miss Veach Matthews, in charge of properties, and Miss Julia Winfrey and Mrs. George Weston of publicity.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wiedmer, formerly of 6139 Kingsbury boulevard, will occupy the home of Mrs. Frances Nipher on North Harrison avenue. Mrs. Nipher and her daughter, Miss Clara Nipher, will join Mrs. James C. Dawson and family at their cottage in Eagle River early in June.

Mrs. William Miller, 549 South Clay avenue, accompanied by Mrs. C. F. Baldeck of Webster Groves, motored to Detroit last week to spend several days.

The Fortnightly Club of Kirkwood entertained Thursday afternoon, May 5, at a reciprocity tea at Grace Church parish house. Mrs. S. E. Jones, retiring president, and other retiring officers were in the receiving line. Mrs. Patrick J. Kinsella and Mrs. E. J. Boyd served at the tea tables. Those taking part in the program included Mrs. William W. Keysor, Mrs. George K. Meeks, Mrs. J. Harry McKelvey, Mrs. Raymond Henley and Miss Lucille Hammill.

Mrs. E. H. Muther, 326 Bompart avenue, entertained the members of Emmanuel Parish Guild Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Ben H. Johnson entertained the Travelers' Club Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Eleanor Groschan, Santa Monica, Cal., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McNeary, 830 North Kirkwood road. Miss Groschan accompanied Mr. and Mrs. McNeary on their motor trip from Hollywood to St. Louis late last month. She will visit other relatives in St. Louis before returning West.

Mrs. C. B. Shanley, 109 Mermod place, entertained members of her bridge club at luncheon Tuesday.

Mrs. W. O. Anderson of the Woodlawn Hotel departed last week for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Gibson, at Pelham Manor, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Long, 212 East Washington avenue, will have as their guests late this month their son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. Eldred Long, and their baby daughter of Louisville.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Nicholas, 601 East Monroe avenue, have as their guest Miss Vida Gaule, St. Joseph, Mo.

Mrs. George R. Robinson, 443 East Argonne drive, and her daughter, Miss Anne Robinson, entertained informally at their country place near Eureka over last week-end.

Women's Club Groups End Season's Work

THE public welfare department of the Eighth District of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its closing meeting Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Missouri Baptist Hospital. Each representative to this department will read a report of the scope and type of welfare work carried on by her club. The chairman, Mrs. A. S. Hinchey, will preside.

The music department will close at a meeting Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Vandervoort auditorium. Hazel Etling Heiligers will be the soloist accompanied by Ruth Roebbel. Mrs. B. A. Thompson will speak on "Emotions in Music." Current events will be given by Anna Louise Petri. Mrs. G. W. Coffman, chairman, will preside.

Gamma Phi Beta Alumnae Dinner

THE monthly meeting of the Gamma Phi Beta alumnae chapter will be held tomorrow evening at the Woman's Building, Washington University. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock, preceding the meeting.

Mrs. Frances Fink, Miss Gladys Stamm and Miss Edith Kleykamp are in charge of the dinner.

The annual election at the last meeting resulted in the choice of these officers: Mrs. Virginia Livingston, president; Mrs. Helen Hallauer, vice president; Miss Mary Beresford, recording secretary; Miss Constance Baker, corresponding secretary; Miss Gladys Stamm, treasurer; Mrs. Elizabeth Mize, Pan-Hellenic representative; Miss Laura Hinchman, representative to Active chapters; Miss Sylvia Kleinschmidt, Crescent correspondent, and Miss Marguerite Van Booven, publicity; Miss Vera Oberschelp and Miss Edith Kleykamp, finance committee.

Central College Dean to Speak.

Dean E. P. Puckett of Central College, Fayette, Mo., will speak on "Some Problems Which Must Be Solved Through Religious Education" at a meeting of Sunday school workers at the Union Avenue Christian Church, at 6:30 o'clock

MEDICAL BUILDING ON LOCUST TRADED BY WASHINGTON U.

Through Transaction, College Gets Control of Southeast Corner of 18th and Olive Streets.

ALREADY OWNER OF FEE TO LAND

By Berry Moore.

The 99-year lease of the south-ast corner of Eighteenth and live streets, together with the uilding on the site, has been acuired by Washington University rom Frank R. Rice, president of he Rice-O'Neil Shoe Co. An adoining three-story building on Olive street east of the corner uilding, was also acquired by the Vashington University under the ame lease.

This transaction gives entire control of the property to the Washngton University, which already wned the fee to the ground under he buildings.

In turn Washington University onveyed to Rice free of incumrance the old Washington University Medical Building on the outh side of Locust street, west f and adjoining the Claridge Hoel at the southeast corner of ighteenth and Locust. This building is a substantial five-story tructure, with a frontage on Locust of 125 feet by a depth of 125 eet to an alley. Whether Rice eceived any cash in addition was ot disclosed. Valuations at which he properties figured were not ade public.

Negotiations were handled by ornet & Zeibig through Ralph oale in connection with Isaac A. Hedges, custodian of the real esate holdings of Washington Uniersity.

Building Comparatively New.

A comparatively new two-story uilding occupies the Eighteenth nd Olive street, which has a frontge on Eighteenth. The adjoining three-story building, with a 25-foot rontage on Olive site, also emraced in the 99-year lease, is also wned in fee by Washington Uniersity. There is a total frontage f 120 feet on Olive and 69 feet on ighteenth. The corner of the wo-story building is occupied by a us depot and the rest of the round floor by stores. The second loor comprises offices. The Misouri School for the Blind has ofices in the building. Monthy rentals approximate $1500. Coret & Zeibig have the management f the building.

Washington University purhased the site at the southeast orner of Eighteenth and Olive, hen a vacant lot and the adjoinng three-story building on Olive treet, from Rice in October, 1929, efore the stock market slump had ained headway. As part payment Washington University deeded to Rice its old medical school buildng. Contract of sale in this intance provided that Rice take ack from Washington University 99-year lease on the Eighteenth nd Olive corner at a reported round rental of $1000 a month nd also to erect the present twotory building as security for the ease, in which the Washington University became the lessor as the ew owner of the ground.

Resold to Speculators.

Rice shortly afterward disposed f the old medical school building speculators, who later surrendered it to Washington Univerity, which held a deed of trust on he property. In other words Washington University got back under the deed of trust the Locust treet building, which it has again raded to Rice, this time for the 9-year lease on the Eighteenth nd Olive street property.

These are some of many real state deals in which Washington University has figured, it having een an important factor in real state operations during the last en years.

In December, 1929, Washington University acquired the five-story uilding at the northwest corner f Washington avenue and Twentyirst street, owned by the Burdeau Real Estate Co. The site has a rontage of 75 feet on Washingon with a depth of 137 feet on wenty-first street.

Purchase at 3020 Olive.

The two-story building at 3020 Olive street, occupying 25x165 feet as been purchased by R. Eppman hrough the Dubinsky Realty Co. A six-family apartment building at 333 Pershing avenue, occupying a ot 60x150 feet, was also sold by he Dubinsky Realty Co. to J. Holdener for Sadie Gibstein. This ransaction had no connection with he deal involving the Netherby Hall and the Smith block, details f which are given elsewhere.

MARK TWAIN HOTEL REORGANIZATION PLAN

Holders of $890,000 of Defaulted Bonds Receive Voting Trust Proposal.

Holders of $890,000 in defaulted first mortgage bonds on the Mark Twain Hotel, Eighth and Pine streets, have received from the Bondholders' Protective Committee which expects to buy the property at foreclosure May 31, an outline of the proposed plan of reorganization.

The committee, formed by Straus Bros. Investment Co. of Chicago, which financed construction of the building by the sale of bonds to the public, is said to represent about 90 per cent of the bondholders.

It proposes to bid in the hotel and form a new corporation, all of the stock of which would be issued to present bondholders, on the basis of one share for each $100 bond. The stock, however, would be held in escrow under a voting trust arrangement for 10 years.

To pay the costs of reorganization a new first mortgage of $300,000, running five or 10 years, would be negotiated.

During the 10-year period of the voting trust stockholders would be without voice in the management of the corporation, except that if two-thirds of them should agree, they could oust one or more of the voting trustee, or one-third could block the sale of the property.

The voting trustees, Alfred G. Fairbank, Barnet L. Rosset and Earle Kumrine, were named by the Straus Bros.' committee and not by the bondholders.

Out of the proceeds of the $300,000 first mortgage, the committee proposes to pay taxes totaling $45,000; mechanics' liens of about $100,000; receivership fees of about $20,000, and $30,000 to settle a claim for furniture installed in the hotel by Hub Furniture Co. Charles F. Levy, president of that company, is president also of the company which has held title to the hotel.

Payment of these items would leave about $105,000 to be paid to the trustees and the committee, and to pay the commission charge on the new mortgage, and that amount of the foreclosure price which must be paid in cash for distribution among bondholders not represented in the committee. The last item will not be large, because the committee represents about 90 per cent of the bondholders, and so will pay only 10 per cent of its bid in cash.

With the approval of the Court and the receiver for the hotel, the committee has arranged to lease the property to the Mark Twain Hotel Operating Co., formed by the Sweet Hotels System and the Pick Hotels Co., for 20 years at a minimum rental of $50,000 a year. The lease provides that the bondholders are to participate in any income earned by the operating company in excess of $125,000 a year.

The present bondholders, who will become stockholders after the reorganization, would be required to pay out of the rental received from the operating company interest on the proposed $300,000 first mortgage, taxes, ground rent of $3500 a year on that part of the site occupied by the hotel's four-story annex, insurance premiums and the expenses of the voting trustees.

Whatever might remain after these charges had been met would be available for dividends, if the voting trustees should decide to declare dividends.

LOANS TO REFINANCE HOMES ON INCREASE

Credit Demands Less for New Construction Than to Retain Ownership.

A cross-section summary of home financing trends for the first quarter of 1932 shows steadily increasing pressure for loans on existing dwellings, with the result that less credit is available for new homes.

Reports to the United States Building and Loan League from widely scattered states indicate that emphasis on refinancing activity has been due not so much to a lack of demand for construction loans as to the need of keeping existing owners in possession.

The percentage of credit extended for purchase of existing homes and refinancing of short-term mortgages on an amortized basis has increased each month this year, the league finds, while the proportion of loans for new construction has dropped.

Figures from associations in seven states holding 11 per cent of the nation's total building and loan assets show that refinancing loans jumped from 77 per cent of the total in January to 87 per cent in March, while new construction credit slipped from 15 per cent in January to 9 per cent in March.

This summary, representing trends in states scattered from coast to coast, involves approximately 6500 loans to home owners, builders and buyers for a total of more than $15,800,000.

"The policy of associations in lending increasing amounts for refinancing and purchase of existing homes, while decreasing their construction loans, is practically dictated by demands for refinancing at the present time," the league reports.

"Three years ago building and loan associations, deriving their funds almost solely from small savers, were doing more than half the nation's home financing. Today the total burden of the refinancing demand seems to have fallen upon these associations as a result of the diversion of funds of other institutions, which formerly lent on homes, into other channels such as policy loans of insurance companies and liquidity demands on banks.

"Statistics show that month-to-month increases in investing shareholders of the associations have been reflected in a corresponding increase in the amount of home loans made the following month.

"The gain in March loans resulting from new building and loan members in February, for instance, was a hopeful sign, but the whole procedure demonstrates that any stringency in home financing credit is occasioned by the need for investment of more funds in this field."

Netherby Hall Apartment Traded For Smith Block on Delmar

Eight-Family Building on Lindell Acquired by Lenora Lobman, Other Property by Sadie Gibstein.

A deal involving Netherby Hall Apartment at 4540 Lindell boulevard and the Smith block at the southwest corner of Delmar boulevard and Westgate avenue in University City has been concluded.

Netherby Hall, owned by Sadie Gibstein, wife of Sam Gibstein, was acquired tentatively in the name of Senora Lobman in behalf of interests controlled by Sam Hamburg. This structure comprises eight apartments of 10 and 11 rooms each, with two and three baths. It occupies a lot 100 by 213 feet and was erected by Chase Ulman. It was one of his first building ventures on Lindell boulevard, which included the Cathedral, the Chase Hotel and Chase and Chester Apartments.

The Smith block at the southwest corner of Delmar boulevard and Westgate was in turn acquired by Sadie Gibstein. This building comprises stores, apartments and offices. It has a lot frontage on Delmar extending from Westgate to Melville avenue or Kirkwood street car tracks. It also has a large frontage on Westgate. It was owned by interests represented by Sam Hamburg in a three-way deal.

The valuation given the two properties in the trade was not disclosed, the transfers being made nominally.

HOOVER ASKED TO URGE HOME LOAN BILL PASSAGE

CHICAGO, May 8.—Foreclosures of mortgages on homes, through the unwillingness of banks to release any of the money hoarded in their vaults, prompted the board of directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at their regular quarterly meeting recently held here, to send a telegram to President Hoover urging him to again bring to the attention of Congress the great need for immediate passage of the Home Loan Bank bill.

The proposed measure would set up a discount system for institutions making mortgage loans on urban homes, the system to be paid for by the institutions using it. As recommended by the subcommittee of the House Banking and Currency Committee, which held hearings on the bill, the measure has been amended to provide that Federal funds for initial capital come from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. This Federal fund is to be retired as soon as membership stock subscription is sufficient to bring the capitalization of the proposed banks to $150,000,000.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS SERUM PRODUCED HERE

Research, Soon to Be Stopped for Lack of Funds, Develops Local Supply.

A ready St. Louis source of small amounts of immune serum for infantile paralysis, the only known treatment for the disease which frequently results in death or permanent crippling, has been developed in the closing months of three years' research conducted at Washington University School of Medicine under the direction of Prof. E. V. Cowdry. The study is to be suspended June 30 for lack of funds.

Aid for the work has been obtained principally from a grant of $31,000 by the International Committee for the Study of Infantile Paralysis, a Jeremiah Milbank philanthropy, under the chairmanship of Dr. W. H. Park of New York, and a smaller grant made by Eli Lilly & Co. for certain special studies.

Since convalescent serum, taken from persons who have recovered from the disease, is the only known remedy, and since it must be administered in the very earliest stages, doctors consider it important for a community to have a ready source of the serum and for parents to know definitely what to do when the disease is prevalent.

Advice to Parents.

"In time of epidemic," said Dr. Condry," the first thing is for parents, in advance of any suspicious symptoms, to know which physician they are going to consult. Then the physician should take a supply of the serum with him to suspected cases, for the stage when the serum is effective may pass within a matter of hours.

"In border-line cases, where diagnosis of infantile paralysis is probable, though inconclusive, the serum should be administered to be on the safe side. Even if the patient does not in fact have infantile paralysis, the serum still does good rather than harm, since it probably confers immunity lasting through the average epidemic. Indeed, it is likely that a feature of the next epidemic will be the giving of small amounts of serum as a temporary preventive.

Symptoms to Be Regarded.

"Nausea, loss of appetite, constipation and inflammation of the throat and nose are early symptoms likely to pass without notice, because they are of such common occurrence. Tremors, excitability, pain in the muscles and the back of the neck, are danger signals which must be heeded. When they arise, a physician should be summoned without the loss of a moment.

"It is essential, also, that the physician see that he has the best immune serum to be found. The best generally available is that developed by the New York Department of Health. This must be secured early in the season because when there are many cases in New York it may not be feasible for the authorities there to supply serum to other parts of the country.

St. Louis Well Protected.

"Every community not itself collecting serum should have an instantly available supply of it on hand. Its cost is not beyond the reach of persons of average means, and would not prohibit the community from providing it for patients unable to pay. In the severe New York epidemic last summer charity patients were treated on a par with the children of millionaires. Properly stored, the serum retains its effectiveness for at least a year."

The university has obtained not only a supply of the New York preparation, but also a more powerful serum developed here and standardized to an exact dosage. With the co-operation of Superintendent of Schools Gerling and friends of the St. Louis Children's Hospital, it also has obtained a mechanical respirator or "iron lung," a device which has in some cases saved lives when temporary paralysis extended to the muscles of respiration.

Serum Developed Locally.

Serum developed in St. Louis has been standardized to a strength sufficient to kill at least 30 times its own volume in infantile paralysis virus. Few if any other available serums are so powerful, and they are seldom standardized to a known strength. The adults from whose blood the serum is prepared are on call, so that in case of an outbreak of the disease the university could, in a few hours, collect a quantity of serum adequate to satisfy any ordinary demands upon it and its group of hospitals.

Progress toward the development of an immunizing agent comparable to the vaccine against smallpox, another virus disease, was made in another phase of the research. Suggestive evidence was found for the probable effectiveness of a formalized virus—a virus partly neutralized by formalin—but suspension of the work next month will prevent carrying the experiments to a conclusion. The scientist in charge of that phase succeeded in immunizing monkeys to such a degree that they were highly resistant to the disease and remained so for months, but the method is not without danger, and consequently cannot be used in its present form for children.

Forced to Drop Work.

"The essential thing in infantile paralysis research is to keep right at it," said Dr. Cowdry. "We are constantly, in these last few months, finding leads which we cannot follow out. It is one of the most costly of all lines of medical research, because so far as we know now it can only be pursued with monkeys, and they are expensive.

"Thousands of children in the United States are cripples, as the result of the disease, and a smaller number have been killed by it, and yet we know little of its cause or treatment and virtually nothing of its prevention, simply because no one seems to have the funds to attack it properly and to continue over the long period of time which may be necessary.

"At present infantile paralysis is peculiarly an American problem, for there were apparently more cases last year in the United States than the rest of the world put together. It is unknown in the tropics."

FOUNDATION OF OLD FRENCH FORT FOUND IN MICHIGAN

Place Once Headquarters for Marquette, Joliet, Allouez and Menard.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, May 7.—Foundations of an old French fort—headquarters for Marquette, Allouez, Menard, Joliet and other famous pioneer missionaries—have been uncovered by excavations in the State park at Mackinaw City.

Believed to have been built in 1714, the fortifications were occupied by the British when the French surrendered Canada, then abandoned by the English in 1780 when they withdrew to Mackinac Island, fearing an American land attack. Generations ago, the last traces of the fort disappeared from view and historians have been at odds as to its exact location.

The foundation was brought to light by excavations begun recently for the purpose of reproducing the old fortifications. News of the discovery came to Kenneth M. Stevens, secretary of the Mackinac Island board, in a letter from Clarence Le Chance, superintendent in charge of the excavation.

The board will go to Mackinaw City Friday to view the find.

The fort was located near the Straits of Mackinac and was built while the French were at war with the Fox Indians, who lived along the Wolf River on the Wisconsin side of Lake Michigan. It was of greatest strategic importance, situated near the meeting point of Lakes Michigan, Huron and Superior and was the center of activities of the Jesuit missionaries.

Joliet set out from there on his exploration and missionary tour south into the Mississippi Valley.

Secret Service Bureau Explains

RELIEF GARDEN TO AID 325 NEEDY FAMILIES

Potatoes, Onions, Lettuce, Radishes and Other Vegetables in 42-Acre Plot.

Food for 325 families is being grown on the 42-acre garden maintained by Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment at Kingshighway Northwest and Goodfellow boulevard.

Gardeners, assigned to plots by the relief agencies affiliated with the committee, are working under the direction of W. L. Tayloe, formerly of the faculty o fthe Missouri University College of Agriculture. The crops were planned to include some vegetables which will mature for early summer consumption and others which will keep or may be canned for winter use.

After the ground had been prepared by gang plows and other machine equipment, plots 50 by 70 feet were staked off and two weeks ago the gardeners began to work on their plots. Each planted seven rows of potatoes immediately, the seed potatoes being furnished by the committee along with other seeds and equipment.

Following the potatoes four rows of onions and one each of lettuce, radishes, spinach and turnips were planted. These are to be followed by two rows of cabbage, four each of beans, beets, tomatoes, sweet corn and pole beans, one of Swiss chard and one of peppers. Radishes are to be sown from time to time and such crops as cucumbers, squash and pumpkins are grown on excess ground not staked off into plots.

"The varieties used," Tayloe explained at a meeting of the Advisory Committee Friday, "are those that have proved successful for local conditions. A large selection of vegetables has been chosen so as to provide a variety in the diet.

"Turnips, sweep potatoes, pumpkins and squash may be stored successfully at ordinary room temperatures. Cabbage and cucumbers can be made into kraut and pickles. If a surplus of beans, carrots, beets and spinach are grown, they can be canned for use during the winter."

GREATEST DECLINE IN SHORT SELLING SHOWN IN APRIL

That Interest Totaled 2,758,161 Shares May 2, a Decrease of 521,237 Compared With April 1.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The greatest round-up of the stock market's bears since the New York Stock Exchange began keeping its present daily statistics on short selling was shown today to have occurred during April.

On May 2, the short interest totaled 2,758,161 shares. This was 521,237 shares less than the 3,279,398 reported on April 1.

The anomaly that stock prices declined at a time when shorts were most actively buying stocks, was seized upon by some champions of short selling, as indicating that it has not been a seriously depressing factor.

The monthly report computed on a day-to-day basis shed interesting light on how the short sellers reacted to congressional investigation of the stock market and to other Washington developments.

April 1 when the House passed a tax bill calling for a heavy increase in taxes on stock transactions, the short interest stood at 3,279,398 shares. By April 6 it had declined to 3,063,927 shares.

April 7, when the Senate Investigating Committee announced its plans to investigate short selling, there was a rush of shorts to cover. This was reflected in a sharp decrease in the total short interest which fell off nearly 200,000 shares in a single market session. By April 11, when the investigation was started, the short interest had declined to 2,469,087 shares—off 493,840 shares from the April 6 figure of 3,063,927 shares—and the movement continued until a low point of 2,323,738 shares was reached on April 15.

After the bears had become accustomed to the prospect of a senatorial inquiry they lost some of their timidity. April 20, when the Senate summoned a group of brokers to testify on short selling, the short interest increased 70,000 shares to a total of 2,450,863 shares. The next day, when the names of 350 shorts were published, the total short interest showed another gain to 2,510,209 shares. Since then, the variations have continued on a small but unusually ascending scale until the latest available figure of 2,758,161 shares was recorded as of May 2.

A decrease of 521,237 shares in the total short interest during April marked the greatest change to be made in those figures for any one month this year except January. In January the change was in the other direction. Short sales increased from a total figure of 2,962,127 reported on the first trading day of the new year, to 3,600,265 shares on Feb. 1.

For the year to date, the highest point reached by the short interest was 3,965,142 shares on Feb. 10 and the lowest point 2,323,738 on April 15.

During April, while the shorts were buying stocks to cover their commitments, the stock market suffered its most severe decline since last December. The total value of all listed stocks in April declined $4,182,000,000 to a new low figure of $20,319,000,000. The December decline amounted to $4,412,000,000, carrying the market valuation figure down from $31,105,000,000 on Dec. 1 to $26,693,000,000 at the beginning of January.

MASONS GOING TO ALEXANDRIA

Will Visit Lodge of Which Washington Was Member.

Twenty-five members of George Washington Masonic lodge of St. Louis will depart Tuesday noon for Alexandria, Va., to be guests of Alexandria-Washington lodge, of which George Washington was worshipful master in part of his terms as President.

Thursday evening the St. Louis Masons will confer a degree upon a candidate who will accompany them. The party, to return next Sunday, will be headed by Master Theodore S. Koch, assisted by Past Master J. Gwinn Gough, who is in charge of reservations. Alexandria-Washington lodge visited George Washington lodge here in 1924, bringing with them the trowel with which Washington laid the Capitol cornerstone and the Bible used as master of the lodge in 1788 and 1789.

Finds $2000 Lump of Gold.

By the Associated Press.

LEWISTON, Mont., May 7.—G. McEwan wandering in a building in the abandoned Kendall mining district, yesterday, broke through the floor of an old shed and found a heavy, yellow object. Experts say it is a lump of gold weighing 107 ounces and worth more than $2000. It was probably hidden there a quarter of a century ago when the district was producing much gold ore.

SENATORS HEAR MINE OPERATORS DENOUNCE UNION

Counsel for Companies Says United Workers' Leaders Forced Strike in the Ohio Field.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—"Interference" by the United Mine Workers of America caused the present Ohio coal strike, said William P. Belden, Cleveland, counsel for the Eastern Ohio Coal Operators' Association, testifying today before a Senate committee.

"There have been some strikes and violence there so the militia had to be sent in by the Governor to maintain order," said Belden, who was opposing the Davis-Kelly bill for Federal regulation of the bituminous industry.

"The reason we are not working today isn't because we don't want to work and it is not because the men don't want to work, but because crowds of men operating under the United Mine Workers prevent the men from working."

"Wasn't there a wage cut involved in that strike?" asked Representative Kelly (Rep.), Pennsylvania. "There was a wage cut, but it was not involved in the strike."

He added that 5300 of the men "wanted to come back to work" after the cut but were prevented from doing so by the United Mine Workers. "What industry has not had a wage cut?" he exclaimed.

Calls Bill "Serious Menace."

Belden said the Davis-Kelly bill would be a "serious menace," the "fundamental objection" being it "would impose on a private industry the requirement that it must take out a license from a commission down here for the privilege of engaging in interstate commerce."

He contended this "is not within the power of Congress" and is "a plain discrimination."

Control of the industry contemplated in the Davis-Kelly bill is based on the Federal Power of regulating interstate commerce.

Belden advocated "liberalizing" the antitrust laws. The Norris anti-injunction act was mentioned by Belden in connection with the Ohio strike.

"We have been running in Ohio on an open shop basis year in and year out without friction and without trouble until less than a week after you passed the Norris bill, they (the United Mine Workers) called a strike and forced the men out, men who wanted to come back to work," he said.

"What did the Norris bill have to do with the strike?" Senator Davis inquired. "I mentioned that by way of narrative," replied Belden. "It just happened to be a week after that date."

Davis persisted in his inquiry, asking the same question several times. "Why not ask some of the men who sit on my left?" suggested Belden, indicating representatives of the United Mine Workers.

Senator Hayden (Dem.), Arizona, remarked, "There is an inference" that, because the act restricted the use of injunctions in labor disputes, it had a bearing on the Ohio action. "Certainly," said Belden.

Another Operator Testifies.

E. L. Thrower, general manager of W. H. Warner Co., Cleveland, operating mines in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, said the bill would "saddle upon us a mine labor organization which we once operated under up to 1927 and have not negotiated with since."

When Thrower charged the United Mine Workers called 21 strikes in a single year "in violation of contracts" when his mines were dealing with them, Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, interrupted sharply.

"All his testimony," Murray objected, "is apparently directed against the United Mine Workers for no particular reason and with no relation to the legislation before this committee."

Thrower was allowed to continue, however, and described what he said was "a strike called by the United Mine Workers for April 1, 1932," as it affected his mines.

Questioning Thrower about wage conditions in the Ohio mines, Representative Kelly said: "How can a man come here and argue that something should not be done when men are compelled to support a family on $450 a year, I cannot understand for my part." Thrower observed that the figure represented "part time" pay, but Kelly reiterated his opinion.

Union Leaders Opposed.

W. L. Robison, vice president in charge of operations, of the Youghiogheny & Ohio Coal Co., Cleveland, opposed the bill, particularly its collective bargaining provisions.

He said the United Mine Workers had been "arbitrary and autocratic" and their "leaders could not control the rank and file of their organization."

R. L. Ireland Jr., Cleveland, vice president of the Hanna Coal Co., and president of the Ohio Coal Operators' Association, said "the men in Ohio certainly are not satisfied with the wages they are getting. Neither am I satisfied with the salary I am getting since the cut. But they are getting the best possible under present conditions."

In the Ohio strikes, he said, the United Mine Workers used "mass picketing, intimidation and other methods."

Questioned, he said, his mine had cut wages to $3.20 from $4.30 a day.

"That let to the strike," suggested Kelly. "No, sir," replied Ireland, "our men worked after the cut took effect."

"Intensive work," by the United Mine workers, he said, resulted later in the closing of the mines.

SAYS HE IS ONLY SENATORIAL ASPIRANT WET FROM START

James W. Byrnes, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, told a Kirkwood audience in the High School auditorium last night that he was the only candidate in the senatorial group who had been constantly, consistently and outspokenly for modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"Where were the others 10 years ago on this question?" Byrnes demanded. "Where were they five years ago? Where were they when they first announced their candidacies? Did one of them then say he was for repeal?"

Byrnes talked of the tariff, saying that tariff restrictions kept the United States from trading on a large scale with its debtor nations, and thus made payment of war debts an impossibility.

EXTORTION NOTES RECIPIENTS GUARDED

By the Associated Press.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., May 7.—One effort to trap extortionists who have spread alarm over this county having failed, State and county police tonight increased their vigilance to prevent any violence to those who refused to comply with the demands. Officials today admitted that letters had been received by a number of residents of Taylorville and surrounding towns demanding large sums under threats of death or bodily harm. One of these letters is said to have been received by Maj. William Vandeveer, 89-year-old Taylorville financier. It contained a demand for $5000, and was postmarked from Springfield.

A trap was laid at an abandoned mine near Sonington, where the money was to be delivered, but an explosion of gas in the shaft yesterday, spoiled the scheme. The explosion is thought to have been caused by a cigarette. Two State policemen were burned.

In conjunction with county authorities, a detachment of Illinois highway police have been working on the cases since the slaying of two Springfield gangsters at the home of Arthur Cioni at Langley recently.

The two Springfield gangsters were killed by a defender of the Cioni home after Cioni had refused to pay money demanded by Italian terrorists. A short time before Dominic Severi and his wife were murdered in their home after refusing to pay.

Mr. and Mrs. Cioni are now under heavy guard for fear that friends of the dead men may seek to avenge them.

Maj. Vandeveer has not employed guards for his house, but he has a man with him constantly. He says that he has been ill and that the man is a nurse.

Col. George Seamon, who has been acting for Maj. Vandeveer in connection with the extortion notes, has a heavy guard around his home, but explained that this was because his home is very close to the railroad tracks where tramps alight from trains.

Mrs. Maud Ferris, divorced wife of Carlton Ferris of Chicago, is said to have admitted receiving one of the extortion letters addressed from Springfield. Similar notes also were received by a resident of Kincaid and a resident of Hewittville.

Police tonight were guarding the homes of those who have been threatened.

CLEVELAND POLICE USE SMOKE SCREEN TO DISPERSE MEETING

CLEVELAND, O., May 7.—One woman was clubbed about the head and several men were arrested as police stopped a meeting of the International Labor Defense Union today. Approximately 500 persons had gathered to protest the conviction of nine Scottsboro, Ala., Negro youths for attacking three women. A police riot squad was sent to the place when delegates to the Twenty-ninth Quadrennial Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church across the street complained of the noise.

Patrolman James Patton, a Negro, clubbed Mrs. Mary Johnson when the crowd charged him, police said. The beating was termed a case of self-defense by Patton's superiors.

Police dispersed the gathering after laying down a smoke screen. Placards demanding "Justice for Scottsboro Martyrs" were ripped down by officers.

W. C. T. U. TO SUPPORT HAY

Mrs. Burger Says He Is Still Dry Despite Referendum Stand.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 7.—An erroneous impression has arisen that the Missouri W. C. T. U. has dropped its fight against a referendum on prohibition, Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, president of the organization, said here in a statement issued today. She announced "the W. C. T. U. again goes on record against resubmission of the eighteenth amendment for repeal." The misunderstanding, Mrs. Burger believes, was cause by the statement of Charles M. Hay, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, that he would support a referendum on an alternate proposal for liquor control if it appeared to him to be superior to the eighteenth amendment.

"This, however, does not commit the W. C. T. U. to a referendum of any sort," she said. "Mr. Hay made it clear that he is still a dry and is the only avowed dry candidate in the field, so consequently he is the only one to whom we can turn, notwithstanding his statement."

ROBINSON, Ill., May 7.—Mrs. Mace Jobe was fatally hurt and her husband seriously injured near here this afternoon when their automobile collided with one driven by Herb Smith of Robinson. Mrs. Jobe died on the way to hospital here. Her husband suffered possible internal injuries, but is expected to recover. Smith suffered minor cuts. The accident occured as Jobe attempted to turn into his farm home in front of Smith's car. Mrs Jobe was thrown out to the pavement.

ACCUSED OF FORGING MEDIEVAL DOCUMENTS

Italian, Who Figured in Lincoln Letter Controversy, Reported Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 7.—Government authorities said today charges of forging medieval state documents had been filed against Giuseppe Leonida Capobianco, an attorney, whose name figured in a controversy last November over the authenticity of a letter supposed to have been written by Abraham Lincoln.

Capobianco is reported to have been arrested in Naples a month ago, but the police there decline to discuss the case.

The attorney wrote an article in a periodical of the National Historical Society of the Italian Renaissance. In it the purported Lincoln letter, envisaging a united Italy, was presented in translation, supposedly by the liberator, Giuseppe Mazzini.

Both the letter and the translation later were called forgeries by critics, the controversy involving Italian and American historians, but the claim that they were genuine was vigorously supported by Prof. Eugenio Casanova, superintendent of the state archives and editor of the periodical.

The letter, supposed to have been written by Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., in 1853 and addressed to the late Macedonia Melloni, scientist, patriot and one-time director of the Vesuvius Observatory, predicted that Rome would became the capital of a united states of Europe.

The document was owned by Nino D'Althan, a descendant of Camillo Cavour, statesman of Italy's unification. He said he had sent it to a cousin in Mentone, France, because he feared it would be stolen from his home at Narvi, near Geneva, Italy.

D'Althan said he had written a book about the letter and when it was off the press he would ask his cousin for the original and present it to Premier Mussolini.

SECOND JURY DISAGREES IN BOB MAIL FRAUD CASE

Panel Discharged After 48 Hours; Prosecutor Says Governmnet Will Try Again.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Out 48 hours and unable to agree, the jury which heard the mail fraud case against Charles V. Bob and Frederick C. Russell was dismissed today by Federal Judge John M. Woolsey. The jury stood four for acquittal, six for conviction on all counts and two for conviction on some counts.

A former trial, which lasted seven weeks, also ended in a jury disagreement.

John S. Pratt, Special Assistant to the Attorney-General, told Judge Woolsey the Government would try the case again.

Bob was charged in nine counts and Russell in eight with using the mails to defraud in connection with the sales of Metal and Mining Shares, Inc. Both were charged also in an additional count with conspiracy to misuse the mails. Pratt, in his argument for the Government, contended investors lost more than $6,000,000 in their activities.

Bob had a meteoric rise in the New York financial world, beginning in 1927 when he stopped prospecting in Colorado and promoting in gold and oil to organize gigantic Wall street firms. He became a backer of Commander Richard E. Byrd's expedition to the South Pole and was represented on some maps of Little America by the Charles V. Bob Mountain Range. In a statement after the adjournment, Bob said he had requested an investigation of his case by Congress.

TWO RAILROAD BILLS REPORTED TO HOUSE

Would Repeal Recapture Clause and Put Holding Companies Under I. C. C.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Drastic changes in transportation laws were proposed today by the House Commerce Committee as necessary to help railroads recover from the economic doldrums.

The committtee put together and formally reported two bills by its chairman, Representative Rayburn, Texas Democrat. One would repeal the law requiring carriers to give to the Government half of their earnings above 5¾ per cent. This would relieve roads of the possible necessity of paying $360,000,000 to the Government.

The other measure—drafted after a special duty made on orders from the House—would put holding companies under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Two minority reports were submitted, however, one opposing each of the two major phases of the bill. The recapture minority report was signed by Representatives Hoch of Kansas, Burtness of North Dakota, Nelson of Maine, Robinson of Iowa and Garber of Oklahoma, Republicans. The second, on holding companies, was agreed to by Representatives Beck of Pennsylvania, Cooper of Ohio and Wyant of Pennsylvania, Republicans, and Igoe of Illinois, a Democrat.

In the majority report, the committee said the commission's consolidation plan in some instances was being threatened by holding company ownership of railroad stock. The new measure would let the commission supervise holding companies and prevent the voting of stock if it was shown to have been used contrary to the public interest.

"The important point is that unifications and groupings of railroads have been accomplished entirely without supervision by the commission and without any opportunity to consider the question of public interest," the report said.

CAR OF CABBAGE CONDEMNED

Food Inspectors Find Traces of Arsenic Spray on Leaves.

A carload of cabbage was condemned and confiscated by food inspectors yesterday because the residue of an arsenic spray remained on the leaves.

The carload, weighing 28,000 pounds, was valued at $800. It was shipped by the Breaux Bridge Farm Products Co., Breaux Bridge, La., to a St. Louis commission merchant. The arsenic, presumably, was in a solution used to destroy bugs which feed upon growing cabbage.

FOUR TRAIN VICTIMS BURIE

Single Funeral Held for Members of Leiweke Family.

Four members of the Leiweke family of Centaur, St. Louis County, killed in a grade crossing accident at Centaur last Thursday were buried in SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery yesterday. A single funeral was conducted at St. Bernard's Catholic Church, 4011 Gratiot street.

Those killed were A. Leo Leiweke, president-treasurer of the Centaur Lime Co.; his daughter Dolores, 11, and his nephew and niece, Joseph Jr., 10, and Loretta, 11. Justice of the Peace Joseph H. C. Leiweke, father of Loretta and Joseph Jr., was seriously injured in the accident. He is in St. Mary's Hospital. The family was going to Ascension day mass at Chesterfield when their automobile was struck by a Rock Island freight train.

IN MEMORIAM

BEAVER—In loving memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, Mabel Beaver, who passed away May 5, 1930:

My lips cannot tell how I miss her,
My heart cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how I miss her,
In a home that is lonesome today.

Sadly missed by HUSBAND, CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN.

BERGMAN—In memory of Helen Bergman and infant son who passed away May 7, 1928:

Four years have passed since that sad day,
The ones we loved were called away;
God took them home, it was His will,
But in our hearts they liveth still.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTERS, BROTHER, NIECES AND NEPHEWS. (c)

BISCHOFF—In memory of our darling son and brother, Arthur Bischoff, died May 10, 1926:

Little time on earth he spent,
Till God for him His angel sent.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND FATHER.

BRANDT—Mrs. Minnie Brandt.

One year has passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.

WM. BRANDT AND FAMILY.

BRICKEY—In loving memory of my husband and our father, Amos H. Brickey, who died May 11, 1926.

WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

BROTHERS—In loving remembrance of James Brothers, our husband, father, father-in-law and grandfather.

Sadly missed by HIS FAMILY. (c)

BURKE—In sad but sweet memory of our darling husband and father, Sergt. Patrick T. Burke, who departed this life on May 10, 1929.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

EHRHARDT—In loving memory of my dear son and our brother, George L. Ehrhardt, who passed away May 11, 1931.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past;
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND SISTERS.

EHRHARDT, GEORGE L.—

His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.

Sadly missed by WIFE AND DAUGHTER. (c)

FALLER—In memory of my dear grandson, John Willard Faller, who departed this life May 8, 1925.

Sadly missed by his grandmother,
MRS. ELIZABETH McMANUS.

FISHER—Mary F. Fisher, 5317A Itaska, departed May 7, 1930:

The world may change from year to year,
As friends from day today;
But never will the one I love
From memory pass away.

Sadly missed by CHILDREN. (c)

GILES—In loving memory of Cecilia Giles, who died May 5, 1929.

Three years have passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away.
God took her home, it was his will,
Within our hearts she liveth still.

Sadly missed by all who loved her. (c)

GILES—In remembrance of my dear friend, Cecelia Giles, who departed this life May 5, 1929. Sadly missed by EMMA MACK.

HAILL—In loving memory of Viola Haill, who died May 6, 1931.

God alone knows how we miss her,
In a home that is lonesome today.

Sadly missed by
PARENTS AND BROTHER.

Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON.

IN MEMORIAM

HEFTZ—In memory of George J. Heftz, who departed this life on May 9, 1927:

We do not forget him, we love him too dearly,
For memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

Sadly missed by
PARENTS, WIFE AND CHILDREN.

HOUSER, T. B.—Who left us May 6, 1931.

Although no more his smile our eyes can see,
With us who well remember still they stay.
The living suffer absence but the dead may walk with us.
The loneliest path we tread.

Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

HUHN—In memory of our dear daughter, Bessie Huhn (nee McBride), who passed away May 9, 1930:

Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
But love and remembrance outlast all

Sadly missed by. PARENTS.

KNIESTE—In memory of our dear mother, Martha Knieste, departed this life May 9, 1931, and our dear father, Fred Knieste, departed this life Aug. 1 1931.

The flowers we placed on their grave may wither and decay;
Our love for them that sleep beneath will never fade away.

Sadly missed by KNIESTE FAMILY.

LANGENECKERT—In loving memory of Gertrude Langeneckert, who departed May 5, 1925.

Her life was a flower, it bloomed with good deeds.
It faded and withered to supply our needs.
The stem is now broken, the blossom has passed,
But the perfume of memories always will last.

Sadly missed by HUSBAND, MOTHER, SISTER, BROTHER and all who loved her.

O'NEIL—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, James O'Neil, who departed this life one year ago, May 6, 1931.

What would I give to clasp his hand, his happy face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile that meant so much to me.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

OTT—Raymond B. Ott, who passed away May 9, 1930:

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Raymond,
That we do not think of you.

MOTHER, FATHER, BROTHERS.

TEUTEBERG—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Charles H. Teuteberg, who departed this life one year ago, May 8, 1931:

We cannot forget him, we love him too dearly
For his memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
His heart was the truest in all the wide world,
His love the best to recall,
For no one on earth can take his place,
His is still the dearest of all.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SON.

WINTERS—In loving memory of our dear mother and sister, Eva M. Winters, who passed away May 13 1930.

The need is for men between the ages of 25 and 40 years, with knowledge of modern business practices and experience in business machine selling, such as cash registers, adding machines, duplicating equipment. Knowledge of printing and Direct-Mail advertising desirable.

A tested sales method, developed to meet present conditions, will enable the right men to get on a satisfactory earning basis quickly. Turnover in present sales organization has been less than 5% during past two years, indicating that those with required qualifications succeed in spite of existing handicaps. This is a genuine opportunity for men who know they can earn more and advance faster on commission, in guaranteed territories, than on salaries. Write, giving full details of education, sales experience, and business connections during past five years. Or, if you know of a man you consider qualified, you will do him a favor by bringing this to his attention. Replies confidential. Address: Box O-114, Post-Dispatch.

BROWNS TAKE THIRD IN ROW FROM RED SOX, 4-0

Burns Makes Four Hits, Blaeholder Is Invincible in Pinches

BOSTON, May 7.—The Browns paraded to their third consecutive victory over the Boston Red Sox here this afternoon; pecking away at Russell's delivery for a 4-0 triumph. The individual hero for the Browns was Irving Burns, the Cambridge, Mass., product, who singled on his first four trips to the plate and then, in the eighth inning robbed Smead Jolley of a hit to right field and choked off a Boston rally.

While the Browns were cracking Russell for 12 hits and all their runs in six innings, George Blaeholder was keeping the Sox well under control, although permitting nine hits during his tenure. When he was in danger, however, his mates rallied to his support, two double plays, in addition to the Burns' fielding gem, cutting down threatening gestures.

This third game was well-played, although the Red Sox made three errors, and one of them figured in a run. The Boston club also kicked in with two double plays and Johnny Watwood figured in a couple of efforts, which halted the Browns.

Browns Waste Hits.

On the other hand, the Browns might have had, a much larger margin of victory had they been able to grasp opportunities. In the fourth, the visitors made four hits, two singles, a double and triple and yet scored only one run. In the fifth two errors and an infield single with none out failed to develop into any scoring. Yet their efforts were not wholly wasted. In the first, they were given a break when Second Baseman Marvin Olson mussed up Fred Schulte's lead-off roller. Burns came through with a single and Schulte scored when Campbell forced Burns at second. In the fourth, Lin Storti doubled with one out and was sent home by Jim Levey's triple to center on which Oliver tried for a shoestringer, but was too late. Blaeholder here bounced one to Olson, whose throw caught Levey at the plate. Schulte and Burns then made infield singles, but Campbell popped to short to end the inning.

The sixth saw the other two markers being made. Schulte singled through third and Burns whacked one into right. Campbell again popped to short, but Goslin and Ferrell reeled off a pair of singles, Goslin's to right and Melillo's through short and two runs were home. That Ferrell bingle sent Russell to the showers and Ed Durham stepped in to pitch two-hit shut-out ball for the rest of the game.

Burns' Stop Ends Scoring Threat.

The big Boston burst came in the eighth, when Watwood singled through short and McManus followed with a single to left, his third hit of the game. Jolley then busted one in the general direction of right field and Burns sticking out his gloved hand, scooped up the grounder and threw to second to force McManus. Webb then whaled a grounder which Melillo made look soft, Ossie throwing to Levey, who relayed the ball to first for a double play.

The teams play their final game tomorrow and the expectations are that Sam Gray will pitch for the Browns while Hod Lissenbee will operate for the Red Sox in the hopes of preventing the Sox losing streak from reaching nine in a row.

Japan and Monaco Pass First Hurdle In Davis Cup Play

By the Associated Press.

Japan and Monaco won their Davis Cup series from Greece and Norway, respectively, in European zone play yesterday, and joined Hungary, Switzerland and the United States on the list of teams surmounting their first hurdle in the international tennis competition.

Hungary defeated Finland five matches to none, during the week and will play Ireland in a second-round encounter. Monaco next will meet Switzerland, which eliminated Belgium, and Japan will play the winner of the series between Denmark and Jugo-Slavia.

One series, that between Austria and Czecho-Slovakia, remained to be decided today, as Czecho-Slovakia, zone finalist last year, rallied to win the doubles yesterday after dropping the first two singles matches.

Play will continue on two fronts in the North American zone this week, with the United States team of Ellsworth Vines Jr., Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn and Frank Shields meeting Mexico at New Orleans Friday, Saturday and Sunday and Australia playing Cuba at Havana on the same three days. The winners will meet in the zone final at Philadelphia, May 27, 28 and 30.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Of Many Derbies.

DERBY interest waning? So is the old moon. But both will be back. It's an old Derby custom. Though the special trains to Louisville this year numerically were cut in half, though the attendance shrank 40 per cent and the mutuel total dwindled from a tannery to a shoestring, blame it on the shortage of cash, not of public interest.

The Derby has had many ups and downs, since its inauguration 57 years ago. But for the most part, a graph of its history would show a steady rise from the first Derby, when only 4000 persons saw Aristides win a purse of $2850. The peak undoubtedly would be the Reigh Count victory of 1928 when more than 75,000 persons, gathered from every section of the United States, saw John G. Hertz's great horse win $55,375—the richest prize ever won by a Kentucky Derby victor.

Depression days record a steady decline, since then. But when the economic sun shines again, a return to the Derby uptrend reasonably may be expected.

Derby Fever Epidemic.

THE fact is few persons, once smitten, ever recover from an attack of Derby fever. They become slaves of the lamp. They flutter back to the flame again and again, swearing after each trip to Churchill Downs "never again!" and always—if the bankroll permits—returning.

This year the hotels were not bursting with patronage, the restaurants were not telling hungry hordes "We're all out;" and the grandstand was not sardined, as usual. One might actually go down stairs to place a bet.

But in normal years, oh, boy! Watch out for that sore corn, you!

Johnson and Dean to Pitch Against the Giants Today

By J. Roy Stockton.

John McGraw says the Cardinals won't win the pennant this year, but Gabby Street and his men, who will meet the Giants in a double-header at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, are bearing up very well.

"We'll go right along with the schedule," the Old Sergeant said last evening when his attention was called to McGraw's statement by an attention-caller. "In fact you can say for me that I don't think McGraw is so hot as a prognosticator. It seems to me that he picked the Cardinals to run fourth in 1930 and unless the record book is all wrong, we played in the world series that year. Then last year he said we might finish as good as second. He was even kinder than that. He said the Cards were the team to beat and that he would beat us.

"But didn't we finish some 13 games or so ahead of the Giants? Yes, we did, and we think we're good enough to stave off all challengers this year and win our third straight flag. McGraw has been wrong before and once more won't hurt him."

The Master Mind.

Street's players also have taken McGraw's pronouncement lightly.

"Just another case of the Master Mind gone wrong," one of the athletes suggested after yesterday's postponement. "He's been saying for three or four years that our pitching staff was going to collapse and I guess he figures he's sure to be right some day."

The Cardinals respect McGraw. They consider him one of the shrewdest men in baseball, but they think he makes one big mistake, and that is in trying to do all the thinking for his club.

"You can't pitch or bat or do anything on your own judgment when you play for McGraw," one of the veterans explained. "That is his system, and he's been rather successful, so you can't blame him for sticking it it. But baseball has changed. We don't think we're dummies. We figure we can think fast enough to meet any emergency. But you can't do any thinking on the Giants. When you do, McGraw tells you you're weakening his ball club. But I can't see where anything is gained by destroying the initiative of the individual players."

Cards Do Their Own Thinking.

Street was asked what he thought of the bench-thinking system of running a ball club.

"Not very much," the Old Sergeant replied. "I believe I have a pretty smart ball club. Of course, there are times when a manager is expected to make a decision. Batters look for advice under certain circumstances. But I don't think you can go far with a ball club made up of men who have to look to the bench for orders on every play, every pitch. No, even in the old days, I didn't know of any manager, except McGraw, who insisted on doing the thinking."

Street will send Sylvester Johnson and Dizzy Dean against the Giants this afternoon. Johnson will pitch the first game, which will start at 1:30 o'clock, with Dizzy working the second. McGraw probably will use Fitzsimmons in one of the contests and Carl Hubbell, one of his southpaws, in the other.

McGraw is well fortified with left-handed pitchers, having four "crooked arms" on his staff. The others are Clarence Mitchell, Bill Walker and Jim Mooney.

John "Pepper" Martin the Cardinal center fielder, who suffered a dislocation of his left shoulder in the game at Cincinnati April 24, was in uniform yesterday for his first workout since the injury. He will be in uniform again today, but will confine his work to running. It will be 10 days or more before the Wild Horse of the Osage can return to duty.

Charley Gelbert will be back at short this afternoon. Eddie Delker cut his right hand on a piece of glass in Friday's game and he will be incapacitated for a few days. Gelbert had been resting because of an injured shoulder.

Owen Sets U. S. Scholastic Mark for 100-Yard Dash as U. City Wins in State Meet

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 7.—The national interscholastic record for the 100-yard dash was bettered here today by Jimmy Owen of Maplewood High School when he streaked to victory in 9.7 seconds, lowering by a tenth of a second the recognized mark held jointly by seven youths throughout the country.

The race, featuring the twenty-ninth annual Missouri State high school track and field championships, was run under ideal weather conditions for the sport with practically no wind stirring.

More than doubling the score of its nearest competitors, University City won the Class "A" championships with 47 3-5 points. Maplewood was second with 22 points, St. Joseph Central, third, with 17½, and Webster Groves fourth, with 17. University City is the present State indoor track champion.

The Class "B" title went to Shelbina with 22 5-6 points. Chillicothe finished with 18 points, Jackson with 14½, Webb City and Fulton with 13.

In Class "C" Hornersville was first, finishing with 26½ points. Drexel was second with 18, Cape Girardeau College High third with 16 and Newburg fourth with 12.

Three State Records Set.

Three State records and four class records were established this afternoon. In addition to Owen's feat, Bob Glenn of St. Joseph Central vaulted 12 feet 3¾ inches and University City team ran the 880-yard relay in 1 minute 31.4 seconds for other State records.

Class records went to Hayes of Tipton, who ran the half mile in Class "C" division in 2 minutes .2 seconds; DeSalme of Webster feet 3 inches to win that event in feet 8 inches to win that even in Class "A"; Kungle of Webb City, who threw the discus 119 feet 6¾ inches for a new Class "B" mark, and the Newburg 880-relay team which was clocked in 1 minute 35.6 seconds.

Burgoo King, away fast and cleverly rated, followed the pace closely until reaching the final three-eighths, where he easily wore down Economic and, drawing into a long, decisive command, won easily. Economic, taken into the lead, made the place under good rating, was no match for winner, but held on well, outstaying Stepenfetchit. Latter saved considerable ground in early stages, was under steadying restraint until reaching final half mile, rallied mildly when brought to outside in stretch and was wearing down Economic. Brandon Mint moved up fast at stretch turn and, despite lack of room, was going boldly in final stages. Over Time held on stubbornly in a good effort. Tick On, much used at the post and in close quarters much of the trip, could not get to leaders when clear and under severe pressure the final quarter. Our Fancy had no mishap. Gallant Sir Quit. Adobe Post had a rough trip. Liberty Limited fell badly lame and was pulled up.

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 7.—The thoroughbred son of a royally-bred sire, Burgoo King, came down the stretch today with a smashing drive to capture the rich Kentucky Derby, duplicate the victory of his sire, Bubbling Over in 1926, and give the hearts of the old Bluegrass their greatest thrill in many a Southern moon.

Burgoo King whipped the best that the East had to offer in an unwieldy field of 20 starters, whipped them all soundly, and gave his owner, Col. Edward Riley Bradley, the master of Idle Hour Farm of Lexington, honors that no turfman has ever gained before.

An unexpectedly big crowd of 40,000 roared its tribute to Colonel Bradley's third victory within a dozen years, a record for all time. In addition to the conquest of Bubbling Over in 1926, the Bradley entry of Behave Yourself and Black Servant ran one-two in 1921. Bagenbaggage, another Bradley horse, ran second to Bubbling over.

Wins by Five Lengths.

Taking full command in the stretch after being rated nicely all the way by Jockey Eugene James, a former Louisville news boy, Burgoo King left little doubt he was the best of the three-year-olds in this fifty-eighth running of America's most colorful horse race.

The big chestnut son of Bubbling Over-Minawan finished five good lengths in front of his nearest Eastern rival, Economic, owned by J. H. Loucheim of New York.

Economic after setting the pace for the first mile and then being unequal to meeting Burgoo King's strong finish, saved the place by the margin of a head over Stepenfetchit, main hope of the stable of Mrs. John Hay Whitney of New York and ridedn by the veteran Buddy Ensor.

A half length behind Stepenfetchit, noses separated the next three horses as Brandon Mint finished fourth, Overtime, the other Whitney entry, with Earl Sande in the saddle, fifth, and the heavily-played favorite, Mrs. Louis G. Kaufmann's Tick On, sixth.

Tick On Delays Start.

Tick On went to the barrier the popular choice at odds of 9 to 5, but used up most of its energy in bad behavior at the barrier. The black son of On Watch contributed mainly to the delay of exactly 15½ minutes at the post, finally broke poorly, was kicked in an early jam and never a contender despite the efforts of Jockey Pete Walls to pull the favorite out of the ruck. Tick on manifested plenty of gameness and speed in spite of misbehavior and bad breaks, which effectually destroyed any real chance this colt had of giving the winner a race.

Burgoo King's stable mate, Brother Joe, finished last after Liberty Limited, the hope of the Three D's Stable of Fort Worth, Tex., broke down in the back stretch, but nobody paid any attention to that oddity as the handsome victor came back to the stands to receive a terrific ovation while Gov. Ruby Laffoon presented the trophy to Col. Bradley.

With the complete entry list of 20 going to the barrier, thereby upsetting expectations of a half dozen scratches, the Derby was worth $62,875.

The winner's net earnings amounted to $52,350. Economic drew down $6000, Stepenfetchit $3000 and Brandon Mint $1000.

Burgoo King, going to the post at odds of slightly better than 5½ to 1, paid the good price of $13.24 to win, for each $2 ticket in the mutuels, also $5.08 to place and $4 to show. Economic paid $15.62 to place and $8.54 to show while Stepenfetchit's price to show was $3.52.

Burgoo King's winning price was the best the machines have shown since Zev romped to victory under Sande's guidance in 1923.

Derby Winner Named After Kentucky Stew

THE Derby winner is named after a delicacy known to all Kentuckians, Burgoo, served at many outdoor gatherings. Burgoo is a composition of meat and vegetables on the order of a stew. "Thick soup" is what outsiders call it, to the great disgust of Kentuckians. "Nectar and ambrosia," the hardboots reply, and swear it has the barbecues and corn pones of other states beaten 40 ways for flavor and aroma.

Victory Worth $52,350 to Bradley; His Third Triumph in Turf Classic

By W. J. MacBETH.

Of the New York Herald-Tribune Sports Staff.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—Burgoo King, stout-hearted son of Bubbling Over that won his own Derby in front of the greatest crowd that ever watched thoroughbred sport in the New World, ran right back to type this afternoon in the fifty-eighth Kentucky Derby. A perfect ride on the part of Eugene James, whose contract Mr. Bradley bought from the estate of the late Joe Leiter, gave the hard boots an opportunity to celebrate as they celebrate only when a horse of the Blue Grass wins.

Burgoo King won by five lengths. He won by himself when and how he pleased. There was no fight for the honors through the stretch, as is usually the custom. It seemed more a parade than a horse race. The time tells the story. The only fight was for secondary honors. J. H. Louchheim's Economic just did last to beat Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepenfetchit a head for second money. A half length further back, Brandon Mint, Over Time and Tick On were so closely bunched none but the judges knew which was fourth or sixth.

Burgoo King won in the ridiculously easy time of 2:05 1-5. That time typifies the dreadful afternoon about as plainly as it could be typified. It was a Derby day. But it wasn't a Derby crowd or a Derby enthusiasm or a real Derby race. Ideal weather conditions prevailed and all the score of nominations paraded to the post before a crowd of 40,000 persons. But the kick just wasn't there.

Field Bulky, Start Bad.

It may have been the fault of the starter. Few worse starts could be conceived. With 20 horses going the stall gate contrivance was set up on the main track proper at the quarter pole, which is on the bend before the turn into the home stretch. The inside horses were piled up, a fact which probably cost the popular young Mrs. John Hay Whitney whatever chance she had of victory. Stepenfetchit, which finished third, had a very strong journey under the veteran Buddy

CUBS MAKE ALL RUNS IN SIXTH; BILLY HERMAN GETS THREE HITS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 7.—One bad inning by Brooklyn decided a mound duel between Pat Malone and Babe Phelps today and gave the Cubs their second successive victory over the Dodgers today, 3 to 0.

Phelps pitched well except in the sixth inning, when Chicago, led by young Bill Herman, scored all its runs. Malone was a bit wobbly at the start, giving four walks in the first two innings, but he settled down and pitched a six-hit shoutout and fanned seven batters.

The victory extended the Cubs' home winning streak to nine victories in 12 games. It dropped Brooklyn to seventh place in the standing, behind the idle New York Giants.

Bill Jurges opened the big sixth inning with a single and Malone sacrificed him to second. Richbourg sent him along to third. Herman, who had a perfect day with three hits, including the only extra base blow, drove Jurges home with the deciding tally.

Woody English made the fourth single of the inning to send in Richbourg. Then Phelps muffed a return throw from Lopez and before he recovered Herman went in from third with the final tally.

Six double plays were made in the game. Four were credited to Brooklyn, but Charley Grimm of the Cubs engineered the best when he went into the dirt for O'Doul's grounder in the seventh, threw to Jurges to retire Frederick and took the return throw to complete the play.

GERMANY WINS FIRST TWO MATCHES IN CUP PLAY AGAINST INDIA

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 7.—Germany today won the first two singles matches of the first round Davis Cup series with India. Gottfried von Cramm defeated Charaljva, 6—2, 6—0, 6—1, and Daniel Prenn winning from Madanmohan, 6—2, 7—5, 6—1.

The doubles will be played tomorrow and the last two singles Monday.

CLEVELAND WINS FROM ROOSEVELT; TIGHTENS RACE

By Harold Tuthill.

The City High School League baseball race became tighter when Roosevelt lost ground by dropping an 11-to-9 decision to Cleveland in the second game of the doubleheader at the Public School Stadium yesterday afternoon. Soldan buried McKinley, 26 to 0, in the first contest. Threatening weather kept the attendance down to a handful.

As a result of the Rough Riders' first defeat in seven contests, Cleveland and Beaumont, tied for second, are now one full game back of the leaders, with a record of five victories and two losses. McKinley fell deeper into the cellar as Soldan won its third game in seven starts.

Soldan enjoyed a field day at McKinley's expense as the West Enders had 25 hits, eight of which were for extra bases. Max Haarper led the attack with two doubles, three singles and a walk in seven trips to the plate. Brand hit a home run with Haubenriser on base to account for two of Soldan's seven runs in the seventh.

Roosevelt executed a triple play in the eighth inning of the game with Cleveland. With the bases filled, Murphy lined to Shy, who stepped on second and threw to Puttnam at first base.

PRINCETON WINS FOUR RACES FROM M. I. T.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7.—Princeton's crews swept to four successive impressive victories over the Engineers from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in their regatta today on Lake Carnegie.

WRESTLERS IN OLYMPIC TRIALS HERE TUESDAY

St. Louis amateur wrestlers in three divisions are putting on the finishing touches of training for the divisional Olympic wrestling tryouts to be held at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., Tuesday night. Competition will be in the 134, 145 and 174-pound divisions.

Additional interest has been taken in the tournament with receipt of entries from several out-of-town wrestlers.

Oklahoma A. and M. College, long the Notre Dame of the college wrestling world, has entered Leroy McGuirk in the 147-pound class. Other out-of-town entrants in the same division include Mark Wagner, Nate Willis and Steve Litwicki of Little Rock, Ark. Harold Campbell will represent the Kansas City Y. M. H. A. in the welterweight group.

Joe Brungard of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. and leading light among St. Louis amateur wrestlers, is the chief threat in the path of the visitors who hope to win the 174-pound title. Millco Occhi, former city champion, of the North Side Y. M. C. A., is a title hope in the 147-pound class.

More than 25 wrestlers are expected to take part in the eliminations. Entries will close with Nathan Shatz, Western A. A. U. wrestling chairman, tomorrow.

Wilkes-Barre Gets Southpaw.

Melvin A. Miller, a southpaw pitcher, has been sent to the Wilkes-Barre NYP League club by Toledo.

ASSOCIATION OWNERS WILL MEET THURSDAY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 7.—American Association club owners were asked to attend a special meeting here next Thursday by President Thomas J. Hickey today. President Hickey said there was no special significance attached to the meeting, but it was known action would be suggested to stimulate the box office receipts, probably through the medium of more double-headers.

WRAY'S COLUMN

spring. It may also rip your bankroll or even your shoes!

It's like this: On the occasion of our first visit to the Derby we were fortunate enough to get a toe-hold on a room near the railroad station. There were three of us in this room and one had to drape himself on the lounge. But that was comparative luxury. Many slept in chairs in the lobby. Others on cots in all the hallways.

Going out in the morning in the hallway we saw one sleeping veteran who evidently had profited by previous sad experience. To prevent any light-fingered party from stealing his footwear, he had put a leg of his iron bed into each shoe!

* * *

The Old Swimming Hole.

ONE year the hotels were so badly crowded that one of them with a swimming pool drained the tank and filled it with cots at so much per flop. The idea was good until some wag with an overload of mountain dew turned on the water. For the guests that Derby was a washout.

* * *

Reporting at Its Worst.

AS late as 1923 reporting the Derby was a job for an acrobat. The stands had not been remodeled. The press box had accomodations for local reporters only. Private boxes were equipped for newspaper work; but even then there was no working room for about 200 reporters.

It was like that when this writer from a position astraddle the ridgepole of the grandstand extension, saw Zev come speeding down the stretch in one of the biggest surprises in history of the Derby. That hip roof didn't have snakes' hips, we assure you.

From where we sat the far turn and the entry into the stretch were not visible at all. And it was not until the chart was available after the race that we knew what had happened during this important phase of the struggle.

And the Rain Descended.

BY 1925 all this had been changed. Accommodations for 300 newspaper men were provided. Still, so numerous were the reporters that many of those who came hundreds of miles hoping to see Quatrain, the favorite, duplicate Black Gold's feat of 1924, had to stand on the flat roof of the press box in a driving rain, as Flying Ebony spilled the beans by winning.

St. Louis Not in It.

ALTHOUGH St. Louis in normal years has supported the Derby stoutly, its interest in the event has seldom been helped by a locally owned entry. Although once a fine thoroughbred breeding state, few Missouri bred horses have competed.

The last time St. Louis had a "hope" in the race was the year Flying Ebony won. Then August A. Busch's colors were represented.

That was a big year for St. Louis attendance at the Derby, although few believed the Chief had the ghost of a chance. Drummond Jones, a member of the Busch party, gave a hint as to what might be expected.

CHIEF UNCAS.

"Did you come down to see the Chief win?" Jones was asked.

"Well," he countered, "I came down to see him start."

That's about all he did. The Chief, normally a front runner of great speed, never even flashed. Instead, about a quarter of a mile behind the field, Chief Uncas dribbled in, a bedraggled, spattered, forlorn looking object. He might have been lapped by Flying Ebony had the race been two miles and one-quarter.

The Chief redeemed himself later and proved a first-class race horse up to six furlongs. But apparently Mr. Busch decided to quit the Derby game. Since that time St. Louis has not had any local pride to cheer for.

They're in Again.

ILLINOIS has gone to the powwows again. That is to say, it has gone greyhound. Just as everyone, including Eddie O'Hare, the master mind of the International Association, had turned their backs on the canines, Thornton track, in the Chicago district, came to life.

Since Monday greyhound races have been held at this course, under an injunction issued pending the result of an appeal to a higher court.

This "pending" is worth money to the dogs—about $5000 a day, conservatively speaking. If it takes 60 days to settle the appeal, why, the dog track promoters will be a mere bagatelle of $300,000 richer.

"Enjoin and grow rich," is the greyhound slogan. We expect to hear it proclaimed in Missouri, ere long.

Another Noble Experiment.

IN Chicago another "noble experiment" is being conducted. Eddie O'Hare, whose interests were lately with the dogs, is now trying to sell the public the half mile track idea for horses.

Believing that dog days were over, O'Hare converted his track at a cost of more than $400.000 and started racing last Monday.

Many were skeptical about the future of such a venture. To begin with, O'Hare had to lay $45,000 on the line in advance, to pay the 18 days' tax at $2500 a day. Also, it was uncertain whether the authorities would frown on the half-milers. These as a rule enjoy none too savory a reputation. The Jockey Club usually pinches the nose between thumb and forefinger at the mere mention of the "merry-go-rounds."

In this case, however, the authorities have refrained from buying chips in the game. Seemingly they want to see what will come of the experiment. It may mean a change of policy in horse racing.

* * *

Not So Bad.

THUS far, the evidence is somewhat in favor of the half milers. On the first day of the meet the pari-mutuel handle was $134,000 and the paid admissions $5300. The second day it rained, but the handle was $69,000 and the paid admission $3800. The third day the mutuels totaled $114,900 and the gate receipts over $5000 and on the fourth day the mutuels were $89,000 and the paid admissions $4800.

With only a 6½ per cent takeout and a daily tax overhead of $2500, this does not leave any too great a margin. But considering that the half-mile idea must be sold first, and that Aurora is running in competition, O'Hare feels satisfied with his progress.

On the basis of his third day's receipts and sales, the Cicero track is able to earn about $12,000 a day, which ought to give it a profit. Considering its newness, the O'Hare experiment reasonably may be expected to prosper.

* * *

Fine for Spectator.

IN fact, there are many who are saying that the horse races of the future will be conducted on half-mile courses which are more acceptable to spectators. From the stands a clear and near view of the entire race is possible, whereas on mile tracks the horses are just a tangle that the eye cannot unravel.

The new track, according to O'Hare, will require one year in which to "sell itself" to the public and after that it will go over big, he thinks.

The half-mile track is not conducted on a free gate basis, adheres strictly to the Illinois Turf Association regulations, has no "ladies' days" and advertises that a dollar a head is enough to tax visitors.

That ought to keep it going for a while.

* * *

The Low Down.

WESTMINSTER COLLEGE, football champions of the State college conference, has not abandoned football permanently, we learn by grapevine. It announces that, for a year, it has thought best to shut down.

The thought seems to have been influenced somewhat by two circumstances: One was the depression, the other was the matter of a hint from the North Central Association that Westminster might enjoy a better standing with that purity body (the North Central) if it refrained from gridiron activity for a twelvemonth.

Other universities have been chided by the same body, without accepting the hint. One of these was Northwestern University, which told the North Central to go take a running jump out of the picture.

In the meantime, Washington University is running around hunting a football opponent for Oct. 15. Westminster's plight is something of a disappointment to Washington, which this year will miss the expected chance to mop up the field with its Blue Jay tormentors of previous seasons.

LONG WALLOPS HELP CROWDER; HEINE MANUSH HAS GOOD DAY

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Six extra base blows, including a homer by Carl Reynolds and triples by Manush and Myer, gave Washington a 7 to 2 victory over Chicago today and Alvin Crowder his fifth winning start of the year.

While the Senators were larruping three White Sox pitchers, Crowder pitched steadily. A double play with the bases full pulled him from a hole in the second.

COLLEGE TO PROTEST WHITE SOX ACTION IN SIGNING STUDENT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.

DECLARING the Chicago White Sox had "snatched" Clarence Fieber, freshman pitcher, out of school, after only four months of college, University of San Francisco authorities today declared a formal protest would be filed with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball.

Fieber was signed yesterday by a scout for the Chicago club. The 18-year-old mound sensation is slated to leave tonight to join the American League team.

YALE CREW WINS BLACKWELL CUP VARSITY RACE

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Yale came within ane race of sweeping the Upper Schuylkill in the annual Blackwell Cup regatta today by taking the varsity, junior varsity and 150-pound races.

Pennsylvania kept the Blue from making it a cleanup by impressively winning the freshman race.

More than 20,000 persons saw the Blue-tipped Yale blades flash over the line of the new flat-rock dam course three full lengths ahead of Columbia with Penn a trifle more than a length back of the New Yorkers. Yale covered the mile and a half in 7 minutes, 58 seconds, while Columbia did 8:10. Water conditions were ideal but a slight head wind prevented the crews from cutting a few more seconds off the time.

Yale led all the way in the varsity race, Stroke John Jackson of New Haven never raising the pace above 38. Columbia made a bid to overhaul the Blue three-quarters of a mile after the start but Stroke Macrae Sykes and his crewmates were not equal to the occasion. In the last quarter-mile Yale was pulling away from Columbia and Penn, the latter trying desperately to overhaul the Lions.

Penn, stroked by Peter Reed of Worcester, Mass., put over the surprise of the regatta in winning the freshman event by three-quarters of a length from Yale in 8 minutes, 6 seconds, with Columbia several lengths back of the Bulldogs.

In the opening event for varsity 150-pound eights over the Henley course of one and five-sixteenths miles, Yale had at least a length and a half to spare over Penn, with Columbia four lengths back of the Quakers.

BLACKSTRAP WINS AT AURORA WHEN CAPACITY RUNS OUT

AURORA, Ill., May 7.—Mrs. Emil Denemark's Stable scored its third feature victory of the Exposition Park meeting today when Blackstrap, a three-year-old son of Tryster-Pongee, defeated Capacity, the favorite, in the top race of the program.

Capacity, leading, ran out at the head of the stretch and the Denemark colt came on to win ry a length, with Altmark third. The time for the five and one-half furlongs was 1:10 3-5 over a slow track, and the winner paid $9.62 for each $2 straight ticket.

Ensor. He came down to the judges the first time full or run but hemmed in hopelessly in the crowding cavalcade.

In the back stretch Ensor took back to go to the outside and made a very dangerous trip but just when it appeared he had clear sailing he found himself blocked by Brandon Mint. All through the remainder of the race the colt was full of run but had no freedom to do his best. He might have given a much better account of himself with a usual break in racing luck.

Tick On's Luck Is Bad.

Tick On, the popular choice for the race, had even worse luck than Stepenfetchit. Much of this was his own fault, of course, for he was very fractious. He was one of several which delayed the start. Indeed, they had a hard time to get him into his stall. Caught in the early jam, at the break, he was in trouble most of the way and Walls had no opportunity to let the horse run until it was altogether too late.

This was perhaps the cheapest Kentucky Derby that ever was run, though one of the richest, paying the winner the handsome total of $52,350. The field of 20 named overnight went out to try to realize on the fine odds starting fees offered but of these 20 no more than four had a chance to win from the way racing luck broke. These were Economic, the early pacemaker; Burgoo King, the eventual winner; Brandon Mint and Our Fancy. Our Fancy, a field horse, was in the swim but in it early and only long enough to bother much better horses.

The break ruined the chances of nearly all the others but particularly those of Tick On, the favorite, and Stepenfetchit, the second choice. In the first quarter of a mile as the field dashed from the start at the top of the stretch these public choices were far in the rut. Even then their chances were doomed. It was as if a huge fan were spread in front of Tick On, which found himself in the middle of the track boxed up among the trailers, while Stepenfetchit, closer to the rail, was in just as unfavorable a position.

Economic's Great Chance.

Going past the grandstand and clubhouse in the run to the first turn, Economic was clearly in front with the track before him. A length back was Brandon Mint and lapped on this one was Burgoo King, with the latter's stablemate a comfortable fourth and on the outside. To all intents and purposes there was the race, for behind them the field was a bumping tangle with jockeys and horses seemingly at a loss as to where to go. Scarcely one behind the four mentioned was lucky enough to escape some sort of interference.

Around that all-important first turn there was little change in positions as the front runners headed for the back stretch. Frankie Horn, on Economic, turned into the long lane in the back side with a lead of two lengths. Behind him was Brandon Mint with Burgoo King moving up until the pair continued almost as a team in pursuit of Economic. Brother Joe, meantime, had dropped out of contention, leaving the issue squarely up to the son of Bubbling Over, which had won the greatest of all Kentucky Derbies back in 1926.

It was hard to locate Tick On and Stepenfetchit as the field lengthened out in the backstretch but midway down that path opposite the grand stand, Buddy Ensor pulled Stepenfetchit to the outside and set sail for the leaders. He passed horse after horse very encouragingly to his backers and got up to fourth. Pete Walls, on the favorite, Tick On, was so bottled up that he could not find clear sailing at any time. He was blocked in every move he made as if such were anticipated by those in front of him and had a rough journey every part of the way.

A Two-Horse Finish.

As they reached the far turn it began to look as if nothing possibly could catch Economic. There was still plenty of daylight between him and Brandon Mint, but Burgoo King, on the outside, was in an admirable position to come on. Midway from the far turn to the head of the stretch Burgoo King passed Brandon Mint, but still he had much running to do to offer contention to Economic. Not until the home turn was reached did Economic show any signs of giving up. Horn was saving every possible inch of ground to save his pacemaker by hugging the rail while Burgoo King was charging to the outside of him. The real test came as Economic rounded the home turn.

Little Eugene James on Burgoo King reached for his whip. It came down twice on Burgoo King's flanks and like a good colt the son of Bubbling Over responded to the urge. Economic had scarcely straightened for the run home than the Bradley colt was at his side. At this stage the race had developed into a two-horse affair. Stepenfetchit made a bid and closed considerable ground. But in doing so this effort seemed to have told on him and the real pinch came. Ensor had only a tiring horse in Brandon Mint to overhaul which he did in the final furlong. Burgoo King had little else to do but gallop once he took the lead and from the eighth pole he drew out with comparative ease until he was five lengths in front of Economic and Stepenfetchit as he caught the judges' eyes.

BETTOR COLLECTS $15,000 FOR $500 BET MADE WITH KEARNEY

WHILE the defeat of Tick On in the Derby saved Tom Kearney from a severe loss on his winter book, the local betting commissioner was punished considerably by one wager of $500, which was laid on Burgoo King when his price 30 to 1. On that bet alone Kearney dropped $15,000. It was made by an emissary of Tom Shaw, Eastern betting commissioner, who is the only man in the country besides Kearney to operate a future book.

However, Kearney, while not able to determine the exact outcome of his operations figured last night that he had broken even, at least.

Economic, the place horse in the Derby and Stepenfetchit, which finished third, were at one time quoted at 50 to 1 in the future book, but were hammered down in later betting.

Kearney laid prices of 4 to 1 to win, 3 to 1 to place and 2 to 1 to show against Tick On, and had the horse finished in the money he would have suffered quite a loss.

Missouri Tigers Defeat Kansas And Retain Lead

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 7.—The Missouri Tigers, behind the pitching of yesterday's home-run hero, Wilbert Asbury, won their second straight victory of their series here with Kansas Jayhawks this afternoon, 6 to 3.

The victory puts Jack Crangle's team well out in front in Big Six Conference baseball race.

The Tigers hit Cooley, Kansas hurler, for a dozen safeties, while Asbury limited his hits to five. Webb Embry, Missouri captain, collected three hits in four times at bat for slugging honors.

Batteries: Kansas—Cooley and O'Neil; Missouri — Asbury and Fruit.

BETTING AT THE TRACK HALF OF THAT IN 1931; $277,000 ON THE DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—Though a near-capacity crowd of 40,000 attended the Kentucky Derby today, the bettors wagered only half as much as they did last year.

Approximately $1,600,000 was bet in the mutuels on the seven Derby day races in 1931, of which almost $500,000 was bet on the Derby itself, today the total wagers were slightly over $800,000, the Derby accounting for approximately $277,000.

DAN TAYLOR SOLD BY CUBS TO BROOKLYN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 7.—The Chicago Cubs today sold Outfielder Dan Taylor to Brooklyn. The price was said to have been slightly more than the waiver figures.

Equals World Record Twice in One Week

Ralph Metcalfe, Negro sprinter of Marquet te University, twice within one week equalled the world record of 9.5 for the 100-yard dash. His fi rst effort was in the Drake relays, a week ago Saturday, as shown above, when he finished in front of Oliver of Texas Christian, Klaner of Kansas and Barnett of Mississippi. Friday night in a dual meet at Milwaukee against Wisconsin he repeated the mark, although warned by his coach not to ex tend himself.

WASHINGTON U. TRACK TEAM IS DEFEATED BY WESTMINSTER

The Washington University track team was defeated in its second dual meet of the season, yesterday afternoon, when the Westminster athletes took 10 of 15 first to defeat the Bears by a score of 78 to 53 at Francis Field.

Bill Toney, a Bluejay, was the high scorer of the meet with 14 points, and his teammate, Kenneth Thompson, was second with 11. Deibel was third and high for Washington with 10 points, while Duncan of Westminster, followed him closely with nine counters.

The track was not in the best of condition, which made the going rather slow for the sprints. The best mark of the day was turned in by Duncan in the javelin. He threw the spear exactly 189 feet. Another good mark was made by Toney in the mile run. He went the distance in 4 minutes 45.1 seconds.

The summaries:

There Goes Al.

I SEE the King of Racketeers
Has got to serve eleven years
As Uncle Sammy's guest.
While this may be les majeste,
We must admit when he was free,
He was an awful pest.

So "Scarface" Al, in durance vile,
Behind the bars for quite a while
Must hide his classic pan;
At that those Judges had a nerve
To say that Al his term must serve
Just like a common man.

But still it only goes to show
That now and then a man with dough
Can be condemned to jail;
And if his taxes he should dodge,
In Leavenworth he's apt to lodge,
In spite of all his kale.

At that he gets off pretty cheap,
For now in safety he can sleep,
Devoid of any fear.
His sentence would much longer run
If every notch upon his gun
Should represent a year.

Too True.

"Believe It Or Not" says: "Gloomy Gus Williams of the Browns fanned 120 times in 1914." That's why they gave him the air.

See where Earl Sande is going to ride Over Time in the Derby. Does he get time-and-a-half for that?

Ouch!

If sport writers occupying ringside seats at wrestling matches want to perfect a defense against the pachyderms that have a habit of falling in their laps why not wear spiked pants?

"Setting Hens Betray Thieves."

Those setting hens, the robbers catch,
And send them to the booby hatch.

The Commerce Commission of Illinois is inquiring into the 25 cent monthly fee for cradle telephone sets. Another rap at an infant industry.

Not So Tough.

In three years of college football Steve Hamas had six major injuries, all broken bones. In 29 professional prize fights the worst he ever got was one black eye. But don't forget that when he got that shiner he was fighting only one man instead of eleven.

That Los Angeles man whose name is Void B. Null was probably born at the zero hour.

There may be a depression in some lines of business, but the Browns, White Sox, Indians and Tigers, we notice, have been trading in a big way.

If we were to take a guess at the ancestry of Burning Blaze, the Derby candidate, we'd say he was by Smoking Smoke out of Wet Water.

"Behavior Rules for Fans Urged."

We were afraid of that.

They'll keep on until the grand old pastime has been so denatured that it will develop into a contest of skill between two baseball teams.

JOHN MANION AND GULDAHL PLAY AMATEURS AT ALGONQUIN

By W. J. McGoogan.

Continuing the Sunday afternoon golf exhibition schedule under the auspices of the Professional Golfers' Association, there will be an interesting contest at Algonquin Golf Club, Berry road and Algonquin lane, this afternoon in which Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis Country Club professional, and John Manion, Sunset Hill professional, will oppose Jim Manion, Normandie amateur, and Dick Bockenkamp, Algonquin, amateur.

Guldahl has lost but one of the four exhibitions in which he has played, but the foursome this afternoon should provide some of the best golf of any of the contests thus far. Jim Manion and Bockenkamp are outstanding amateurs of the district, each having won the State and district championships, among other titles. They have been prominent in golf affairs of this city for many years. They should provide the two professionals with hard competition and have an excellent chance of winning. Jim and John Manion are brothers.

Algonquin is one of the picture golf spots of the district, possessing marvelous fairways and greens which, under the able supervision of Col. A. J. Goetz, are in the best of condition now. The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charged.

Many Tournaments.

Numerous golf tournaments of district, State and national character are scheduled within the next two months and entries for some of them must be made soon. For the information of those who wish to enter these tournaments a list of the events and conditions follow:

St. Louis District—May 23 to 28 at Westborough Country Club. Entry fee $5 must be made to Clarence Wolff, Clayton, by May 20. Members of clubs belonging to the District Association are eligible.

United States Open Tournament—Fresh Meadow Golf Club, New York. June 23-25. St. Louis sectional tryout at Algonquin Golf Club, June 12, 36 holes of medal play. Entries close May 17. Entry fee $5 must be paid with entry to United States Golf Association, 110 East Forty-second street, New York City. Amateurs with club handicap of three or less and all professionals are eligible to enter.

Public Links Tournament—Louisville, Ky., July 19-23. Entries close July 5, United States Golf Association, entry fee $5. Public links players eligible. John Griffin, secretary Forest Park Golf Club in charge of St. Louis entries.

United States Intercollegiate—Hot Springs, Va. Entry fee $10 for students of colleges belonging to Intercollegiate Association. Nonmember schools must pay additional $10 fee. Entries close June 15 at U. S. G. A. headquarters. Freshmen not eligible.

Park Golfers Qualify.

An 18-hole qualifying round to decide the 12 Forest Park golfers who will represent the Forest Park Golf Club in the St. Louis district tournament is to be held Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. John Griffin, secretary of the Forest Park club, is in charge.

Normandie Golf Club has reduced its guest fees. The charge now is, for week days, $1; Saturdays, 2; Sundays and holidays, $1.50 for single round and $2 for double round. Guests who are not paying full dues in other golf clubs are permitted to play but once in a calendar month.

North Hills has instituted a new plan for its east course. Payment of $10 gives a golfer the privilege of playing there until March 31, 1933, by paying green fees of $1 for week days, $1.50 for Sundays and holidays. Women, holding cards, will be permitted to play for 50 cents for 18 holes up to 11 o'clock in the morning on week days, regular fees other days.

Klein Goes to Broadmoor.

Earl Klein, Woodlawn Country Club youngster, who won the St. Louis district junior championship in 1929, will depart soon for Colorado Springs, Colo., where he has accepted a position with the Broadmoor Country Club. He will attend Colorado College next fall.

Wyndham Monroe, golf pro at the Madison County Country Club, announces he will give private golf lessons, beginning tomorrow, at the driving course at 6525 Page boulevard. He will hold classes Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays.

St. Louis Pistol & Revolver Club.

Ed Frechmann, 86; S. J. Beeche, 84; Paul Staeuble, 83; William J. P. Rich, 79; C. E. Burgdorf, 79; Bob Coose, 79; A. C. Boefer, 78; Ed Niemeyer, 77; Charles Frechmann, 76; Fred E. Bahn, 74; L. Nevlin, 72; Dr. C. G. D'Oench, 72; Theo. Birkenmaier, 71; W. L. Staats, 69; Brent Williams, 67; Dr. C. B. Poore, 66; R. F. Dietrich, 45; Howard E. Miller, 43; P. E. Yetter, 35; Wm. Siebert, 35; Albert Ills, 33; Dr. Walton, 27.

The scores were shot from the 20-yard line, slow fire, on the standard American indoor target, on the club's indoor range.

MATE FOURTH IN FIRST 1932 RACE; INCEPTION ALSO BEATS A RECORD

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 7.—The Audley Farm's Gallant Knight, in and outer most of the time, today won the $15,000 added Dixie Handicap, beating Mate and six others in the mile and three-sixteenth feature at Pimlico.

Mate was making his four-year-old debut.

Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt's Sun Meadow was second and Walter M. Jeffords' Aegis, third.

Gallant Knight covered the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:58 to set a new track record, and paid his backers $7.70 to win, $3.50 to place and $2.70 to show for $2 mutuel tickets.

Mate, making his 1932 bow, after his great showing as a three-year-old in 1931, when he disputed with Twenty Grand the leadership of the class, ran fourth, and was followed by Royal Ruffin, Blenheim, Flagstone and Annimessic.

Gallant Knight's performance was the second record-breaking one of the day for the crowd of 20,000, the largest of the meeting so far. Rigan McKinney's Inception clipped two and three-fifths seconds off the track record for the two-mile jumping course in winning the $3000 Green Spring Valley Steeplechase, secondary feature.

The Audley horse got away in first position and held it to the end, winning from Sun Meadow by five lengths. Sun Meadow in turn led Aegis by the same margin and Mate was a length back.

Mate, ridden by Pete Bostwick, young brother of his owner, got away poorly in seventh place, pulled up to third at the quarter pole, but could not better that position. He dropped back to fourth as Aegis moved up, and steadily lost ground to the end.

Hitch-Hiking Across Ocean Is Big Problem for Ezar

Young Golf Pro Wants to Play in British Open but Old Man Depression Is Bothering Him Much More Than Old Man Par.

By W. J. McGoogan.

How can you get across the Atlantic Ocean when you have less than $100? That is the question to which Joe Ezar, young golf professional, is seeking the answer for he wants to be at Muirfield, Scotland, next month in time to play in the British Open championship.

If it were only to California or to New York, it would be a simple matter for Ezar for he has traveled back and forth across this broad land on more than one occasion playing in the big golf tournaments as he went. But you can't hitch hike over the ocean so Joe is trying to gather enough funds together to make the trip. He believes this is the year of years for him to make a showing in the traditional event.

JOE EZAR.

Ezar's Viewpoint.

He looks at it this way: Only four United States stars are going. They are Walter Hagen, MacDonald Smith, Tommy Armour, the defending champion, and Gene Sarazen. Now Ezar has played in many tournaments with these men. He has had scores of approximately 290 for many 72-hole events and was lucky to place in the first 20, but he thinks that 290 in the British open would land him well up in the prize list. And so it would, judging by past records.

Anyway this young fellow—he is not yet 21 years of age—is teaching golf wherever he can find a pupil to instruct at one of the driving tees in the county, playing golf for money and entering tournaments in an effort to save $300 by May 20, which he declares will be enough to take him to Scotland and back, steerage.

Ezar was born in Shawnee, Ok., of Syrian parents and has been playing golf since he was able to swing a club. He started as a caddy in Waco, Tex., and played as often as possible. Always for money. That's why Joe declares now he can play better under pressure than any other time for he always was willing to play for as much money as he happened to have. Sometimes he won, sometimes he lost, but he doesn't choke now when the stakes are big.

Ben Richter, Triple A professional is among those who has had a taste of Joe's ability to go in the heat and he pays eloquent testimony to Ezar's courage in a way that only Richter can.

"Why that guy is the most spectacular golfer I ever saw," declared Ben. "He's what I'd call unconscious. He makes shots that just ain't in the book. I was playing in a foursome with him in California one time, $1 syndicates, double for birdies and we had other bets too. There were other good professionals in the group besides myself and we all had Ezar down with only four holes to go. And do you know what he did? Why he poured four successive birdies into us.

"And he certainly gets around this country, how, nobody knows, but he does. I ran into him one day in La Jolla, Cal., driving the most dilapidated Ford I ever saw, trying to scrape together enough money to buy gasoline to get to the next tournament."

But that was only one time of the many that Ezar has traveled in unorthodox fashion to a golf event. He has walked, hitch hiked and has ridden Pullmans when the breaks were with him. But his golf clubs always ride in state for he ships them by express so that he will be sure to have them when he arrives.

Loses Eastern Job.

Ezar was formerly assistant to Bobby Cruickshank at Purchase Country Club, New York, but the stock market crash helped him lose his job and he has been casting about trying for another ever since. He had a good round in the San Francisco open last winter, but that night was run over by an automobile and laid up for several weeks. He has recovered now and that he is fit and ready again is shown by his five most recent rounds in St. Louis, over different courses when he has been but one shot above 73s. He won the Crystal Lake invitation tournament Sunday, then finished in the money in the pro-amateur at Meadow Brook last Monday.

Joe believes that he will finish in the money in the British open and that's all he needs to insure his success — so if you know any way to get to Scotland for less than $100 let him know.

Venturer, 100 to 1 Shot, Is Victor In Kempton Park Race

By the Associated Press.

KEMPTON PARK, England, May 7.—H. Eves' four-year-old Venturer, carrying 107 pounds, today won the great jubilee handicap, defeating Captain Wilson's Hillcat by three-quarters of a length. Another half-length back in third place followed Mrs. Arthur James' Pricket.

Venturer, a bay colt by Prince Galahad, was quoted at 100 to 1, while Hillcat started at 7 to 2 and Prickett at 11 to 2. The race was worth $12,500. Fifteen ran the mile and a quarter distance.

TROLLEY LEAGUE RESUMES AFTER 8-YEAR LAPSE

The historic Trolley League, closely wrapped up in years past with the development of St. Louis baseball players who graduated to the majors, will resume action, after a lapse of eight years, this afternoon in three nearby Illinois towns.

Six clubs will comprise the reorganized league, those being the Ben Millers of St. Louis (which will play all their games away from home), Alton Standards, Mount Olive Merchants, Edgemont A. C., St. Louis Dairy of Belleville, and Geissler's of Belleville.

Experienced Men Head Teams.

Men who have had a wide background of experience in professional baseball are at the helm of the teams. Probably the most widely known is Ham Patterson, veteran minor league manager, who at one time was part owner of the Dallas club in the Texas League. Patterson will manage the St. Louis Dairys.

Jim Bennett, former American Association player, will manage the Alton Standards, and Gus Gockel, also a former minor league player, will handle the Mount Olive Merchants. The Ben Millers of St. Louis will be coached by Dee Walsh, a former member of the Browns, and Ray Beese, former minor leaguer, will manage the Edgemont A. C. Men who have had professional experience will also assist in handling the Geissler team of Belleville.

Three Games Each Sunday.

Three league games will be played each Sunday. The opening day's schedule is: Alton Standards vs. Ben Millers, at Sportsman's Park, Alton, 3 o'clock; Edgemont A. C. vs. St. Louis Dairy, at North End Park, Belleville, 2:30 o'clock; Geisslers vs. Mount Olive, at Mount Olive, 2:30 o'clock.

Mayors and city officials of the Illinois towns in the league will participate in the opening exercises this afternoon prior to the three games scheduled.

DISDAINFUL AND POMPEIUS WIN AT JAMAICA

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7—Thoroughbreds from the C. V. Whitney and W. R. Coe stables shared honors at Jamaica today as Disdainful won the $5000 Youthful Stakes and Pompeius accounted for the $5000 Excelsior Handicap.

Disdainful, sporting the famous Whitney Light blue and brown-capped silks, just managed to win after practically half of the starters were knocked out of contention at the start of the five-furlong dash. Among those suffering from the crowding and rough riding was J. J. Robinson's Eisenberg, the odds-on-favorite.

Away in front, Alfred Robertson opened up a long lead with Disdainful. The Whitney colt tired rapidly in the stretch run, however, beating Coe's Llandaff by a head. Helios was third.

Disdainful, the second choice at 2 to 1, ran the distance in one minute flat to earn the purse of $8300.

Pompeius, Coe's three-year-old son of Pompey, caused a mild sensation by the easy manner in which he defeated three top-notch older horses in the Excelsior, which was decided over one and one-sixteenth miles.

Conceding weight to his rivals by the scale, Pompeius finished the jaunt eight lengths in front of the Anall Stable's Mountain Elk. A similar distance back followed Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Lightning Bolt, Philadelphia handicap winner, to distance A La Carte, the only other starter.

The Coe speedster was held at 5 to 2 and returned his owner $4850. His time was 1:54 1-5, on a trifle slow track.

You look all in, Bill
what's the matter?

"Don't know what's wrong with me, Joe. Got up feeling flat, as usual. Can't eat... feel terrible all the time. Haven't been anywhere in weeks. Now here it is only noon, and I'm half dead already. S'pose I'll feel like a rag tonight."

"Pshaw! You've got ASTHENIA—that's all."

"As-the-ni-a?... what the deuce is that?"

"Oh, nothing to worry about. You've let yourself run down. Was that way myself a few weeks ago. Got so a cup of coffee was all I'd take in the morning; then I'd mope around all day because I felt so punk.

"Began coming down late... feeling just as tired as I did when I went to bed. Finally the old man noticed it.

"'You've been slippin' lately,' he said, 'what's the trouble?' Told him... and he laughed!

"'Tell you what you do. You know, I've been goin' to French Lick Springs for years... ten days there and I'd come back like a new man. But—in a few months I'd slip and have to do it all over. On my last trip I found out why.

"'Doctor there told me it was easy to get rid of Asthenia... the important thing was to keep it out! And that's exactly what I am doing. I take Pluto Water every Sunday morning. Nothing bothers me now. Smoke eight or ten cigars a day... never go to bed before midnight... get up fresh as a daisy in the morning and eat like a horse. Haven't missed a day in months.

"'Buy a bottle of Pluto Water. You get it at any drug store. Take a fifth of a glass of Pluto Water with four-fifths of a glass of hot water the first thing when you get up, and stick to it every morning before breakfast for ten days. That'll take Asthenia clean out of you. Then... remember... take it every Sunday morning, and you'll forget you ever had Asthenia.'

"Well, it worked to perfection, Bill... never felt better in my life. Get a bottle and try it yourself. Keep it up for ten days—after that every Sunday morning. It will make a new man of you!"

A Gentle Laxative
Start now to cleanse your system of Asthenia—⅕ glass of Pluto Water in ⅘ glass of hot water—each morning for ten days. Then take Pluto Water every Sunday morning.

It's ASTHENIA
that's pulling you down. (The want or loss of strength; debility; diminution of the vital forces... often due to intestinal micro-organisms.)

Thousands have turned to Pluto Water... it's the checkmate for Asthenia. Physicians everywhere recommend it as a mild and effective laxative—non-irritating and non-habit-forming.

Two sizes—20c and 45c—at all drug counters; on trains, steamships; and at hotels.

EIGHT STARS WILL ALSO TRY TO WIN BRITISH WOMAN'S TITLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Twelve women golfers are now on their way across the Atlantic Ocean, bound for England with the purpose of accomplishing two great feats, defeating a team of British women on their own soil and winning the British women's championship, something no American woman has ever done.

Helen Hicks

Among the dozen women are ight members of he American team which will engage the British in a team match at Wentworth on May 21 and 22. The four additional players are going only to play in the British women's tournament which is scheduled at Saunton starting May 30.

Heading the United States team s Miss Helen Hicks of New York, present national woman's champion, while Marion Hollins of Santa Cruz, Cal. is captain. The others are—Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, Trans-Mississippi champion, a title which she won at St. ouis last summer; Mrs. Leona Cheney, Los Angeles, Miss Maureen Orcutt, Mrs. Glenn Collett Vare, Philadelphia; Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, and Mrs. Earley Higbee, Detroit.

In addition Mrs. W. M. Ferris Jr., Newton, Mass.; Mrs. M. S. Reed, Pittsburg, Miss Ruth Batchelder, Boston, and Miss Rosamond Sherwood, New York, are making he trip to the British Women's event.

U. S. Women Lost.

Once before a team of American women golfers invaded England and lost an unofficial match to the British, 8 to 6, in 1930. But on that occasion they arrived one day, practiced once and played the next day. This time the women are allowing themselves two weeks in which to become acclimated.

Helen Hicks declared before she left New York that her game was at the peak and she was looking forward to a match with Miss Joyce Wethered, generally conceded to be the greatest woman player in the world. Miss Hicks probably will not be accommodated in the team match as it is likely that Mrs. Vare will play Miss Wethered in the singles and the English woman has said that she would not play in the tournament so Miss Hicks' wish for a game ith Miss Wethered likely will be unfulfilled.

Miss Hicks declared that she would seek no recreation during the serious play in England as the winning of championships requires plenty of sleep. She discovered after the winter tournament season that golf and social activities don't mix.

Mrs. Hill completed a very successful tour of the South winning hree of the four tournaments in which she entered.

Two men golfers sailed at the same time as the women. They re Leonard Martin, New Rochelle, N. Y. and Clive Alvord, Greenwich, Conn. whose objective is the British amateur tournament at Muirfield, Scotland which is to be played May 23-27.

RED FLYNN WINS FOUR FIRSTS AS C. B. C. WINS TRACK MEET 80 1-2—40 1-2

"Red" Flynn, C. B. C.'s candidate for all-around track star of the district, gave another fine performance yesterday as C. B. C. was winning over Central in a dual meet 80½ to 40½.

The redhead gained four firsts—pole vault, shot put, discus and high hurdles. He then lost his fifth first place by a mere half inch when he broad-jumped 18 feet, 5½ inches. Newsom of Central won with a leap of 18 feet, inches.

The Brothers showed their superiority in all but two events, the mile and the afore-mentioned broad jump.

League for Players Over 32 Years of Age Opens Season

THE "Fountain of Youth" Baseball League, recently organized in East St. Louis, will swing into action today at Jones Park. Six teams have entered. Players in St. Clair County over 32 years of age are eligible.

HUFF OPPOSES EDDIE EDSON AT SOUTH BROADWAY

Willus Britt and Jack Tippett, boxing promoters, are working on the programs which they expect to present at The Arena, May 19, and at Battery A Arena, June 1, respectively, but neither has announced any matches definitely closed. In the meantime, the amateur fighters will be busy at the South Broadway A. C. tomorrow night where a card featuring six Mississippi Valley champions will be presented.

Earl Taylor, middleweight champion, who defeated Eddie Edson his last out, will oppose Tommy Ryan, junior middleweight titleholder, in what is billed as the main event, while Tony Viviano, Mound City A. C., former 112-pound champion, will swap punches with Charles Gelardi, his successor.

Leo Leonard, Business Men's A. C., will tackle Morgan Lingenfelter of the National A. A., the bantamweight champion, while Joe Huff, welterweight titleholder, moves up to the middleweight ranks to take on Eddie Edson, Jackie Callahan's hard puncher of the National A. A.

Carl Schaefer, E. K. A. C., lightweight king; Victor Gimarino, Jefferson A. C., featherweight champino; Joe Borich, Jackie Nichols, junior light heavyweight champion, are among the 63 entrants in the preliminaries.

The show is being held under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley A. A., the Matchmaking Committee of which is composed of George Wilsman, Dan O'Keefe and Art Craig.

Britt has announced that he will hold five eight-round bouts on his May 19 show at prices ranging from 55 cents to $2.20, while Tippett plans three 10-rounders for like admissions.

Among the boxers Britt expects to show are Al Stillman, Jack Barry and probably Lou Terry, while Tippett is working on a match between Stillman and John Schwake and another between Lou Terry and Tracy Cox, Indianapolis.

Stillman has been trying to build himself up into a heavyweight and has been seeking a match with Schwake for some time.

STREIBEL MAY OPPOSE SCHULTE IN BOUT AT SOUTH BROADWAY CLUB

Irwin Streibel, senior heavyweight champion of the Mississippi Valley A. A., and Les Schulte, the Western A. A. U., title holder, may meet in a special match at the South Broadway A. C., May 17, if Schulte is willing to desert the Western A. A. U. ranks to accept a challenge from Streibel. Willie Miller, matchmaker for the South Broadway Club, has forwarded Streibel's challenge to Schulte.

In the event he fails to line up Schulte to oppose Streibel, Miller plans to bring Wally Urban of Des Moines, Ia., heer to send against the South Side heavy. Streibel, who weighs 230 pounds, has cleared the Valley ranks of contention with five knockout victories in six starts.

Duck Pin League Organized.

The Cinderella Duck Pin Bowling League has been reorganized and will begin bowling Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. The league, which is composed of 10 teams, will bowl nine weeks. A six-team league for women duck pin bowlers has also been organised. Miss Helen Reiss was elected president and Miss Helen Kerr secretary and treasurer. This league will open a 10-week schedule Tuesday night.

Bruce Defeats Caito.

Robert Bruce, captain of the Alexander & Sons bowling team, won the first annual handicap elimination tournament, open to Washington alley bowlers only, by winning four games out of seven from Tom Caito. Bruce started poorly, getting games of 177, 177 and 171, but followed with counts of 257, 223, 231 and 202, to win the match. Caito had a high game of 246.

Last of Old Guard.

CLEVELAND, May 7.—Charlie Jamieson is the only player remaining with the Cleveland Indians who was with the team when it won the American League pennant in 1920.

SUNSET HILL SPRING HANDICAP TOURNEY

The annual spring handicap golf tournament of the Sunset Hill Country Club is to be contested in five classes.

Pairings:

Tigers Win on Track.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7.—Princeton's surprisingly well-balanced track team today defeated Harvard, 75½ to 59½, in the first dual track competition between the two universities since the celebrated break over football in 1926.

The Tigers took eight first places to seven for the Crimson.

John Thomas Sings on KSD at 5 P. M.

THIS afternoon at 5 o'clock, KSD will resume broadcasting the Home Circle concerts by world famous artists which it was compelled to drop for a while because of the change to daylight saving time in New York. The period for these concerts on the WEAF network has been changed, effective today. John Charles Thomas, who was leading baritone of the Brussels Opera, then came back to his own country to win recognition as one of the great baritones of the day, will be today's soloist.

* * *

Awards in Contest for Composers Tonight.

AWARDS will be announced during a broadcast at 8:15 tonight over KSD to the winners of the NBC contest for composers. Last Sunday night an orchestra led by Eugene Goossens played five pieces of music that had been selected by a committee as the best among the compositions submitted. Tonight the same pieces will be played again by the same orchestra. But they will be given in the order of merit as adjudged by a jury of 150 musicians scattered all over the country who listened last Sunday, then telegraphed to NBC headquarters in New York their ranking of the five works.

Burglar Trap to Be Sprung in Broadcast.

HOW a back stairs burglar may be photographed for the police by a hidden "radio eye" will be demonstrated by former Radio Commissioner O. H. Caldwell in a broadcast over KSD at 5 o'clock tomorrow. A "burglary" will be staged in the studios, and the photograph taken by the radio "eye" will be developed and given to newspaper men. . . . By the end of this month many sponsored programs will have dropped off the chains for the summer, some of them never to return. . . . The new Canadian station which on June 1 will replace WXYZ, Detroit, as a CBS chain link, is CKWO, a 5000-watter at Windsor. . . . An elaborate international broadcast will mark the 100th anniversary of the invention of the telegraph by Samuel Morse. The WEAF chain will carry the program, in which Miss Leila Livingston Morse, a granddaughter of the inventor, will have a part. The program is set for noon next Saturday.

* * *

Socialist Convention Broadcast May 22.

THE first political convention broadcast of the year over a network will come from that of the Socialists at Milwaukee. Norman Thomas will be among the speakers at the convention. The broadcast is to begin at 6 o'clock Sunday, May 22, and will come over the WJZ chain.

Art Gillham Now on WBBM.

ART GILLHAM, "the whispering pianist," who was on WIL for a long time, is featured by WBBM, Chicago (770kc) at 9:45 a. m. Tuesday, Thursday and on Sunday at 12:30 noon. . . . Roxy is expected back on an NBC chain with a weekly program in the fall. . . . Carlton Coon, co-director with Joe Sanders of the Coon-Sanders orchestra and one of the best known orchestra leaders in radio, died in a Chicago hospital the past week of blood poisoning. He and Sanders began broadcasting over WDAF, Kansas City, with their Kansas City Nighthawks orchestra and did their first chain broadcast in 1929. . . . Carveth Wells, the explorer, having concluded his radio series, is preparing for a trip to Russia. . . . Bert Lahr, the comedian, spent most of a day recently in auditions in the NBC studios in New York. . . . Philips Lord, of Seth Parker fame, is to play a philosophically minded country doctor in his projected five day a week series on the WEAF network. A new cast, except for Lord and one or two others, will be required for each 10-minute program. . . . Cliff Edwards, the "Ukelele Ike" of vaudeville, will begin a WEAF chain series on May 17. . . . Blossom Seely and Benny Fields also may be featured in a chain series soon.

Career Talks From Great Britain.

RUNGS OF THE LADDER, a series of talks in which British notables will tell the stories of their careers, will be carried by the CBS chain and KMOX starting at 2:20 tomorrow afternoon. J. H. Thomas, M. P., will be the first speaker. The son of poor parents, he rose to be British Secretary of State for the Colonies, Lord Privy Seal and Minister of Employment, and Dominion Secretary. William Henry Davies, the poet; Lord Beaverbrook, the newspaper publisher; Lord Ashfield, head of London's subway system; C. B. Cochran, the London theatrical producer, and John Masefield, the poet, also will speak in this series from England.

* * *

School of the Air Concludes Sessions.

THE SCHOOL OF THE AIR on the CBS chain has just concluded its third year. It was carried by 78 stations and comprised 97 educational broadcasts. Men of note in many fields were among the speakers. There were a number of special programs from Europe. Stimulation of original classroom work was the main object of the broadcasts. More than 35 per cent of the letters received on this series came from adults outside of educational circles, many of them giving as a reason for listening a desire "to keep up with our children." The School of the Air will be repeated next fall and winter.

Schuette to Direct Broadcasters' Fight.

APPOINTMENT of Oswald F. Schuette, who led the independent radio manufacturers in their fight against the so-called "Radio Trust," to direct the copyright activities of the broadcasters is interpreted by Martin Codel as indicating that radio may soon have a leader who will play a role similar to that of Will Hays for the movies. Schuette will virtually direct the policies of the broadcasters in their effort to combat the demand of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers for 5 per cent of the gross income of stations. In his new post, Schuette will work with the National Association of Broadcasters, which has for members about a third of the stations in this country and nearly all of the more important ones. He also will carry into Congress a fight to win recognition and protection of radio as a major user of music.

JOHN CHARLES THOMAS

BARITONE of the concert and opera stages who will sing in the Home Circle concert over KSD at 5 o'clock this afternoon. KSD is able to carry this concert because the time has been changed.

Prohibition Repeal Week Radio Drive.

MRS. CHARLES H. SABIN, national chairman of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, and Mrs. Archibald B. Roosevelt, national chairman for Repeal Week, will speak over the CBS chain at 9 o'clock next Sunday night. Mrs. Sabin will outline her organization's campaign against the eighteenth amendment. Mrs. Roosevelt will open the Repeal Week drive, which is to begin formally the following day, when members will be enrolled and funds raised throughout the country.

WHAS to Use 25,000 Watts Next Sunday.

WHAS, Louisville, Ky., plans to broadcast with 25,000 watts power next Sunday, when it will officially become a link in the CBS network, and to increase gradually to the 50,000 watts, which it is authorized to use on the 820 kc. channel. From 6 to 6:30 next Sunday, the CBS chain will carry a WHAS welcome program in the shape of a playlet dramatizing episodes in the history of Kentucky. Listeners in the St. Louis region will find WHAS of special value, as it will give them a CBS station to tune in when KMOX does not carry certain chain programs. WHAS has been carrying NBC programs, using 5000 to 10,000 watts power.

Goldman's Band On Air June 13.

EDWARD FRANKO GOLDMAN'S band concerts, which will be broadcast several times a week over NBC chains, will begin June 13 and continue until Aug. 18. They will come, as in previous years, from the Mall in Central Park, New York. . . . The CBS chain will broadcast descriptions of 50 outstanding turf events at leading tracks this summer. In addition, there will be descriptions of some of the more important steeplechases. Thomas B. George will be the principal announcer for this series. . . . . Lily Pons of the Metropolitan Opera is billed as soloist for the Home Circle concert, at KSD next Sunday afternoon. She has delayed her return to France to sing this final radio recital. . . .

* * *

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will be the speaker in the fifth program, at 4 p. m. Thursday, in the exchange series between the CBS chain and the British Broadcasting Corporation.

* * *

Fishermen should find of interest the talks of Bob Becker on WGN at 8 o'clock Sunday nights. Tonight Becker will tell of a North woods fishing paradise so isolated that a man must build his own log raft, and of using balsam wood floats in the streams in the Brazilian jungles.

In the Studios

By PETER DIXON.

SPONSORS are being flooded with offers of big stage names for their programs as the result of Ed Wynn's humorous programs. Jack Benny, a Broadway master of ceremonies, is already aboard the bandwagon with George Olsen's orchestra. Dozens of others are being offered. Leon Errol has suddenly become a "great bet" for a comedy program, according to several promoters. If any of the stage folk make good, it will be a surprise because radio has generally depended on developing its own talent. Most of radio's best bets, such as Gene and Glen, Amos 'n' Andy and others have been small town developments or Chicago finds. The act of Moran and Mack is a classic example of attempting to adapt stage material and presentation to the microphone. When they used the material of their own stage acts, they were great, but when they tried to get new material, they slipped. Changing lines daily is no mean feat. Radio acts have learned to try for chuckles instead of broad laughs and to keep the chuckles consistent.

Cartoonists may be the next class of public entertainers to try radio. John F. Royal of NBC thinks Rube Goldberg is a great bet for radio. Pat Sullivan, who draws the cat comics, is reported to have been approached. Skippy's success on the air waves has been so-so. The greatest success of comic strips in radio was "Mr. and Mrs.," which now is off the air.

The Moonshine and Honeysuckle cast consists of Louis Mason, as Clem; Ann Elstner as Cracker; Sara Haden as Piney; Bradley Barker as Bones and Therese Wittler as Gypsy.

Ivar Kreuger.

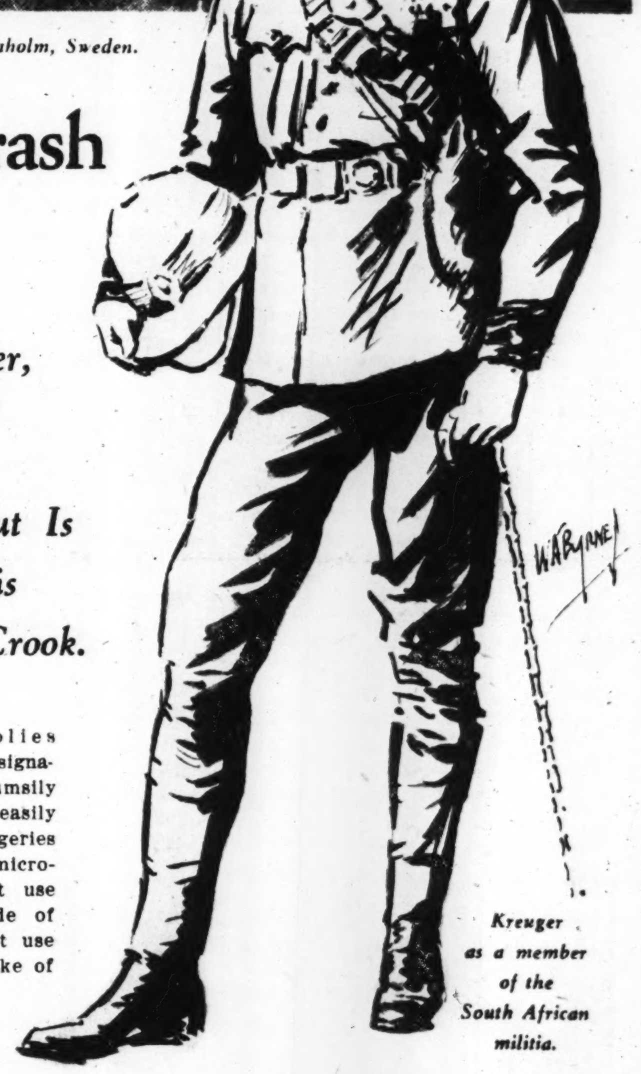
The World-Shaking Crash of a Colossus

The Rise and Fall of Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish Match King, Who Was Once Regarded as an International Industrial Giant But Is Now Denounced, Even in His Own Country, as a Fraud and a Crook.



Kreuger as a member of the South African militia.

By GUY FORSHEY

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

A FALLEN colossus of finance, crumbled into an ugly heap, lies beneath the wreckage of the great international match trust, which came to grief recently with losses to investors exceeding half a billion dollars. It was a glamorous, heroic figure once. It is not a very heroic figure now. And the deeper the investigators delve into the overlying tangle of forged bonds, worthless stocks, fictitious property and falsified balance sheets, the less heroic it becomes.

Not only does the investigation show that the supposedly impregnable financial structure made up of Kreuger & Toll, the Swedish Match Company, the International Match Corporation and some 200 smaller subsidiaries was a house of cards. The world has learned with greater astonishment that Ivar Kreuger himself, the great "industrial wizard," who built it all, was a fraud and a crook. That is the part that is hardest to believe. The Swedish match king, under his halo of romance, was a super-criminal who conducted his criminal operations on a scale quite as magnificent as that on which he manufactured and sold matches. As a manufacturer, he was capble of turning out three-fourths of the world's supply of matches. As a criminal, he was capable of forging $100,000,000 of bonds in one block.

The whole world of industry and investment trusted Ivar Kreuger. In the years since the war he had risen almost to the height of a financial god. He was the richest man in Europe and more powerful than a monarch. He was a lender of hundreds of millions to governments, a stabilizer of money and credit in international markets, a genius of organization and promotion. Premiers and Presidents and high treasury officials often consulted him. One government after another granted him monopolies for the manufacture of his products. Money poured into his hands from experienced investors and novices alike. Probably never in the history of industrial promotion was there another man whose mere name inspired such confidence. People who had no knowledge whatever of finance or stock values put their savings in Kreuger securities without hesitation because they regarded his reputation as a virtual guarantee against loss. They thought he couldn't lose. Much less, they thought, could he cheat. But he could do both. In time he did both, as recent developments have disclosed. When he could no longer hope to conceal his irregularities he killed himself. He ended his life with a revolver in his Paris apartment on the morning of March 12.

As it turned out, Kreuger had been dead for three weeks or so before the public learned he was a criminal. For some time there had been rumors in various quarters that the Kreuger companies were due to meet with financial difficulties in March or April, and for several days previous to the match king's demise there had been heavy liquidation of Kreuger securities on the New York Stock Exchange. But aside from this heavy selling and a sharp decline in the market immediately after the suicide, there was no evidence that all was not well with the far-flung Kreuger enterprises.

IN VIEW of the magnitude of his operations, however, the Swedish Government deemed a thorough investigation advisable and, on the company's own application, appointed a commission of experts to look into the affairs of Kreuger & Toll, the Stockholm banking house and holding company through which more than 200 subsidiary concerns were financed and operated.

The very first finding of this commission was sufficient to send the whole structure tumbling down. It operated like the push of a woodsman against a tree that is already cut off and stands tottering momentarily before it falls.

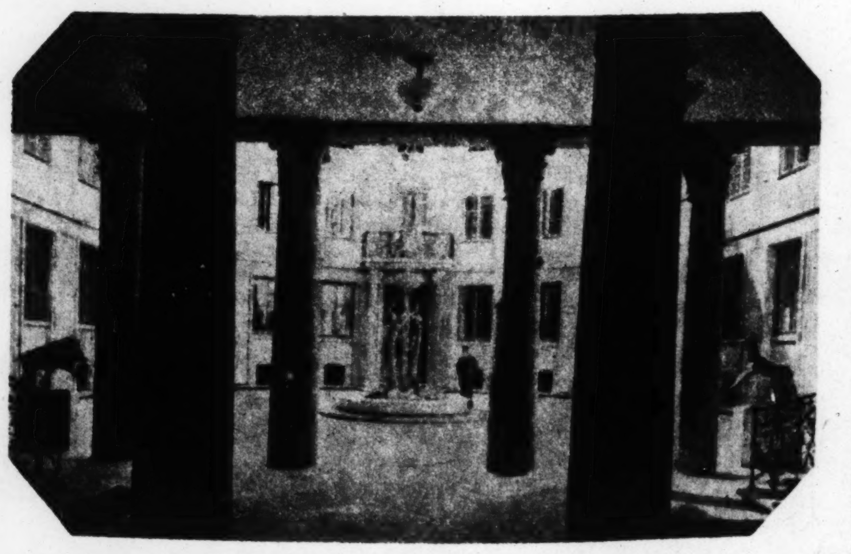
With the auditors' disclosure that Kreuger had falsified the books of his company and "grossly misrepresented" its condition, Sweden was plunged into what amounted to a business crisis. Investors of that country alone had put more than $200,000,000 into the various stocks and bonds of the match monopoly, and most of this represented the savings of persons of moderate means. Kreuger securities of all issues fell to new low levels in all the major markets of Europe and America. The Swedish Government passed emergency loans of $30,000,000 to save banks which had been stranded by the company's difficulties, and, to stem the outpouring of Kreuger stocks, ordered them taken off the list on the Stockholm Bourse.

The blow to American investors was second only to that dealt to Sweden's own, for with the Kreuger collapse Americans faced the loss of all or most of $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 they had put into the match king's enterprises. The International Match Corporation, American subsidiary which controls most of the Kreuger interests outside of Sweden, was hurled into receivership and declared insolvent, its officers admitting that the corporation was without funds and unable to meet its May 1 interest payments on its $50,000,000 of bonds.

As the investigation continued, it became more and more problematical whether the companies could be salvaged and attention was centered on ways to liquidate assets to the best advantage of the thousands of duped investors. For the Kreuger collapse, it was obvious, was not a business failure. It was the natural outcome of a colossal fraud, one of the greatest frauds in the history of finance.

A falsified balance sheet for the year 1930 was only the beginning of the investigators' discoveries.

They found that the misrepresentation and juggling of accounts, obviously done under Kreuger's personal direction, extended all the way back to 1925. In many cases, the accountants found, entries in the books eliminated large balances owed to the parent concern by Kreuger and subsidiary companies, while liabilities to other subsidiaries also had been eliminated.



The courtyard of the Swedish Match Company building in Stockholm. The statuary and fountain are by Carl Milles, the famous Swedish sculptor.

In other instances, the book assets were found to be entirely fictitious. Duplication of assets appeared on the books of associated companies, and frequently entries for assets greatly exceeded the items they purported to represent. The manipulation of accounts, moreover, extended to the profit and loss accounts of the different companies concerned, profits for some years having been fictitiously increased. The examiners even found Kreuger had set up dummy directors and non-existent companies and had withdrawn staggering sums running far into the millions from the coffers of Kreuger & Toll. What he did with this money is not yet known, although it is known that he was a heavy loser in the markets in spite of his reputation as the "man who never gambled."

THE discovery of his operations as a forger was the high light, however, that put all other disclosures into eclipse. Looking into his personal effects, locked in a safe in his mysterious "secret room," the examiners found 42 Italian Treasury bonds of 500,000 pounds denomination, a block which computed by normal exchange rates, aggregated, roughly, $100,000,000. These bonds, it developed, were printed in Stockholm by Kreuger himself, who took copper plates to a printer and emphasized the need for absolute secrecy. The plates were found in the safe along with the address of an engraver who apparently had made them. The bonds were printed in English and ostensibly signed by the Italian monopolies board, but the signatures were clumsily done and were easily detected as forgeries with the aid of a microscope. Just what use Kreuger had made of the bonds or what use he expected to make of them has not been definitely determined. It is believed to be probable, however, that he meant to use them—or perhaps already had used them—as assets upon which to float further Kreuger & Toll issues of securities.

Discovery of this mammoth forgery stripped away the last trace of the romantic glamour that had grown up about the name of Ivar Kreuger. Swedish newspapers characterized him as "a cool defrauder and gambler, who for many years wore the mark of a criminal." The fact, too, that he had embarked upon his criminal operations as early as 1925 created a profound impression. Up until this disclosure came, many had excused his irregular transactions on the ground that they were caused by the world financial crisis and were merely intended as temporary measures to serve until the depression had blown over. But these charitable attempts at justification were soon abandoned. About the kindest explanation to be heard now is one that attributes his operations to a form of megalomania so pronounced as to place him definitely in the category of the insane.

Kreuger's personal peculiarities and methods that once set him apart from other men and contributed to the aura of romance that grew up about him have been subject to various interpretations since his real character has come to light. It appears now that some of his eccentricities which formerly were revered as accompaniments of genius were really clever posing. They all helped build up the Kreuger legend and fitted his purposes as a defrauder very well. Of these peculiarities there were many.

In the years subsequent to 1917, when he was rising to his full stature as head of a world monopoly, he was often referred to as "Europe's man of mystery." Little was actually known about him. Few persons, even in his home city of Stockholm, knew him by sight. There was as much curiosity about him in Stockholm, where he maintained his headquarters, as in New York, where he came on mighty financial errands once or twice a year, or in European capitals, where he sometimes negotiated match monopolies in return for staggering loans to governments. As to his tastes, habits, mode of life, prejudices and opinions, his fellow townsmen knew next to nothing.

It seems he was known best for the things he didn't do. He never made speeches. He never attended banquets or royal levees. He never accepted decorations from governments he had financed or assisted. He never held an honorary office or appeared on the lists of contributers to fashionable charities. What he gave he gave in secret.

HE HAD a notorious disinclination for dining out and entertained only in his own home. He never granted newspaper interviews except on two or three occasions when he was the subject of sketches in American magazines. With all his promotion projects, he never had a public relations counsel or a publicity department, and until recent years he never permitted himself to be photographed. As recently as 1929, it is said, there was only one picture of Sweden's favorite son available in all Sweden, and that one, which, of course, was copied by all the larger newspapers, was an old passport photograph.

On his travels, Kreuger never took along a corps of secretaries, no matter how much business there was to be transacted. It was seldom that he took any secretary at all. And even though he was rated as the richest industrialist in the world, next to Ford and Rockefeller, he never was attended by bodyguards or followed by private detectives. He went about alone.

When the Bolsheviks Make Fun of Themselves

The Intense Seriousness With Which the Russians Are Taking Their Five-Year Plan Has Not Prevented Them From Making Jokes About It.

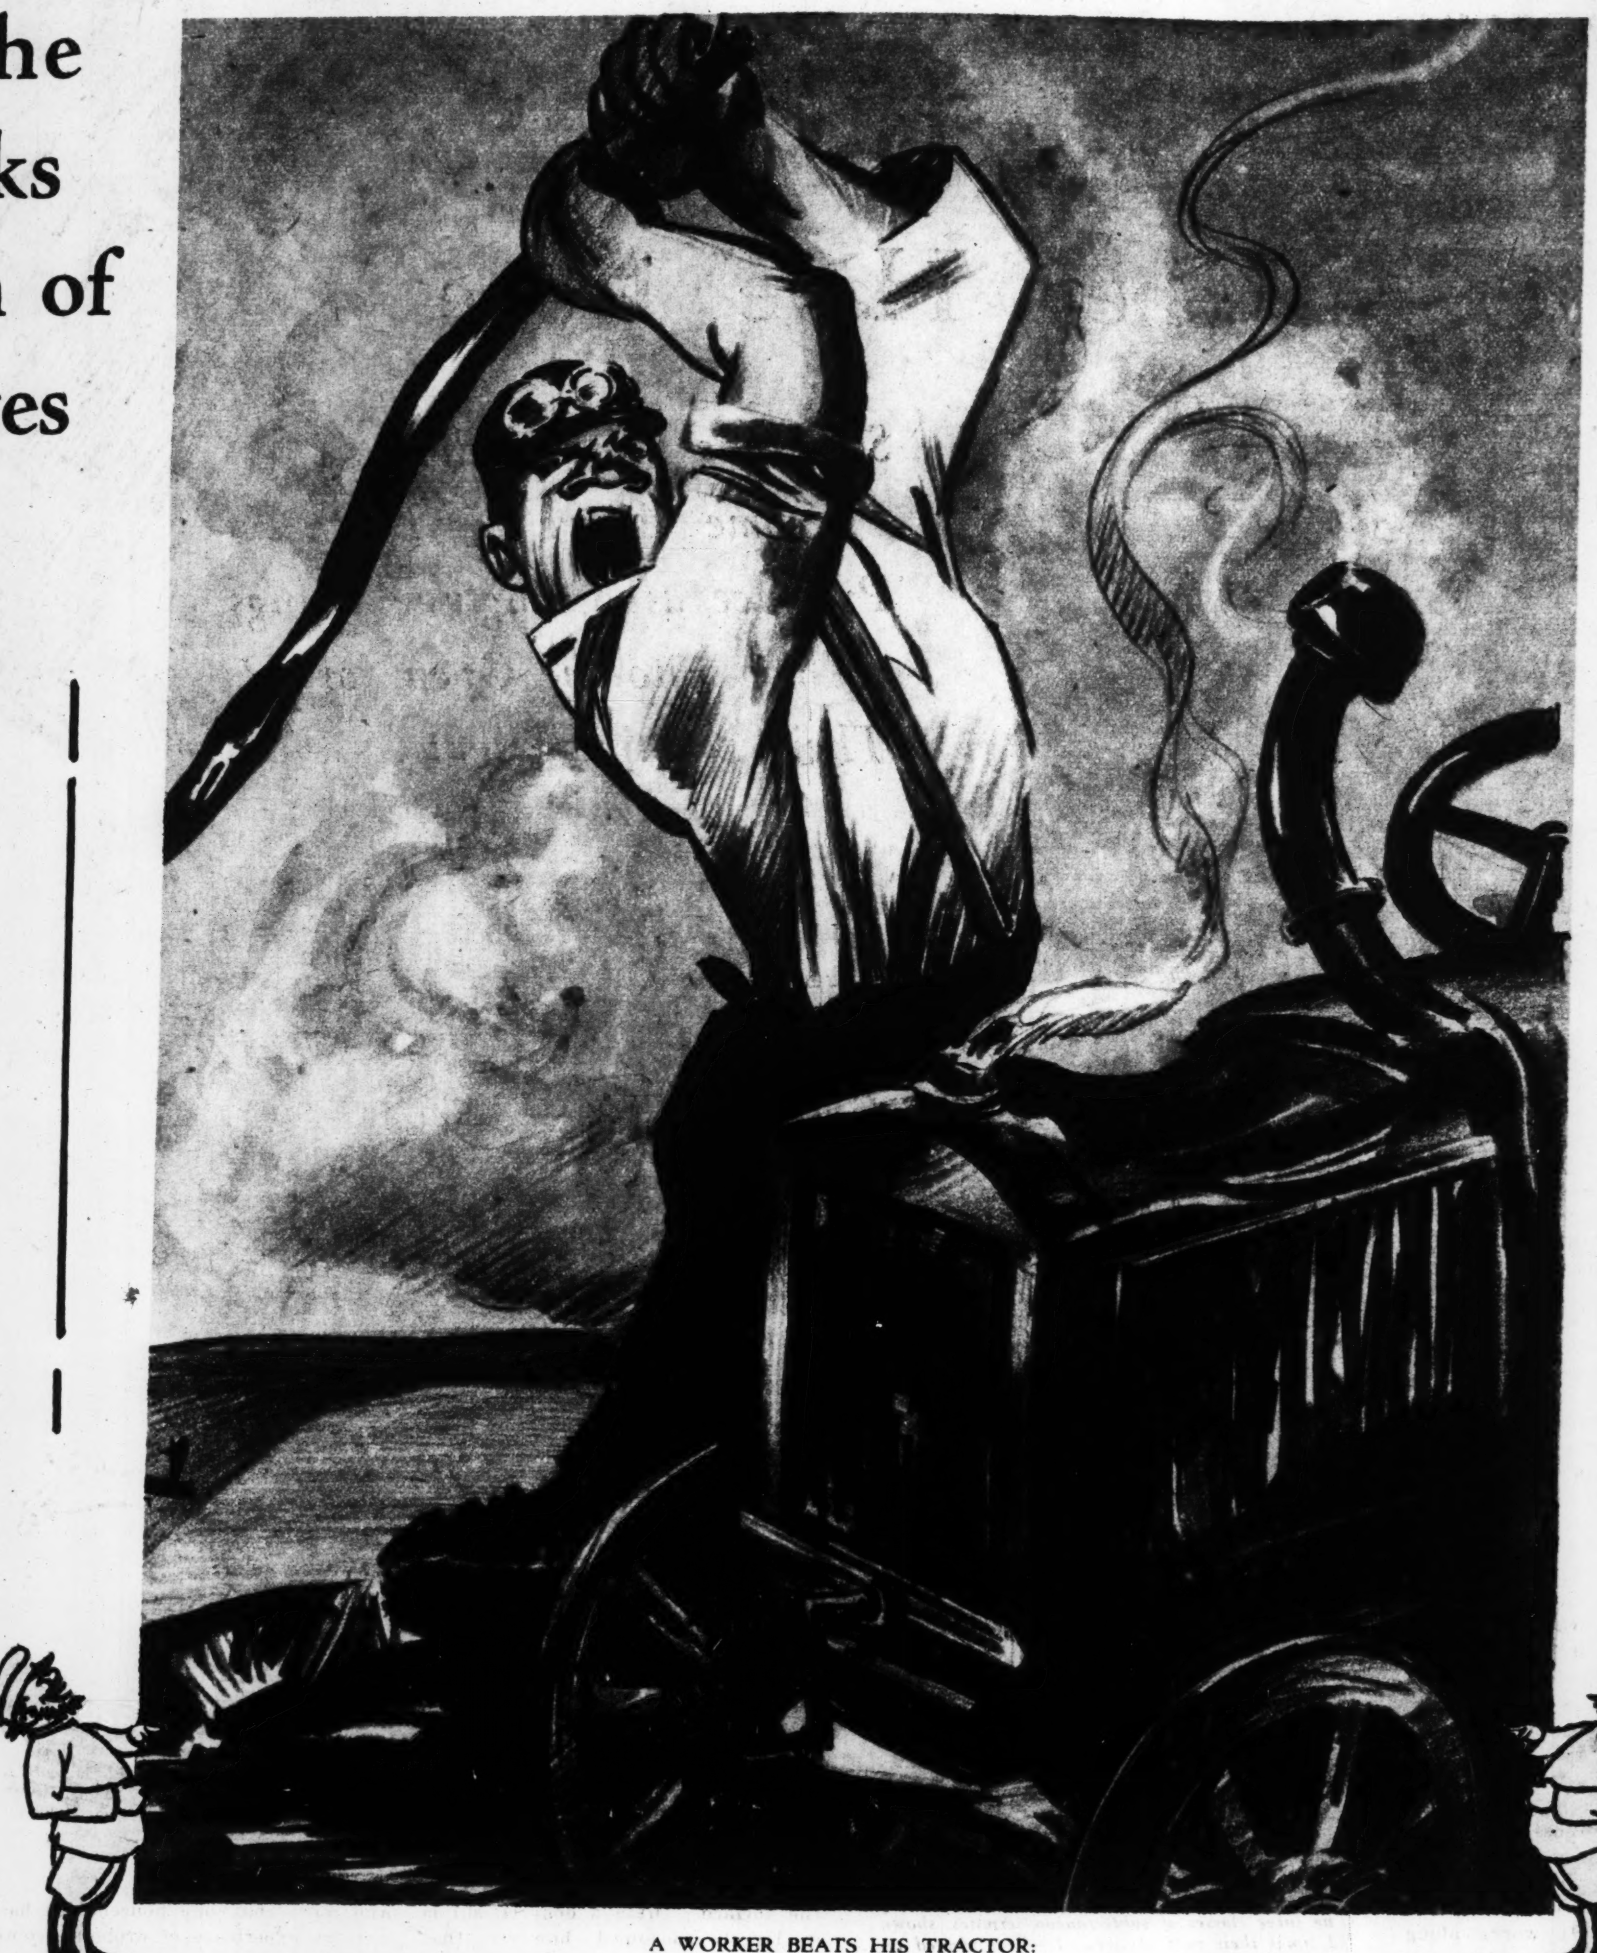
By KEITH KERMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

CONSIDERING the stern suppression of all internal opposition to the present government of Soviet Russia and the deadly seriousness with which its program for the development of the country is being pushed, one may wonder whether the Communists who rule the land ever joke about the job. Can they view the great politico-economic movement which engrosses them with sufficient detachment to see in their struggles and problems and mistakes certain humorous aspects, and smile at them?

The three pictures reproduced on this page seem to answer the question. They jest about certain aspects of the Soviet regime. And they certainly represent an official attitude, for they are taken from the comic periodical, "Crocodile," which is published in connection with the newspaper Pravda (meaning Truth) of Moscow. Pravda is the official organ of the Central Committee of the Communist party, whose Secretary-General, Stalin, is the dominating figure in the government of the U. S. S. R. In these satirical drawings, therefore, it might be said that Russia, under the very eye of its most exalted ruler, ventures to laugh at itself.

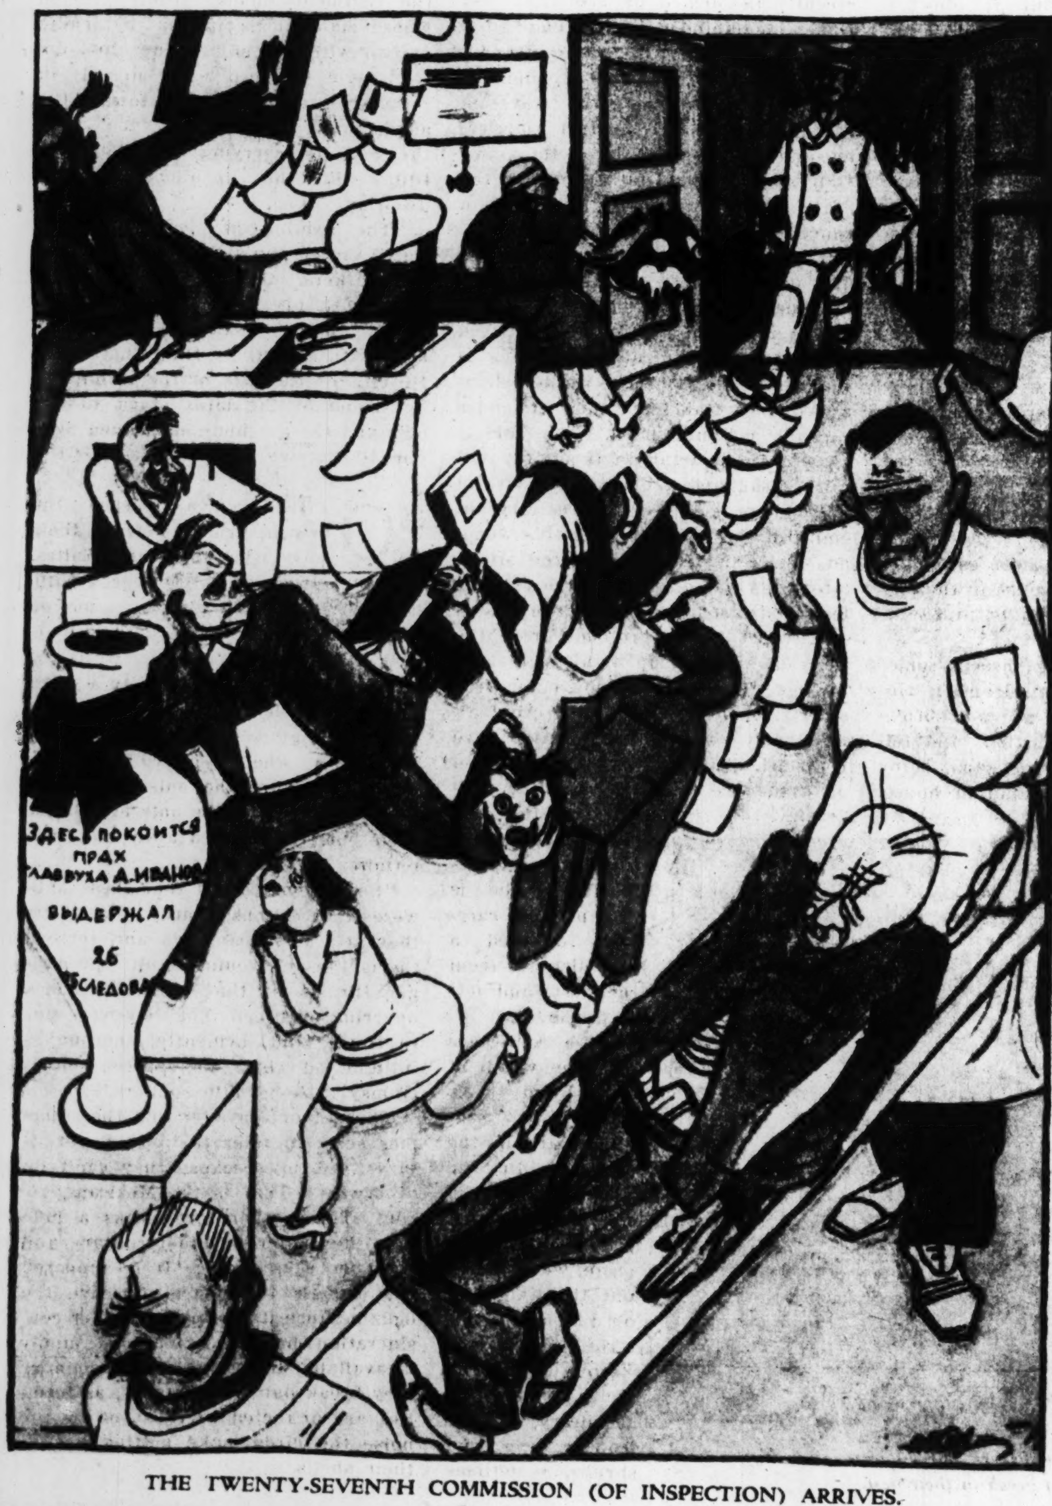
A. L. Lindel, teacher of industrial relations in the Hadley Vocational School of St. Louis, obtained the publications in which these pictures appeared while on a visit to Russia. Accompanied by his wife, and part of the time traveling with a party of other American tourists, he made a tour of the country which began at Leningrad, took in most of the important industrial centers, and included a four-day boat trip on the Volga River. He observed Russia at work and at play and talked with all the Russians he could. He discovered that "right away" usually meant some time as far as possible in the future, "tomorrow," probably never; and that "What does it matter?" was an expression of wide popularity. He was unable to decide whether Russians most enjoyed an American cigarette or an argument. Yet he found the youngsters with whom he came in contact, boys and girls in their 'teens or early twenties, intelligent and enthusiastic—and they were doing most of the work.



A WORKER BEATS HIS TRACTOR:
"Will you go or not? I'll teach you."

There seemed to be little laughter in Russia. What there was came mainly from these young people, who had been educated under the Communist system. Intensely earnest about the five-year plan and the whole program designed to convert their country into a sort of heaven on earth, they still, it seemed to Lindel, could laugh at some of the nation's imperfections, such as are illustrated on this page.

The picture showing a worker belaboring a refractory tractor as he would a balky horse is satirically titled, "Good Care of Tractors." The worker is saying: "Will you go or not? I'll teach you to be stubborn!" There is obvious acknowledgment here of the handicap which the ignorance of a majority of its people imposes on Russia's development. American engineers, and almost everybody else who has had opportunity to observe such work, say many of the Russians are childishly unfamiliar with tools used in the new industrialism. The picture grinningly admits it.



THE TWENTY-SEVENTH COMMISSION (OF INSPECTION) ARRIVES.

THE scene of consternation in an office is captioned: "The twenty-seventh commission (of inspection) arrives." While the drawing may be intended to reflect on workers who are alarmed by frequent check-ups of their activities, it also appears to be a dig at the indefatigable supervision maintained by the Government over business, or officiousness, or misdirected zeal on the part of some officials. The urn in the foreground of the picture bears the inscription: "Here rest the ashes of Chief A. Ivanoff. He held out for 26 inspections.

Another kind of human frailty is lampooned in the third drawing. Russian newspapers are in the habit of sending writers to look over large industrial projects and report on them. But often the writers spend their time on such assignments in loafing in a hotel and playing chess instead of gathering the information they were sent to get. Such shirkers are portrayed in this picture, which has the title: "Writers at Large Projects." One of the journalistic chess players says: "You may as well give up." And his companion in sloth answers: "No wonder! With noise like this it is impossible to concentrate."

There are many such jibes in the comic papers, and almost all of them are concerned with some phase of the industrial program. For example, a reprehensibly selfish and short-sighted charcoal burner is represented as saying, "Let the coal industry fall short; I have plenty for my samovar." In another picture two groups of experts are shown studying plans. One group is in charge of the lumber industry in a certain region, the other in charge of the coal industry in another region. The question is asked: "What holds their interest?" Obviously, it is the plans; the experts are quite absorbed in them—and getting out no lumber or coal.

The jests about the charcoal burner and the plan-obsessed experts appeared in the comic paper Vozhak, also a supplement of Pravda. In the same publication was a satrical article on the present Russian plan of government. And there was a picture of a little man, wedded to the delights of the table, who was announcing, "Give me a chicken, and while I am eating you may build anything you please."

PRIVATIONS due to the Governments policy of limiting the comforts of its people in order that more money may be spent for industrial development are often taken lightly and philosophically. In one of the larger Russian cities Lindel was shown the sights by a learned professor who wore a large, very noticeable patch on the knee of one trousers leg. The professor was not at all embarrassed. He had bought all the trousers he was allowed to buy that year at "necessity" prices, he explained; if he bought more he would have to pay luxury prices. He preferred to buy books and such things with his spare funds. His associates didn't mind his patches, anyway; they had patches of their own.

Relics of monarchical Russia may be expected, of course, to arouse aversion rather than amusement. The droshky, for instance, is being taxed out of existence as an anachronism in the era of machine worship that exists in Russia today. Taxicabs are encouraged and their fares are much lower than those of the horse-drawn vehicles. But even a droshky simetimes is not without its humor. Lindel rode in one whose driver, in plying his whip, used a windup so prolonged and elaborate that a baseball pitcher could have spread it over three innings. The Bolshevik guide, himself, had to laugh at it.

The Devouring Termites and the Damage They Have Done

St. Louis Householders Become Aware of Their Presence as Springtime Brings Them Into the Open for Their Nuptial Flights.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

CERTAIN unfortunate residents of St. Louis and vicinity are finding out, these spring days, an interesting but lamentable thing, i. e., that their houses are being devoured by termites. They are finding it out because the insects, their presence previously unsuspected, are making their annual appearance in the open. And the termites thus reveal themselves because, like many other creatures at this time of year, they are in love and their love is of a peculiar kind which does not relish darkness. It sends them out into the sunshine, sporting new wings and eyes, ready for a brief, ecstatic nuptial flight.

A householder, seeing the insects in or just outside his abode recognizes them or is uneasy enough to learn what they are, and takes steps. As a result the whole termite colony loses its good thing; finds itself barred from the house, whose succulent woodwork would have kept the tribe well nourished for years—or until a floor or something broke through—if the game had not been given away. All lost now—the welfare of their community traded for an hour of bliss by poor playthings of passion. Such is the devastation wrought by love among the termites.

People whose houses have been invaded by the wood-eating insects can scarcely be expected to appreciate the tragedy of all this from the termites' viewpoint. If there is any sympathy to be expended they need it themselves. There is a very good chance that by the time the termite colony has been discovered in a house it has been working there long enough to make expensive repairs necessary. New floors may have to be laid, new door frames or window frames installed, perhaps weakened supporting beams must be replaced. Many thousands of dollars are spent in this neighborhood every year for such repairs and for protection against these insects, and it has been estimated that the bill for the whole United States, in almost all parts of which the termite abounds, is more than $40,000,000 annually.

But even those whose property is destroyed by the termite must grant it some remarkable qualities aside from its deplorable addiction to wood. The termites have a highly organized, communistic society, in which every member has a job and each function is carried out by a section of the colony especially equipped for it.

Termites are often called white ants, but they are not ants. There are hundreds of varieties, but this main groups are found in this country: the subterranean and the wood-dwelling types. The latter are much the less numerous in the United States, having been noted chiefly in the coastal fringe of the Southern states. The subterranean termites, however, have been reported in almost every state and are responsible for most of the insect damage to buildings. It is this ground-dwelling bug which has caused so much consternation among property owners in and around St. Louis in recent years.

These termites have their colonies, or nests, in the ground, and reach the wood which furnishes their food supply through tunnels. They are little more than a quarter of an inch long, and each colony has three distinct kinds of individuals. The worker is gray-white in color, soft-bodied, unarmored and blind. The soldier is slightly larger and darker, and has a large, armored head and formidable mandibles. It also is blind and, like the worker, is a sexual neuter. The reproductives form a third caste. They are the ones which acquire eyes and wings and emerge into the open air in spring—sometimes also in fall—to mate, each pair then forming a new colony. Their bodies are dark, so they are often mistaken for ants, despite the fact they do not have the ant's wasp waist. The king and queen of the colony, of course, belong to the reproductives.

According to one theory, all the members of a colony are alike when born, and it has been suggested that they grow up into different types because some conscious control within the colony is exerted over their development; perhaps by varying the feeding methods some of the young termites can be evolved into workers, some into soldiers and some into reproductives, to suit the colony's requirements.

The workers must have a pretty dull time. They provide the food for all the others as well as themselves, gnawing away wood and carrying it down to headquarters. All the work of constructing tunnels, repairing breaks, preparing nests, maintaining the colony's fungus garden, is done by the worker. It works along steadily in the darkness, without stopping for sleep or recreation. And when it becomes incapacitated for work it is promptly killed and its body is added to the cellulose food supply stored in the fungus garden.

THE soldiers are strictly home guards. Their business is to protect their colony from invasion, the chief enemy being ants. When not so engaged the soldiers apparently have nothing to do. But when any break occurs in a runway, any breach through which enemies might get in, the soldiers hasten to the spot and line up in the opening, with their heads pointed outward. They remain thus on guard until workers finish repairing the break. It is thought that they also direct the workers in such emergency jobs. The soldiers are effective fighters only when they can keep their heads toward the foe, for the rest of their body is unarmored, and taken in the flank or rear, they are easy prey. Since they are slow-moving creatures, this weakness in their armament makes them poor troops for operations in the open, and they don't attempt to carry a battle beyond their own territory.

The reproductives have one romantic adventurous interlude in their hum-drum lives. When mature, with compound eyes and wings, they go out to have their fling in a strange bright world. Workers make an opening in a runway, and while the soldiers stand guard to prevent any enemies from getting in, the reproductives crawl out, never to return. Most of them perish, victims of other insects or of hardships with which they are not equipped to cope. But a few from each swarm survive their nuptial flight, and creep into dark crannies to found new colonies, each pair setting up a separate establishment and becoming its king and queen.

Back in the darkness, their wings and sight gone, they spend the rest of their days in a married existence more tedious than any which sends human beings moaning to Reno. The colony is formed by children of the king and queen, hatched by the queen at the rate of 30,000 to 50,000 a day. And when the labyrinthine underground city is established, the king and queen are immured in a cell from which they never emerge, the doorway being too small for them to pass through. Food is brought to them by the workers. Sometimes they live as long as 25 years this way.

Termites, invading a house, tunnel up from their underground nest and start chewing on a piece of wood that is in contact with the ground. Or, if none of the woodwork touches the ground, they can construct earthlike tubes across expanses of brick and stone which must be traversed to reach wood. They can even build these shelter tubes straight up from the ground, without support, for a short distance. Sometimes these passageways are so unconcealed that they betray to house owners the presence of the destructive insects.

Having an aversion for light, the termite is careful in eating the woodwork of a house not to break through the surface. Often a door or sill is so largely consumed, however, that only a shell remains.

A virtually exclusive diet of cellulose calls for a very special digestive apparatus. This consists, in the termite, of a force of minute protoza, which converts the cellulose into assimilable material. But it appears that these protozoa require water, so the termites, in which they live, must have access to moisture. This is supposed to account for their practice of establishing headquarters in the ground. One of the ways of combating them is to place a repellant substance across the passageways between a nest and the house which has been invaded.

TERMITES have been found in virtually every section of St. Louis and St. Louis County. Eight of the 10 houses in one block in a suburban town were found to be infested. A number of public building have been invaded, including the Second Baptist Church, one of the buildings of Washington University, and a business structure at Eighteenth and Chouteau. It has been estimated that the damage they cause in the city and county easily amounts to $100,000 a year.

The ravages of the insects sometimes are disclosed with dramatic violence. In one case, a piano broke through the weakened floor and fell into the basement. The same thing happened to a sofa in another house. And more than one householder has had the experience of dropping comfortably into a chair, only to be pitched out as one of its legs pushed through the shell of polished flooring on which it rested.

A cousin of the subterranean termite common in Missouri was studied recently in Mexico by Wolfgang von Hagen, bookbinder and entomologist, who restored damaged books in several St. Louis libraries last summer. Von Hagen, who has been traveling through Mexico and Central America, encountered this termite, of the genus Eutermes, in tropical regions of the State of Guerrero, and has sent data concerning it, including photographs, to the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine. The account which follows is based on information he supplied.

One of the chief differences between the eutermes and other termites is that the soldiers of the former shoot a viscous fluid at their enemies through a frontal horn. The fluid is secreted in a gland in the head, and can be squirted a distance of several millimeters. Ants, the hereditary enemies of the termites, fear this weapon, for a drenching with the sticky latex soon renders them helpless, their legs held fast in the coagulating mess. And when an ant returns from the wars all gummed up with latex—having managed to get home before the stuff thickened enough to prevent all movement—he might as well not have returned. His compatriots regard him as a menace to their well-being because of the danger of others getting tangled in his bonds, so he is promptly but carefully dragged a safe distance from the nest, and left to perish.

The eutermes eat the wood of trees, and their colonies or termitaries are in the open air. But the nests have a hard covering, made partly of wood paste, which keeps out the light and ordinarily is strong enough to keep out ants as well. From the termitary, tunnels lead to trees and shrubs, sometimes extending for hundreds of feet. In outward appearance the nest resembles that of the common wasp, although much larger. The interior is a labyrinth of passages which lead to a central apartment, where the king and queen dwell.

In defending the nests, the soldiers fight with the greatest courage. No matter how big or how fierce are the ants which attack a termitary, when a break occurs in its covering or in one of the tunnels leading to it, the termite soldiers stand resolutely in the breach and give battle to the foe. Perhaps the fact that the blind warriors can't see how formidable the enemy is, has something to do with their valor. At any rate, they do not fear to stand their ground against the fiercest ant in the Americas, the black, marauding eciton, which is the terror of most other insects, and even eats small animals.

THE ecitons don't do much climbing, and so seldom come in contact with the eutermes, whose nests usually are in trees. But Von Hagen was fortunate enough to see a battle between these two varieties of ants and termites—having "promoted" the event to the extent of making a breach in the wall of the termitary. His description follows:

"A line of ecitons — an advance guard, or reconnoitering party—came by the termitary and noticed the breach I had made in it. Termite workers already were beginning to repair it. An ant approached and tapped one of the termites with his antennae. One could imagine him licking his chops and saying, 'Ah, here are some truly tasty morsels.' He hurried back to his companions and reported. Then the whole crowd came charging up to the termitary, followed by the rest of the regiment—black, deadly foemen whose mandibles could cut a termite in two with one snip. The blind defenders of the nest stood steadily in the breach, armored heads toward the advancing enemy. With them were the workers, carrying on the job of filling in the opening in their dwelling.

"The leading ant came up and seized one of the soft-bodied, defenseless workers. But before he could get away with his prey, soldier termites 'fired,' and the marauder was sprinkled with the sticky fluid they emit. He fell off the side of the termitary, but some of the latex stuck to the nest and the ant hung suspended by a gum-like string.

"OTHER ants reached the breach, tried to force their way inside and grab termites. They, too, were quickly smeared with latex by the home guards; some of them fell from the termitary and dangled at the end of strings of latex, others tried to hobble away. In a short time the whole regiment of ants had turned tail, given up the attack. And a little later, when I placed some termites on top of the ants' temporary nest not far away, the ants abandoned their home and stayed away until the termites left it.

"Be it remembered that these ants were the ecitons, hardy daredevils that attack wasps' nests and remove the larvae and young despite the dagger thrusts of the infuriated wasps hovering overhead. Yet they were put to flight, and, evidently, thoroughly intimidated, by the sexless, blind, clumsy little termite soldiers."

There is one invader that the eutermes seem to tolerate in their termitary, probably because they can't do otherwise. That is the Mexican parrot. The mother bird pecks a hole into the center of the termitary and lays her eggs there. It is supposed she chooses this place to leave the eggs because it is warm; another consideration may be that a food supply is available to the chicks as soon as they break out of their eggs, as termites are attracted to the spot by the noise the birds make getting out of their shells.

Building Up Actors Into Something They Are Not Becomes More Complicated and Exacting Than Ever in Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD, California.

A TALL man swathed in a sheet left his dressing room in a Hollywood picture studio not long ago, moved swiftly to one of the sound stages, stepped through a door and closed it quickly behind him. No one saw his face, his hands or his clothing. Regularly, at the same hour each day for a period of six weeks, "the man in the sheet" duplicated the previous day's peregrination. In time, his reappearance attracted the attention of workmen.

"Who is that bird?" one asked. "What's the matter with him?"

But the man was not "goofey." He was appearing in a sheet under orders issued from the company's executive offices. No one was to see his make-up or his costume except members of his cast and technicians so long as he was acting in a picture then under course of production. For more than three hours each morning during that six-week period the chief of the studio makeup staff was closted with him, reshaping his face and endeavoring to transform him into one of the most sinister-looking creatures that ever walked the earth in the guise of a man. The "finished product" was to remain a thing of mystery until the picture was finished and ready to be shown to the world.

The man was Boris Karloff, celebrated English actor, making that horror picture, "Frankenstein." Millions of theater goers have seen the production and wondered, "How'd they ever make him look that way?"

"You guess!"

He explains no further.

When the 'script for this picture was in course of preparation, Pierce was called into conference by executives and told the type of a creature that must be created—a mechanically made man, ostensibly pieced together from the bodies of the dead into which life was to be injected by means of electrical currents. At first, his instructions were, its flesh must appear gray and splotchy and its lips almost black. The top of its head must have a curious flat ridge like the lid of a box, with the hair fairly short and quite obviously combed over the ridge to hide the surgical defect in joining where the brain was inserted. This was to be the scientifically made criminal of "Frankenstein," which Karloff was to portray.

"Quite some order!" Pierce commented as he envisioned the task.

Nevertheless, he went to work, sketching and planning the artificial man as he envisioned him. He visited a morgue and studied the features of a man who had been dead six weeks, noting the position of the eyelids, the mouth and the parts of the face which had shrunken. From these he drew a mental picture of what Karloff must resemble when he made his appearance on the screen. The actor is six feet tall, but for the purposes of the picture he had to appear as a monster. So, with built-up shoes and padded shoulders his height was increased seven inches.

On this page is shown a picture of Karloff as he is in real life and another showing him in make-up for his role in Frankenstein. Close inspection of the latter will reveal an artificial forehead extending from the upper part of the nose to the roots of the hair and completely covering the eyebrows. A long scar on the right temple of the artificial forehead is accentuated with black grease paint. The lips are whitened until they appear colorless. The nose is built out with putty. The eyelashes are covered with thin coatings of the same material used on the artificial forehead. In general, the whole upper part of Karloff's face is "built on him," leaving the mouth and lower part movable.

Thus, with his 6 feet 7 inches of height, black clothing and lifelessly colored features, he readily became the type of phantom fiend which Universal Pictures sought.

"I have letters from all over the world asking what material I used in making that forehead," Mr. Pierce, the makeup chief says. "Many of them were from professional actors who wanted to use it. But that's my secret. Primarily, it's a composition dangerous to handle. A little, misplaced, might cause an amateur to lose the sight of an eye, and I intend letting no one fool with it."

For his appearance in "The Old Dark House" just recently put into production, Karloff's height was built up to 6 feet, 9 inches, and he appears in enormous shoes with false bottoms and a coat with a two-story addition above the shoulders (or possibly it's a story and an attic.) His nose is puttied out the same as it was in "Frankenstein" and mats of artificial whiskers are pasted on his face. His arms seem abnormally long but it must be remembered that they start several inches below the top of the padded-up coat. The artificial forehead again is in evidence.

The make-up feats of Karloff and his accomplice, Pierce, are remindful of those of the great Chaney who took most of his secrets to the grave. Lon Chaney took no one into his confidence, yet his director, Tod Browning, naturally learned how he succeeded in accomplishing many of the facial distortions which helped make him famous.

At one time Chaney appeared with one eye totally white, supposedly blinded. What he had done was to take the filmy white lining from an egg shell and lay it over the eyeball, extending it well under both the upper and lower eyelids. Lon complained after a while that the egg-lining was becoming painful and before the day's "shooting" ended, he had to remove it. But next morning he was back again with the same white eye and he finished the necessary scenes.

The tricks of the make-up specialists are as closely guarded as the dyes in the government mints although not with machine guns.

Right at the present time the country is marvelling over the dual role played by Frederick March in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in which he is transformed "right before your eyes" from a handsome, debonair clubman into a hideous, monkey-faced fiend who is devoid of morals. And yet, according to make-up men, the feat was simple and painless.

The most outstanding feature was, of course, the set of artificial teeth built on a thin shell which he slipped over his real teeth and allowed to slightly protrude. Next were the distended nostrils (into which hollow, circular objects had been slipped) giving the nasal organ a flat apearance. The ears were built up and the rest was simply the application of patches of human hair (which is mounted and can be bought by the yard) and painting lines and dark circles beneath the eyes. The moments of transition from "Dr. Jekyll" and "Mr. Hyde" were accomplished with the camera out of focus, making the picture for a few seconds little more than a blur.

However, simple as it may seem, that piece of work by the make-up man is considered to be a work of art and hundreds of letters have poured into the Paramount studio commending the results.

Another outstanding piece of make-up wizardry was accomplished by Cecil Holland at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio on the face of Lewis Stone for his role in "Grand Hotel." Stone appears through the entire production with one side of his face shriveled and with an eye drawn, such as is often seen resulting from paralysis. And the actor's face really was shriveled for picture purposes.

THERE is a druggist's collation called "colodian," which, applied to the human flesh, puckers or draws the skin until it leaves deep creases. It virtually is harmless, yet it distorts the features as though gashed. This is what was used to "shrivel up" Lewis Stone's face.

"It took two hours each morning to get that side of Mr. Stone's face 'warped out of shape,' Mr. Holland says. "He sat there like an old trouper undergoing the treatment, occasionally delivering an oration in trouper language to let the make-up man know how he didn't like either him or Director Edmund Goulding or anyone connected with the work except Greta Garbo. He didn't mean it, though.

"When he got his face properly drawn, I took a piece of fish-skin, drew down that lower eye-lid and pasted it there. Thus he appeared, one side of his face perfectly normal, the other warped. But when he went home each evening, the shriveled cheek had returned to its accustomed position. A touch of acetone removed the colodian."

And yet, many persons will wonder

THE FIFTH SEASON of NAVIGATION on the UPPER RIVER

The New "Life on the Mississippi" — Still in an Experimental Stage — Provides the Only Link the Valley Has With Pre-Railroad Days.

Captain Harry Lancaster, of the "Mark Twain."

Pilot Bert Lovette.

By M. W. CHILDS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THE steamer Mark Twain is on her initial southbound journey in the service of the Inland Waterways Corporation. She has been christened, launched, inspected and already she has pushed up the Mississippi 2373 tons of freight. Now she is bound down to St. Louis with a cargo of breakfast food, malt extract and plateglass, 549 tons in all, contained in the blunt-nosed barges that she pushes ahead of her, three abreast.

It is the opening of the fifth season of navigation on the upper river. The Federal Barge Line, which operates on the whole length of the Mississippi and up the Warrior River, was an experiment in transportation that evolved out of the stress of the war. It has proved a financial success below St. Louis. The past two years of depression and low water have been critical for Uncle Sam's barge line in the lonely reaches of the Upper Mississippi. This season, too, will be a test, and it is plain that the whole personnel, from operating manager to newest deck hand, are determined to make the service more than ever a cheap and effective competitor of the railroads which run along both sides of the river.

But it is more than this. It is the only link with the past, the only survivor of the turbulent days before the growth of the railroads. First came the packets and then the lumber boom when the upper river, season after season, was covered with a brown web of logs. Then, for possibly 20 years, this part of the river, between St. Paul and St. Louis, was dead and deserted.

AT LAST the Government, at the urgent request of a group of business men in Minneapolis and St. Paul, stepped in, determined to put the river back into service.

The captains and the pilots on these boats represent a direct link with the past. With two or three exceptions, they descend directly from the days when a pilot was an envied man in every river town and a captain the lord of all he surveyed from his hurricane deck. They embody the tradition and the lore of the gaudy packets and they have lived to take part in this new epoch of trim, efficient craft, using radio and every other scientific aid to navigation.

The spanking new Mark Twain, which cost nearly $200,000, is as unlike the old-time packet as a river boat could well be. Gone are the jigsaw decorations and the fancy iron work on the stacks. The lines of the Mark Twain are clean and efficient. Her dining saloon has the white, sterile look of a laboratory. The radio room has apparently all the equipment of a similar station on an ocean liner. In the spacious galley is a combined coal and oil burning range, with a forced electric draft, for the cook's convenience. The engine room has an orderly precision that would dismay the old type of engineer. The oil-burning engines operate a specially constructed stern paddle wheel by means of twin walking beams.

In the pilot house, too, there are changes that would startle an old school pilot. In the old days the polit was forced to give all his orders by yanking on one or the other of the bell ropes that hung above his head. He turned the rudder by sheer muscular strength applied to a big pilot wheel. The pilot on the Mark Twain gives orders by turning the lever of a mechanical telegraph identical with those used on ocean liners. The boat's direction shifts at the touch of his hand on one or both of a pair of levers, which turn the rudder by electricity.

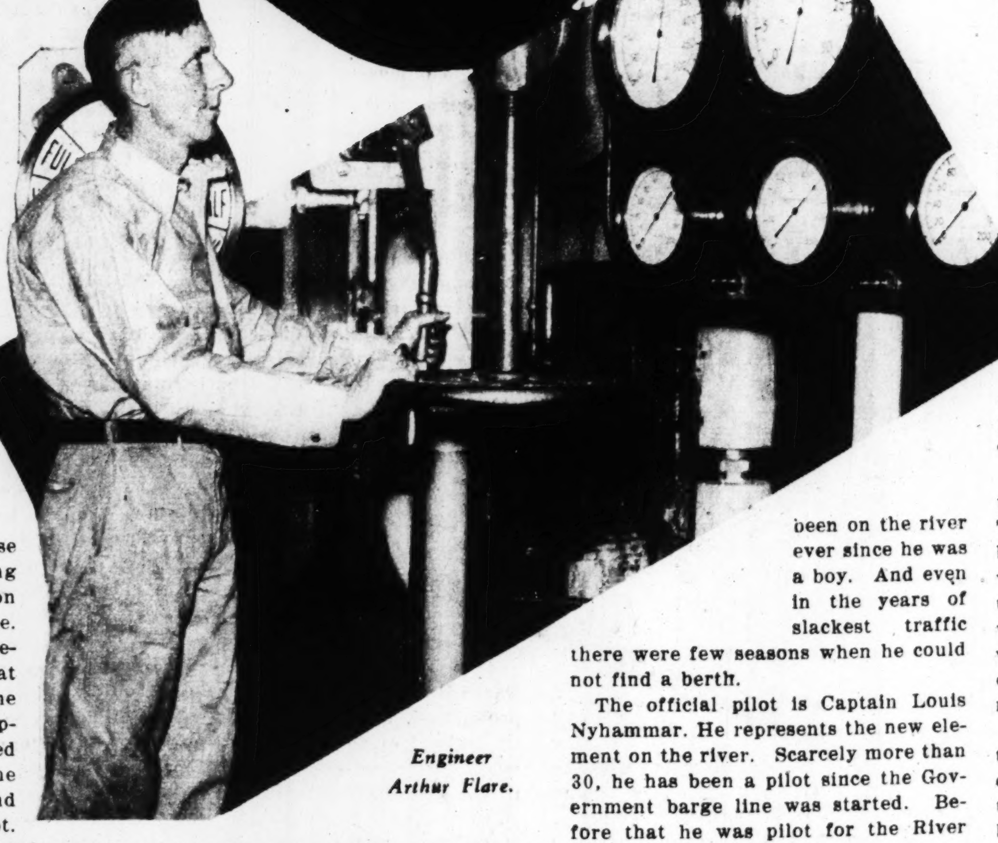
But oddly enough, despite all these changes, the atmosphere in the pilot house is that of the river of long ago. And perhaps the reason for this is Bert Lovette. Thirty years intervened between the two careers that Captain Lovette — everyone who is a pilot is also a captain on the river—pursued on the Mississippi. But he has lost none of the airs and graces of the old-time pilot. He might have stepped out of one of the river books by the great author for whom the Mark Twain was named.



Engineer Arthur Flare.

To see Captain Lovette bring the Mark Twain and her tow around the sharp bend above Red Wing, Minnesota, is to see the artistry of the pilot in all his pristine glory. He stands very straight, looking surprisingly young and erect for all the years that have accumulated since he first began to learn the river. He has both hands on the steering levers. He bends down to sight a line against the jack-staff, on the middle one of the forward three barges. He strikes a line to the next diamond-shaped marker on the bank, sights a pair of bobbing red buoys, and gently begins to shift the steering levers. Slowly the front end of the barges responds, swings wide, so close to the west bank that the tops of overhanging willows are stirred, then the whole bulk is around and straightened out and there is the uninterrupted course of the river stretching miles ahead again. Captain Lovette does a modest tap dance in sheer exuberance.

The Government has placed hundreds of markers on the shore and hundreds of buoys, many of them lighted, in the water to indicate the channel. There are at least a half-dozen Government dredging outfits up and down the Upper Mississippi.

THESE are improvements that the old pilots knew nothing of. But nevertheless piloting a steamer with a tow of barges is not yet child's play. It would offer a few problems to the packet pilot of old.

It is like pushing a small skyscraper down the stream. The barges extend out 350 feet ahead of the steamer itself. Placed three abreast, they are nearly a hundred feet in width. The markers and buoys are there, but it is not so simple as it seems. To the uninitiated it appears to be comparable to driving a motor car along a well-marked highway. But there are a thousand things which the pilot must know that the novice would have no way of discovering from the Government markers. And often the channel shifts before Government engineers get around to shifting the buoys. The pilot must discover this from the altered surface of the water.

Because his most recent experience has been on the lower river, Lovette is not the official pilot on the Mark Twain. He occupies the steersman's berth. The captain is Harry Lancaster, whose father began his pilot's career on the Mississippi at the close of the Civil War. Captain Lancaster has been on the river ever since he was a boy. And even in the years of slackest traffic there were few seasons when he could not find a berth.

The official pilot is Captain Louis Nyhammar. He represents the new element on the river. Scarcely more than 30, he has been a pilot since the Government barge line was started. Before that he was pilot for the River Transit Company, a private barge enterprise.

He came from Bergen, Norway, at the age of 22. From a family of navigators, he learned as a young man how to navigate the difficult coast of Norway, the treacherous inlets, the narrow dangers of the numerous fjords. River piloting is more difficult, Captain Nyhammar believes, because there are more obstacles, more uncertainty. But, of course, it is far less dangerous than skirting the rock-bound coasts of his native country. A mistake there is likely to cost craft and lives. On the Mississippi, except in rare instances, the worst thing that can happen is long and tedious delay.

Captain Nyhammar's style of piloting differs radically from that of Captain Lovette. The former is much more matter of fact about his job. Watch him as he takes the Mark Twain and her tow through the draw bridge at La Crosse, Wisconsin. It is dark, and the lights of the city are reflected in the river. All day we have come at a steady 10-mile-an-hour rate down past the magnificent bluffs that line the stream from below Lake Pepin.

Captain Nyhammar sounds the Twain's deep whistle for the draw. He turns the lever of the mechanical telegraph to the point that is marked slow. The paddle wheel turns lazily. Slowly the great draw bridge begins to open. The Twain is now drifting with the current. The bridge is opened wide. It would be a guess whether the broad tow would get through there or not. But Captain Nyhammar is never for a moment in doubt.

He focuses two powerful searchlights so that the beams fall to right and left, long, blue-white shafts of light that illumine both sides of the narrow passageway. Creeping with the current, the Twain, with its bulky tow, slips through. Now the forward barges are clear and then at last the steamer itself is out on the broad surface of the river.

Piloting at night calls for unerring eyesight and a sure hand. The port searchlight picks out a white diamond board far down the bank, throws into sudden sharp relief the overhanging trees and the steep, shelving shore. Captain Nyhammar shifts the starboard light here and there, seeking the line of buoys that marks the end of a series of wing dams. Like a giant eye, it wavers over the smooth, mud-brown surface of the water until at last it rests upon the bobbing red and white mark. In the pilot house it is dark and still. This job requires concentration.

But there is a ghostly memory of those miraculous pilots of the '50s. There were no lights, no markers or buoys of any sort. Mark Twain has written of their skill in his "Life On the Mississippi," how they felt their way along by means of shadows and vague shapes that the novice did not even see. Those men would scorn the modern pilot's aids.

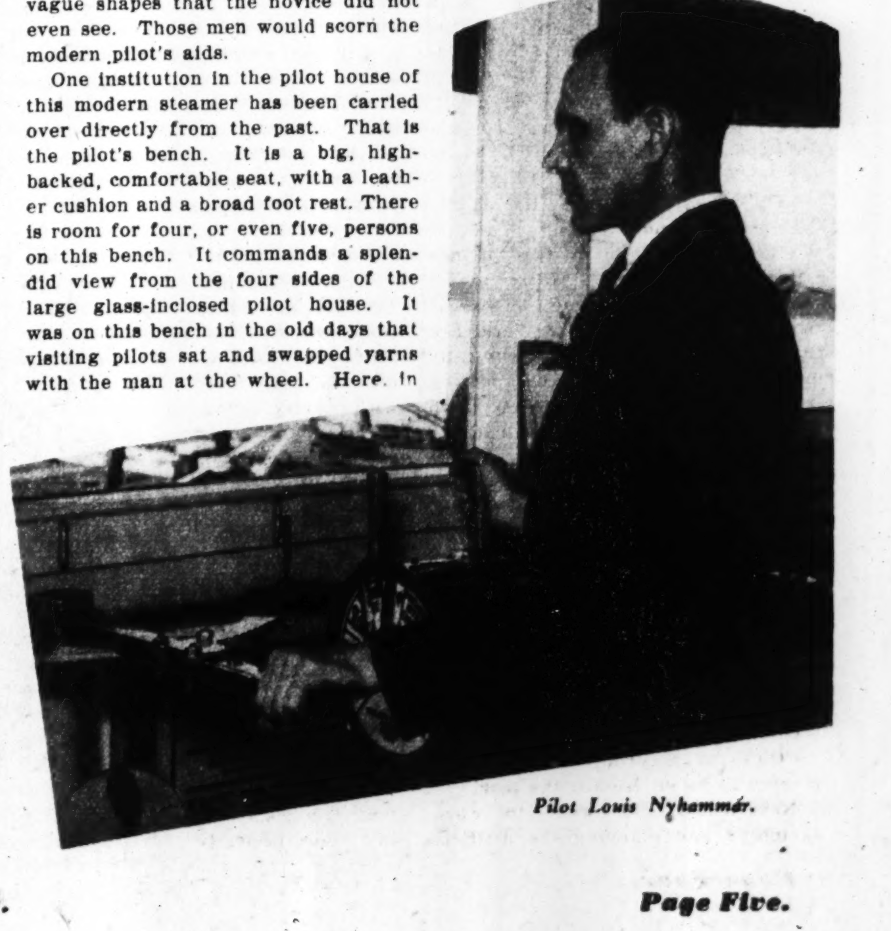
One institution in the pilot house of this modern steamer has been carried over directly from the past. That is the pilot's bench. It is a big, high-backed, comfortable seat, with a leather cushion and a broad foot rest. There is room for four, or even five, persons on this bench. It commands a splendid view from the four sides of the large glass-inclosed pilot house. It was on this bench in the old days that visiting pilots sat and swapped yarns with the man at the wheel. Here, in the present day, the pilot who is not on watch spends much of his time, as does Captain Lancaster. The latter customarily stands a regular six-hour watch, but as he has had no contact with the river above Dubuque for several years, this trip is more or less in the nature of a study trip for him.

At 8 o'clock on a Sunday morning we pass through the Dubuque, Iowa, draw bridge, just 29 hours out of the barge line terminal at St. Paul. The Twain has made a good, steady run. Late the previous afternoon Captain Lancaster had received from Director of Traffic Goodsell in St. Paul the following radiogram: "Drop barges 343 and 358 in Dubuque, take empty 335 to be dropped at Burlington, and 342 in your tow to be dropped at Rock Island. Leave Dubuque on your regular Monday afternoon schedule."

THIS means the crew and officers of the Twain, 19 in all, will have more than 24 hours in port. But before they can enjoy their shore leave the deck hands must uncouple the barges and set out those which are to remain at the Dubuque terminal. It is not unlike the process by which two freight cars would be set out.

On Monday at 4 o'clock the Mark Twain will begin the second lap of her journey to St. Louis, where she is due on that Wednesday. There again, when she runs exactly to schedule, there is a coveted 24 hours in port.

Whatever the ultimate destiny of this line, whether it becomes financially independent or whether the railroads succeed in their efforts to force it to suspend, one thing is certain: It has served to revive the traditions of the old river. It has recalled, even if faintly and remotely, the time when the Mississippi was a great artery of commerce, and that in itself is no small contribution.

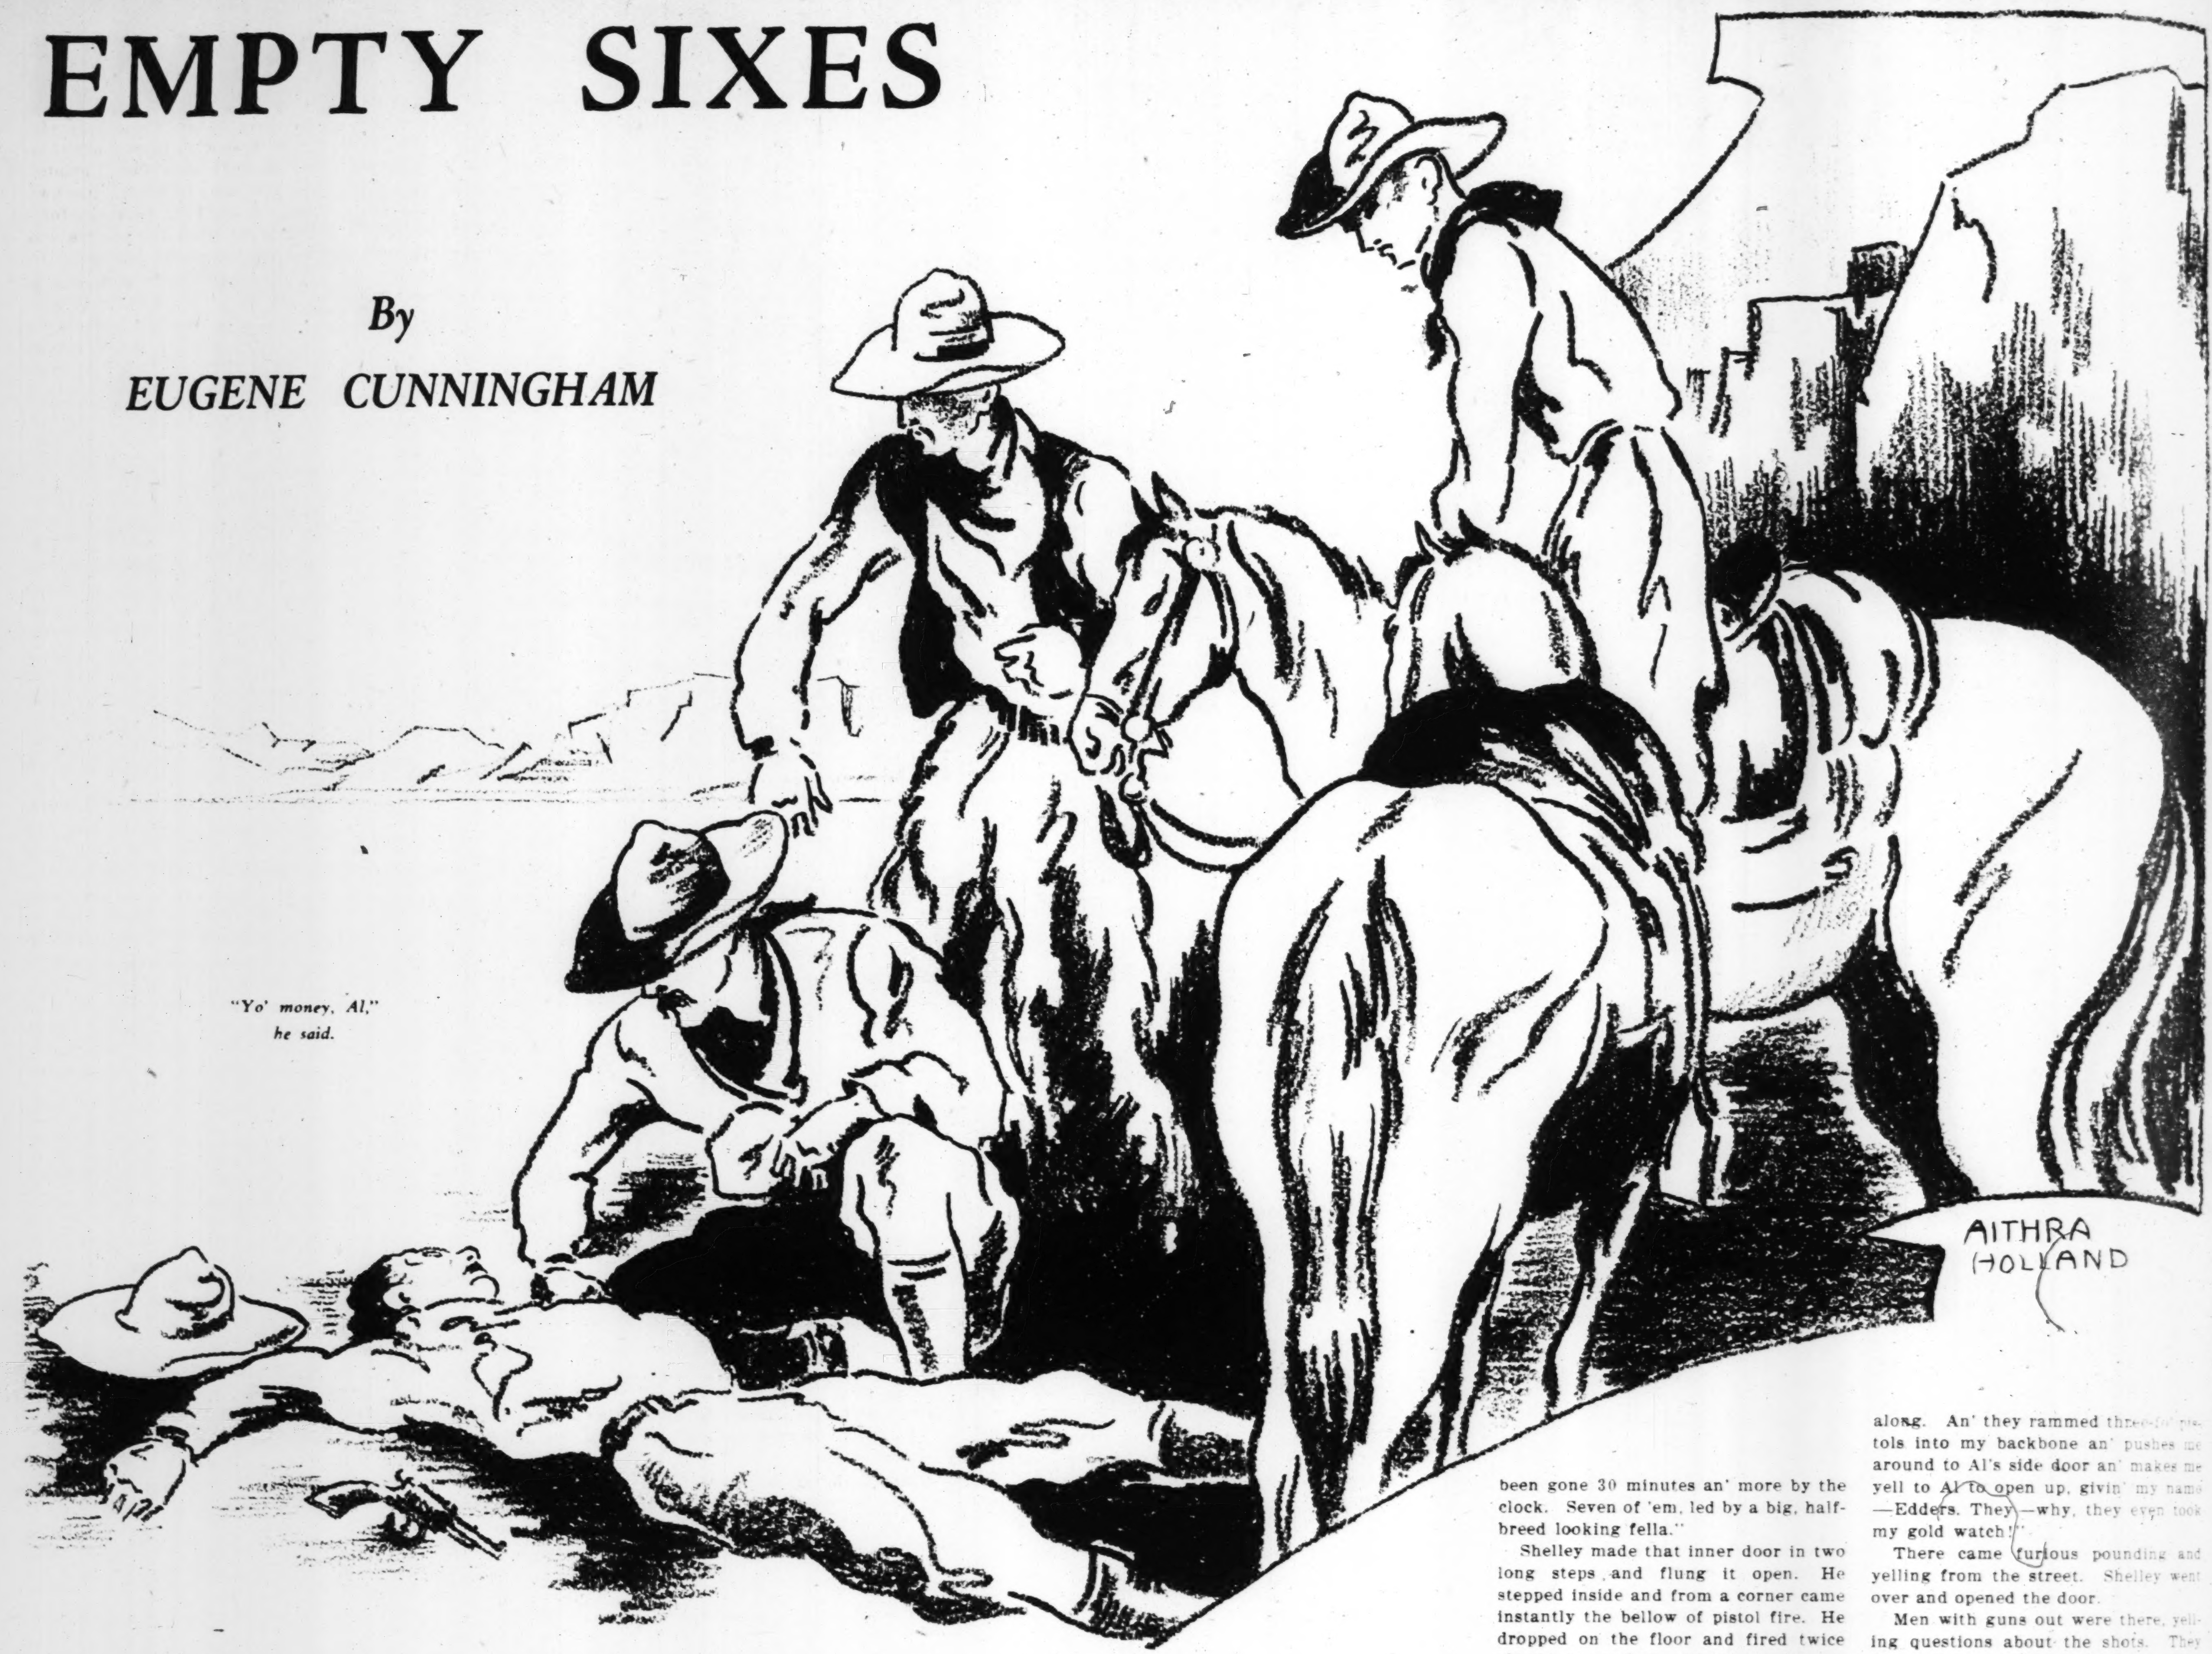


Pilot Louis Nyhammar.

EMPTY SIXES

By

EUGENE CUNNINGHAM



"Yo' money, Al," he said.

THERE was a crossroads store and postoffice somewhere ahead of that veteran Ranger Sergeant—Shoutin' Shelley Raines. Very near, if that sudden rising thunder of shots was at the tiny settlement.

Shelley rammed the hooks to Rojo and the long-legged red horse went forward like a bullet.

He had no idea regarding the cause for all this artilleryizing around Bill Crowe's place, but he was apt to suspect Sonora Till of having a hand in everything unusual.

Long before Rojo's racing gait brought him near enough to see men, he saw the stabbing flames of the shots.

It was not hard to determine that two pretty evenly balanced factions were at war there. Whatever it was, it was his job to slide in.

"Rangers! Rangers! Rangers!"

The firing dribbled away; ceased. Men yelled some sort of reply, but he couldn't make out the words. Then he heard a drumming of hoofs. He looked, but could see nothing. He took a chance and rode out into the road again and toward the store.

Men stepped out of its shadow and came toward Shelley. He saw Crowe's white head.

"Shelley!" he cried. "I 'low that gang figgered ye was a whole pair o' Rangers—way they high-tailed. We got two—ain't made out yit who they be—unless the Sher'f has found out mighty recent. Robbers, they was—an' a whole passel-slew o' robbers!

"I'd closed up the store at 9 o'clock an' gone home to git supper. Sher'f an' two deputies rode in. Later on, we went over to the store to git some tobacco an' they was just comin' out, carryin' two sacks."

The Sheriff of Blocker County came up—a stocky, surly man, who had no use for Rangers.

"Good-size bunch," the Sheriff grunted. "We downed two. Mebbe hurt some that rode off. Eight—nine in the gang, all together. They high-tailed south, hittin' for the malpais. I'm goin' to take along this bunch an' trail 'em—right now."

"Sonora Till's outfit, yuh reckon?" Shelley said softly, looking down at Sheriff Drew.

"Do' no'. But if it's Sonora's outfit, this'll be the bunch that gethers 'em in an' collects the reward. They got about fifteen hund'd from Crowe's safe here."

He whirled and barked his orders. Within five minutes, he, with his deputies and five men and boys of the settlement, were in the saddle.

The posse rode out fast. Past midnight they lost the hoofprints on harder, more broken ground—the beginning of the malpais. They rolled up in their blankets and slept until the gray dawn. But coursing about did not show the trail again.

Shelley pulled in Rojo with mouth grimly set. He considered the country in all directions. Sheriff Drew looked at him.

"No use killin' time. I figger they're makin' for the south. I'm goin' to cut straight across the malpais an' hunt trail toward Durbec. Hit the railroad an' do some wirin'."

"No good," Shelley said grimly. "They ain't ridin' south. They rode this far to lose their hawses' feet. I figger they went toward Pow Wow. We better cut that way."

"You can—if you want to. I told you what I'm doin'. Or you can ride with us—if you want to."

"YEH," Shelley nodded. "If I figgered Sonora Till went thataway yuh couldn't keep me from ridin' with yuh. But that country's too thin-settled for his outfit. He's huntin' real pickin's."

"He—has kind o' set on you." Drew grinned maliciously.

"He has al'ays had the breaks. Shot me from behind, once. Left me for dead an' hightailed. Busted out o' jail when I'd slammed him into it. But this time"——

Shelley turned and, with a jerk of the hand for the party, rode off toward the eastern line of the country.

Nearing Pow Wow, he met a cowboy, a shabby figure in overalls and old hat, but riding a good 2-Bar-Cross black. He said that Pow Wow was quiet—now.

"Bandy Box is takin' his sher'fin' plumb serious. He gethered in my sidekicker, Red Ralls, along with six more fellas that was goin' to shoot up the town. Do' no' who them fellas was. They come into town some time yeste'day when I wasn't theh, an' wanted to see the elephunt an' hear the owl."

Shelley stiffened in the saddle, stared with hard, gray eyes at the gossiping puncher. Then without a word of farewell he put the steel to Rojo and swept up the road to Pow Wow.

"Could it be?" he asked himself unbelievingly. "That bunch o' curly wolves gethered in by such a .22-caliber as Bandy Box? Sonora—an' the five that'd ride with him?"

The Sheriff's office in the front of the courthouse was empty. Shelley leaned in the doorway. Then, turning, he saw the ring of keys—to the jail behind the office.

He took down the ring from its nail and, with his Colt in his right hand, unlocked the wooden door that opened upon the gloomy cross-hall that was the jail's front corridor. He heard nothing, saw nothing, even after his eyes became refocused to the jail's dimness.

For the big cell that occupied most of the jail's floor space—the "bullpen"—was empty. And there were only three cells, besides this . . . He wondered if Bandy had let that bunch go. Wondered if they had really been his gang.

But he went on in, looking keenly to right and left up and down the hall. Cell three was empty. Cell two—there was a fellow asleep on a shakedown, a pallet, on the floor. His head was turned away. Cell one was also occupied. A smallish, bow-legged man lay half-on, half-off, a shakedown like that in Number two. Shelley stared, then——

"Por amor de dios!" he gasped. "Bandy Box! An' unless he's the best actor ever I saw"——

The cell door was locked. He unlocked it flashingly and streaked inside. Bandy was dead.

The adjoining cell's prisoner was a stranger to Shelley. But he wore a deputy's star. Shelley, feeling for the heart, saw a piece of wrapping paper pinned to the deputy's shirt. There was a black, scrawling message on the paper and he saw his own name. . . .

"Long time no see you you mangy screw but you will hear plentie from here out. before we get done Texas will call Sam Bass a tinhorn pennie antie buscadero wich he was. I hope you start trayling us from here because you will get to finde out what the Sun looks like when you looke at her Through the Gras rootes. I knowed Gil Manriquez seen us crossin and he would tell you bumms and knowed you would come this far. Now come over to the Bank when you have read this piece. from the One who is goin to get you Right this time."

It was signed by Sonora's road sign, the coiled rattler. More than once Shelley had found that trade mark on a job. But it was a little different on this note. The rattler's neck had stretched and he was biting a Sheriff's star.

"Tolled us up to the bars!" a voice whispered and he jumped. It was the deputy, trying agonizedly to tell his tale. "Had us covered—do' no' where they got them guns—then they—killed"——

He was gone, this time! Shelley turned and went out of the jail.

In the door he stopped to glare at the quiet, peaceful front of the bank opposite. But he was too old a hand to go straight across the street, into possible gunfire from gentlemen perfectly concealed. It seemed to him that he rode a mile before he could come, moderately covered, to the side door of the bank—the door of Al Jones' private room.

Shelley yelled for Jones, and when no answer came, tried the door. It gave. He burst through and slid to one side.

Al Jones, tied to his big oak chair, eyed him steadily from over a money bag that was bound around his face. A wizened little man, lashed to one leg of the huge desk and similarly gagged, glared waspishly at Shelley.

"Carteret's dead, out there. They been gone 30 minutes an' more by the clock. Seven of 'em, led by a big, half-breed looking fella."

Shelley made that inner door in two long steps and flung it open. He stepped inside and from a corner came instantly the bellow of pistol fire. He dropped on the floor and fired twice almost at random, toward the blazes.

He began to wriggle nearer, wondering if that could be Carteret, the cashier. He might not have been dead. But—there couldn't be one of the gang there; not 30 minutes after the robbery.

Then he saw the dead cashier.

So, either some o' the gang was dropped an' left behind, or somebody has sneaked inside since they left an' "——

"Hey!" he yelled abruptly. "Come out o' that, now! Yuh're plumb surrounded an'—Ahhh!"

Around the corner of an old-fashioned desk came a head and shoulder, very cautiously—a round head. Barney Choice—none who had ever seen the nitwit's face would ever forget it.

But Shelley knew that, feeble-minded as Barney was, he was dangerous. So he aimed at Barney's forehead and let the hammer go. But Barney stretched his long, thin neck at that moment, for a view of his supposed victim. The bullet tore through his chest high up, above the heart.

Shelley hurled himself across the space between them. He caught Barney's clawing hand as it crooked about the .32-20 butt. He was instantly deafened by the roar of Barney's left-hand gun, which, apparently, the wounded outlaw had not been able to use until them.

Shelley whirled with Colt in hand at a footstep behind him, but lowered his muzzle when he saw that it was Al Jones. With him was that waspish little cowman.

"Reckon they cleaned me," Jones said with the flat, even voice of a man who knows he has been hit the hardest possible blow. "I had 35,000 extra to take care o' some buyers that have been travelin' around the neighborhood."

"Gethered me outside the bank," the dark little cowman rasped. "Ask' me where I was headin'. I says: 'To the bank, to talk to the president;' an' that big, half-breed lookin' one, he laughs. He says that's fine; he'll trail along. An' they rammed three-fo' pistols into my backbone an' pushes me around to Al's side door an' makes me yell to Al to open up, givin' my name—Edders. They—why, they even took my gold watch!"

There came furious pounding and yelling from the street. Shelley went over and opened the door.

Men with guns out were there, yelling questions about the shots. They came surging in to crowd against the windows.

"They got forty-odd thousands, men. Hits nobody but me an' the other stockholders. Anybody see 'em hightail?"

Nobody had. Al Jones found two of the bank's stockholders in the crowd, and these three stayed in the bank.

SHELLEY and the others went out and hunted for signs. Shelley looked across at the tumbled ruins of the 'dobe houses on the banks of Pow Wow Creek. The footprints of the group of men coming out of the bank's back door seemed to head that way.

He coursed the ground for a moment, until he found what he had hunted, the tracks of Barney Choice—coming back to the bank.

"What had been forgotten?" he wondered. He stood glowering down at the heelless prints. Then a yell from some of the men jerked him back to the present. He looked up.

"Hey! Sergeant! Looky yere! They rode off this-a-way! We better be gittin' our hawses an' follerin' 'em."

From behind a 'dobe shell not 50 yards to the northward of the bank's back wall, there led the trail of eight or nine hurried horses.

Shelley whistled for Rojo, and when the red horse came tearing around the bank, he swung up and rode a little forward on the trail.

"Wonder where Barney Choice's hawse went?" he said absently. "But I got no time to be worryin' about him. Whole town's comin'!"

It was, indeed, a very representative gathering, with the black-eyed little Edders furiously in the van. Shelley had to grin—if tight-lipped—at sight of the waspish little cowman.

"Plainer'n long primer print!" Edders howled at him, coming up abreast of Rojo. "Yeeeooow! Headin' toward the Little Conchita, lookes like. Aimin' to git into the brush, likely!"

He was a lanky cowboy in his middle twenties.

"Gents!" he greeted them. "I'm downright pleased to meet yuh! The company I be'n in lately has be'n entirely too plumb hair-triggered an' sticky-fingered for me."

Shelley saw that the raw-boned sor-

The same was true of the theater crowds with whom he mingled in London, Paris, Berlin and even Stockholm. On these theatrical junkets his companion was often one of his sisters. He was said to be deeply devoted to his family.

BOOKS were among the other things for which Ivar Kreuger exhibited a fondness—books and languages. Besides his native tongue, he spoke English, French and German fluently and could make a pretty good showing with Russian. He liked speed, too. Fast boats and fast automobiles. He had several of each. In recent years he did much traveling by airplane after overcoming his bankers' prejudice against this mode of travel. They used to pledge him not to travel by air. They considered it too hazardous.

In the light of recent developments, it appears that what Kreuger liked best of all was power. Back of his preposterous card castle an almost pathological ambition to conquer the world can now be discerned. When the dream didn't materialize fast enough to suit him—although it was materializing at an almost incredible rate—he set up straw dummies for soldiers and went ahead with the campaign. The most amazing thing about it now, aside from the man's audacity, is the fact that the straw dummies were not detected sooner. As it happened, he came surprisingly near success before the world-wide depression overtook him. And he based his whole gargantuan program on an article so insignificant as a match—a commodity that most hotels and mercantile establishments give away with a package of cigarettes.

It was only in 1913 that Kreuger took up the making of matches and began reorganizing the match industry in Sweden. His father and grandfather were match manufacturers, but Ivar, who was regarded as a mathematical prodigy in his youth, was educated as a civil engineer. He was graduated at 20 from the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm and came at once to America, landing with a total capital of about $100. That was 1900. The first money he earned in America was $50, paid him as commission for selling real estate in Chicago. His first engineering job was with a surveying crew on the Illinois Central Railroad. Then he went to Vera Cruz, Mexico, on a bridge-building contract with 10 other American engineers. All died of the fever except Kreuger and one other. Back in the United States, he joined a New York construction firm and became an expert in structural steel. He helped plan and build several notable hotels and office buildings in New York and London, and one, the celebrated Carlton Hotel, in Johannesburg, South Africa. He took his building talents back to Sweden in 1907 and organized the construction firm of Kreuger & Toll, the firm that eventually was to become the holding company for his widespread match interests. Kreuger & Toll helped to change the looks of Stockholm, for Kreuger introduced American methods. He put up office buildings and apartments on American lines, opened up new avenues of real estate promotion, virtually revolutionized the building industry.

Ultimately he was to do the same thing with the match industry. The outbreak of the World War gave him his big opportunity. Six of the larger match plants in Sweden had combined in the Jonkoping & Vulcan Match Company, Limited, but some 18 independent factories had remained outside the fold. Kreuger rounded up these independents and combined them into a rival group, the United Swedish Match Factories, Limited. Then, because of the blockade of Germany, which had cut off Swedish importation of German chemicals, he centered his efforts upon making his match industry self-sufficient within the confines of Sweden. He found ways and means to manufacture matches without depending on Germany for raw materials. In this he gained an enormous advantage over the Jonkoping-Vulcan group and by 1917 had them beaten into submission. In that year he merged the two groups into the Swedish Match Company, Limited. It gave him complete control of the industry in Sweden.

With the home industry secure, he borrowed $12,000,000 and ventured into foreign fields. He made his first objective countries like Belgium, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and India, where his own company was meeting with the heaviest competition.

THIS competition he throttled by assimilating it. He liked the branch factory policy. It enabled him to evade tariff restrictions. It enabled him to put his products on the market with the label, "Made in Germany" for Germans and "Made in Britain" for the British.

The year 1923 was his biggest year of expansion. In that year alone he organized the British Match Corporation, entered into a merger with the largest Japanese match company, which gave him control of the industry in Japan, and organized the International Match Corporation in America. This company took over the bulk of the Swedish Match Company's foreign assets, interests and financing. It not only began to produce matches; it became a reservoir of capital that flowed to other countries. It supplied the $75,000,000 loan Kreuger made to France in 1927.

These loans to foreign governments constituted possibly the most spectacular of all his amazing operations. In all, they totaled more than $300,000,000. He furnished $125,000,000 to the German Government in 1929, and, at various times, there were loans of $36,000,000 to Hungary and smaller sums to Poland, Peru, Esthonia, Latvia, Greece, Rumania and Ecuador. In each case, Kreuger asked—and was granted—an outright match monopoly or special trade privileges which amounted to the same thing.

He was in control of the match industry of the entire world outside of Russia, when the economic crisis forced down his securities and ruined his expectations. In his plan for world-wide industrial empire he had made no allowances for a world-wide depression.

HOW long he might have concealed the real nature of his operations but for the depression is problematical. As long as two years ago many of his countrymen were beginning to shake their heads about Kreuger. His methods were too high-powered. It was not a Swedes' way of doing things. But there was no tangible evidence that all was not right with his companies or his character until the morning of March 12, when a pistol shot put an end to the colossal Kreuger legend.

Marvels of Movie Make-Up

what in the world happened to Lewis Stone to put his classical features all out of kelter!

One of the most trying tasks confronting the makeup men is that of changing the appearance of a young woman so that she will look old and even wrinkled, on the screen. It is not difficult to make dark circles beneath the eyes or to cause cheeks to seem sunken and hollow. Grease-paint shading will do that. But to get an "old-woman look" into the features of a girl of 18 or 19 or 20 requires time and skill. There is only one way in which it can be done—painting on each wrinkle.

At the Warner Brothers-First National studio recently, Purc Westmore, the makeup chief, put in hours experimenting upon the face of beautiful Mae Madison, a featured player, in preparation for making up another actress.

Westmore made up one side of Miss Madison's face. And then the makeup artist paused to view the results.

Then he completed the other half and looked into the features of a careworn, tired-looking creature, but one who still "had the devil in her eyes."

One of the most eerie of the "horror pictures" was "Dracula," in which Bela Lugosi, Hungarian actor, played the title role. And, strangely, it was more the "atmosphere" surrounding the star than his individual appearance that gave him his forbidding look.

Lugosi's makeup for this picture consisted of little more than a black cloak and "lines" painted into his face. He wore his own hair, roached back from the forehead. But since the picture was filled with uncanny mystery, the entire settings were built accordingly. There were fog-enshrouded mountain passes, wolves howling in the night, a storm at sea and a mysterious, crumbling castle, where much of the action took place.

FOR background purposes, Universal Pictures sent men to caves in Nevada, where they captured and brought to the studio 50 bats. In a darkened stairway on the "set," property men built a great spider web, 18 feet in diameter. They spread other cobwebs all over the place. After long experimenting, it had been found that rubber cement, blown from a rotary "gun," electrically operated, would throw out a filmy gauze which quickly hardened. Merely by training the "gun" on a desired spot, a "cobweb" would form within a few seconds, with strength and elasticity to its body. "Dracula" used pounds of cobwebs, which, in reality, were nothing more than this rubber cement. But they gave the necessary "atmosphere," in which Lugosi, as the vampire, could work.

It is said that the success of many "horror pictures" would have been converted into failures had it not been for the magic of the studio make-up men.

Empty Sixes

rel he rode was a 2-Bar-Cross animal. He asked the cowboy his name and nodded when the cowboy said, "Ralls." This, then, was the cowboy Bandy Box had gathered in for disturbing the peace.

"Where'd yuh figger, in the jailbustin' an' bank robbin'?" he demanded bluntly.

"I figgered too much like a li'l slickear to suit me." Ralls shrugged grimly. "Bandy put us all into the bullpen to go to co't tomorrow mornin'. But two o' them gunies had guns in their boots. They tolled Bandy an' Pink O'Day up to the bars—to read a paper, one fella says—an' killed 'em both.

"Got the keys an' took me along so's I couldn't give no alarm. Herded me over to the bank, too."

Shelley shook his head.

"Headin' for the Right Fork o' the Little Conchita," Ralls nodded.

"Somebody else comin'," Shelley frowned. "Ain't that ol' Don Bernardo Baco, Edders?"

"Something is wrong?" he inquired in Spanish, and clucked amazedly when he was told. "But —But, my friend, Don Shelley! No robbers have come this way!"

"You saw nothing of any bunch of eight or nine, riding hard?" Shelley asked, frowning. He trusted the old man's head.

"Oh, yes! But not robbers. That is, not bank robbers! I saw the vaqueros of the Slash-E tear past where I sat my mule in a thicket. And—yes, this is their trail you follow."

"It seems to me, senor, that the time of their leaving would mean nothing," Don Bernardo objected courteously. "For whatever time they left, they must leave a trail."

EDDERS suddenly made a rasping sound and jumped from his horse. He picked up something.

"Somethin's funny! Yere's my watch them hairpins took off'n me! Somebody out o' that gang has been ridin' this trail—an' I don't care how many Don Bernardo never see!"

Ralls nodded. Shelley lifted his hand to quiet a muttering that had begun in the body of the posse. He said that it was best to go back to town and look around for the trail.

One of the posse spoke up:

"We figger this boy was lyin'. That he was mixed into the bank robbin'. An' we aim to make our belief plumb bindin' with a good manila lass-rope—an' the proper kind o' knot!"

"Cut it out!" Shelley counseled. "This fella's goin' to jail, an' if the's any good reason we can rake up to put him in the pen, that'll be done."

They rode back to town. Dusk fell before they reached it.

They poured down the street to the bank and split, half of the posse going on and around the far corner, the remainder whirling at the near corner.

"What is it?" he asked. "Another robbery?"

"Same bunch! Do'no what they figgered they'd collect this trip. We snatched up the bank Winchesters an' let 'em have it.

"Ralls hightailed!" Edders said curtly, almost in his ear.

"Ne' mind. We'll gether him later, if we want him."

They spread out, fan-wise, to breast the tumbled 'dobes of the deserted town. Almost instantly, it seemed, a line of fire jumped along a low wall no more than 40 yards ahead of them.

"Off yo' hawses!" Shelley yelled.

Shelley grunted to men about him. The end of the posse's line went forward while the center kept up a hot fire. The punchers and townsmen pushed the ends of their line forward to make a complete circle.

Once in the ruins it was hard to keep a close-knit and even line. Shelley stopped to peer around the corner of an old wall.

HE SAW nothing and started across to the next shell. And a huge figure materialized from behind a ruined wall to the left. They saw each other at about the same instant, Shelley and Sonora Till.

Each had a rifle in his hands. Each jerked the muzzle about. Both missed.

Shelley heard his firing pin click on empty barrel as he tried to fire his second shot. Sonora's bullet struck a corner of the 'dobe. Shelley reached for his Colt. The hammer went back and dropped.

Sonora hurled himself sidewise and behind the wall. Three or four men began firing from the same place. Shelley was joined by others of his side.

Shelley grinned to himself. In the brightening moonlight, he saw no way on earth that the gang could get away.

A half-hour went by; stretched to three-quarters. Shelley lifted his voice in a fierce yell and they all jumped up and raced toward the wall and vaulted over it.

There, in the moonlight, were three men—two Mexicans and Red Ralls. Ralls was the only one who seemed to have life in him. . . .

"Where's Sonora? Where's the rest o' the bunch?"

Halls beckoned to Shelley to bend lower.

"Yuh couldn't — quite — git the'!" He grinned. "They be'n gone—a hour. I told Sonora—we'd hold you-all!"

Shelley glared at the men who had been on that far side of the battle.

"Listen, Shelley!" a stubby, brindle-headed youth grunted soothingly. "Y' know me, Ginger Toolen. Well, I'm tellin' y' I was out on that side, an' they used to say in the Rangers, I had good ears. Well, I'm tellin' y' we rounded up this spot dam' nigh elbow-to-elbow. An' nobody come toward us, a-tall!"

"It's not their fault, Sergeant," a white-haired man put in. He had just pushed through the group to look down at the three men on the ground. "There's an old passage under the ruin of this old mission. That's why Till picked this spot for a hideout, today. They slid into a hole and went right under your line.

"I'm Dr. Pedersen. They've held me prisoner all afternoon. But when they went to the bank the second time, they left me in the charge of that Mexican there. I slammed him in the face with a brick and went over the wall like a jackrabbit. Got clean away."

"Toolen," said Shelley to the ex-Ranger, "yuh know this country? Bueno! Now where'd they be likeliest to go?"

"Straight for the Mapledros an' be damned to who follers 'em!" Ginger Toolen said promptly. "Y' see, Shelley, oncet they git into them Windles, they can cut an' walk rocks till we never would know which-a-way was away!"

He and Ginger Toolen and Dr. Pedersen, with Al Jones and the other two stockholders, brought up the procession's rear.

"Oh, I'm daft!" Pedersen cried, and smacked his hand upon his thigh. "And, Al Jones, you're as daft as I! You can't be short more than a couple of thousands! For they didn't pick up the right sack. Sonora noticed it. Then"——

"He sent Barney to get the right sack!" Shelley snapped. "Al, yo' money must be the' yet!"

"Only it ain't," Al Jones said flatly. "We checked up. The's nigh onto forty thousand shy."

"Wait a minute!" said Shelley. "Oh, Edders. Lend us a hand, will yuh?"

Edders came back to them.

"Edders," said Shelley, "d' yuh mind lettin' me take that sack o' tobacco bags yuh been packin' all afternoon. The sack that's been makin' yuh look so pot-bellied?"

"Huh?" grunted Edders.

Shelley had his hand out.

"Yuh see, Edders," he drawled —taking a long shot, "I been sort o' wonderin' about yuh, quite a spell. Yuh tolled us off on that trail o' yo' own boys—that was told to make trail from the spot it started from.

"Then, when yuh see we was ready to come back to town an' git after yo' friends once more—in real earnest, yuh dropped yo' never-was-stole watch in the trail an' found it right away.

"An' me, askin' yuh once today what yuh was packin' in yo' shirt. An' yuh saying so calm an' easy 't was a lot o' smokin' tobacco. Yuh picked up the right sack when yuh come out into the bank, an' Al here turned his back on yuh a minute."

He was a wolf, that little man. Now he whipped a pistol from its holster and threw up at Shelley. Shelley jerked his gun and shot Edders twice.

He stood looking down at him for an instant. Then he stooped.

"Yo' money, Al," he said quietly, straightening.

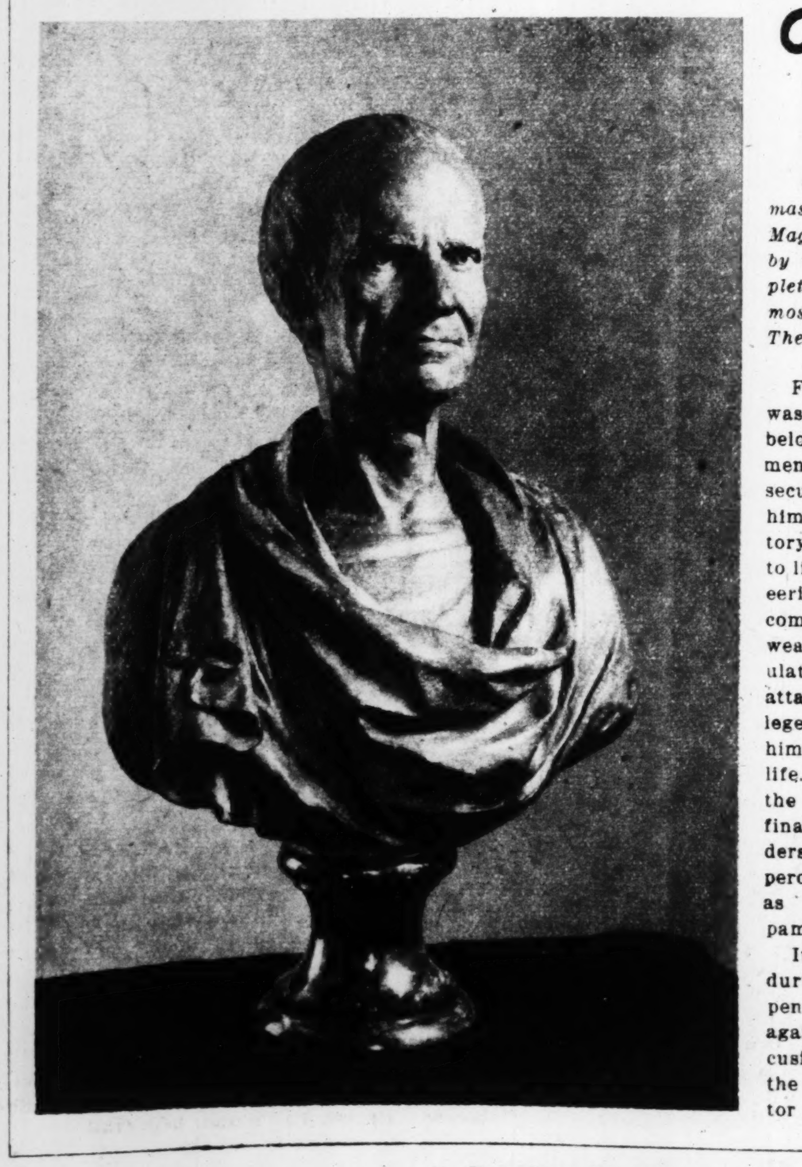
BUST OF VOLTAIRE

The Thirty-Second of a Series of Art Objects Being Given a Special Showing at the St. Louis Art Museum.



THIS bust of Voltaire is the thirty-second in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of the bust follows:

Francois Marie Arouet, later called Voltaire, was born in Paris in 1694, the son of a notary belonging to a Parisian family of yeoman tradesmen. His godfather, the abbe de Chateauneuf, secured him a good education and introduced him to the ways of society, but after some desultory reading for law, Voltaire devoted himself to literature, especially the drama and pamphleteering. During his early years he was an odd combination of sycophant and satirist, but as his wealth increased owing to shrewd business speculation his pen was used more and more to attack the "system of the Church and Privilege," an activity which compelled him to absent himself from France during a large part of his life. He paid extensive visits to England and the Court of Frederick the Great of Prussia, but finally, in 1758, settled in Ferney, on the borders of Switzerland, where he conducted a prosperous manufacturing enterprise and lorded it as the foremost dramatist, literateur and pamphleteer of Europe.

It should be said, however, that especially during his later years the enormous power of his pen was used in the support of the oppressed as against special privilege and that his work, by focusing the resentment of the intellectuals against the stupidities of the times, was a dominant factor in bringing on the French Revolution.

The terra cotta bust portrait, acquired about a year ago by the City Art Museum, is undoubtedly from the hand of Jean-Baptiste Pigalle, the most eminent French sculptor of the generation preceding Houdon. It is probably derived from a sketch from life which Pigalle made in Ferney in 1770, eight years before Voltaire's death, when the philosopher was 76 years old. This sketch was the basis for the life-size statue of Voltaire which is now in the Institut de France but which is relatively little known owing to the naive pseudo-classic fashion of the time which demanded a treatment in the nude distasteful to succeeding generations. Voltaire's features are generally known from the statue by Houdon, which depicts him as a rather benign if much emaciated patriarch.

SINCE the Houdon portrait resulted from studies made not long before Voltaire's death, the eight years intervening would account for the somewhat more youthful and vigorous quality of the Pigalle version. Little benignty is evidenced here. The head is thin even to emaciation, but the eyes, under the heavy brows, burn with an uncanny concentration of the energy reinforced by the sardonic set of the lips. This surely is more true to the vitriolic squire of Ferney, whose pen made Kings tremble.

The bust has also considerable importance, since, as far as is ascertainable, only one other portrait, that of Madame de Pompadour, by Pigalle, exists in this country, an extremely small representation for one of the greatest sculptors of eighteenth century France. Some time during its later years the bust suffered an accident which broke the head at the neck and damaged the end of the nose. Necessary restorations were fortunately a simple matter, and except for one or two other minor scars the statue is in its original condition. Its present color was probably produced by a coat of pigment.

TOY TALKIES
by Walter Quermann

PRINCE NUBE AND HIS CUB CAPERS

This is a game that can be played by any child. All that is needed are scissors, paste and some cardboard. The directions for playing "Toy Talkies" are given at the bottom of the game.

THE PLAYERS

PRINCE NUBE—Who wanted to play king.

SPOTS—Prince Nube's prime minister.

RIP RHINO and JOE GNU—A pair of deserters.

THE PLAY BEGINS

RIP RHINO—Where is Prince Nube?

SPOTS—He has gone home to get his crown and mane; he wants to play king.

JOE GNU—Play king? How do you play it?

SPOTS—It is a game Prince Nube thought of while watching his father, King Leo. Prince will be king and we will be his court. One of us will be prime minister, another will be a general and Baby Bab can be the court fool. Ha-ha.

BABY BAB—I won't be the court fool. If I can't be the prime minster I won't play.

SPOTS—What? You be prime minister? Who ever heard of a baboon being prime minister?

BABY BAB—All right, I won't play. (Leaves stage.)

SPOTS—Let him go, he is just a spoiled baby. We didn't want him to play, anyway. (Prince Nube enters wearing his crown and mane.)

SPOTS—Baby Bab won't play. He was mad because he couldn't be prime minister.

PRINCE NUBE—He's a big baby. We can play without him.

RIP RHINO—How will we play this game?

PRINCE NUBE—I'll be the king. Spots will be prime minister, Rip will be a general and Joe will be an admiral.

SPOTS— All right, Your Majesty, let's start.

PRINCE NUBE—(Very dignified.) Prime Minister Spots, have we any business today?

SPOTS—None that I know of Your Majesty. (Then.) Say, let's make Baby Bab our prisoner.

PRINCE NUBE—That's a good idea. General Rip and Admiral Joe, capture Baby Bab and bring him here.

RIP RHINO and JOE GNU—Yes, Your Majesty. (They leave.)

SPOTS—Say, that's going to be great. You can make him be your fool. Ha-ha.

PRINCE NUBE—Or we can make him be our slave. (Rip Rhino and Joe Gnu enter followed by Baby Bab wearing a crown and mane.)

SPOTS—Well, look at that.

BABY BAB—I'm a king. I made Rip my prime minister and Joe Gnu my prince.

PRINCE NUBE—(Disgusted.) I'm going home. (He leaves.)

SPOTS—Say, Joe and Rip, why did you join Bab's court? We had a fine court.

RIP—A prime minister is better than a general.

JOE—And a prince is more than an admiral.

BABY BAB—Come on, court. (Baby Bab, Rip Rhino and Joe Gnu leave.)

SPOTS—When Prince Nube comes we will play without them. (Prince Nube enters without his crown and mane.)

SPOTS—Aren't we going to play any more?

PRINCE NUBE—Not that game. No one is going to make a monkey out of me.

DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

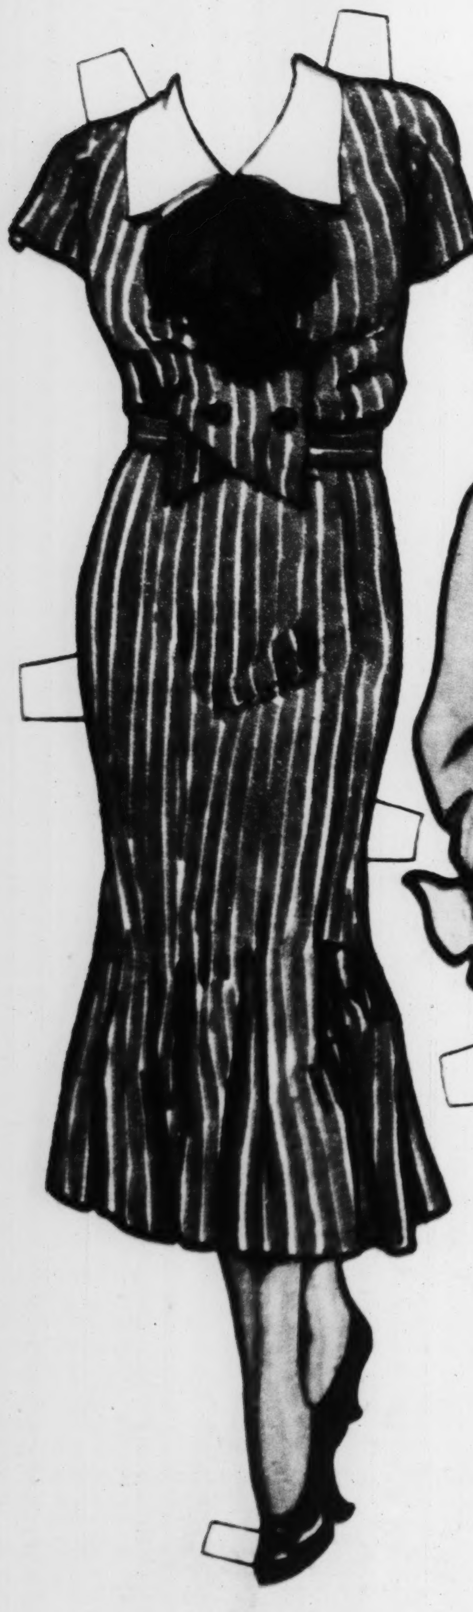
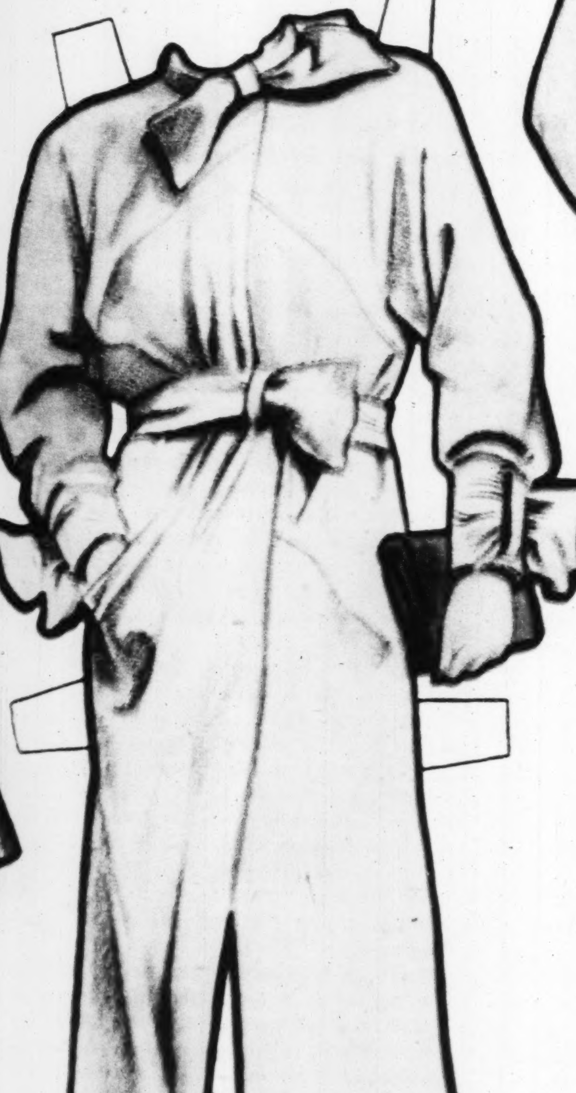
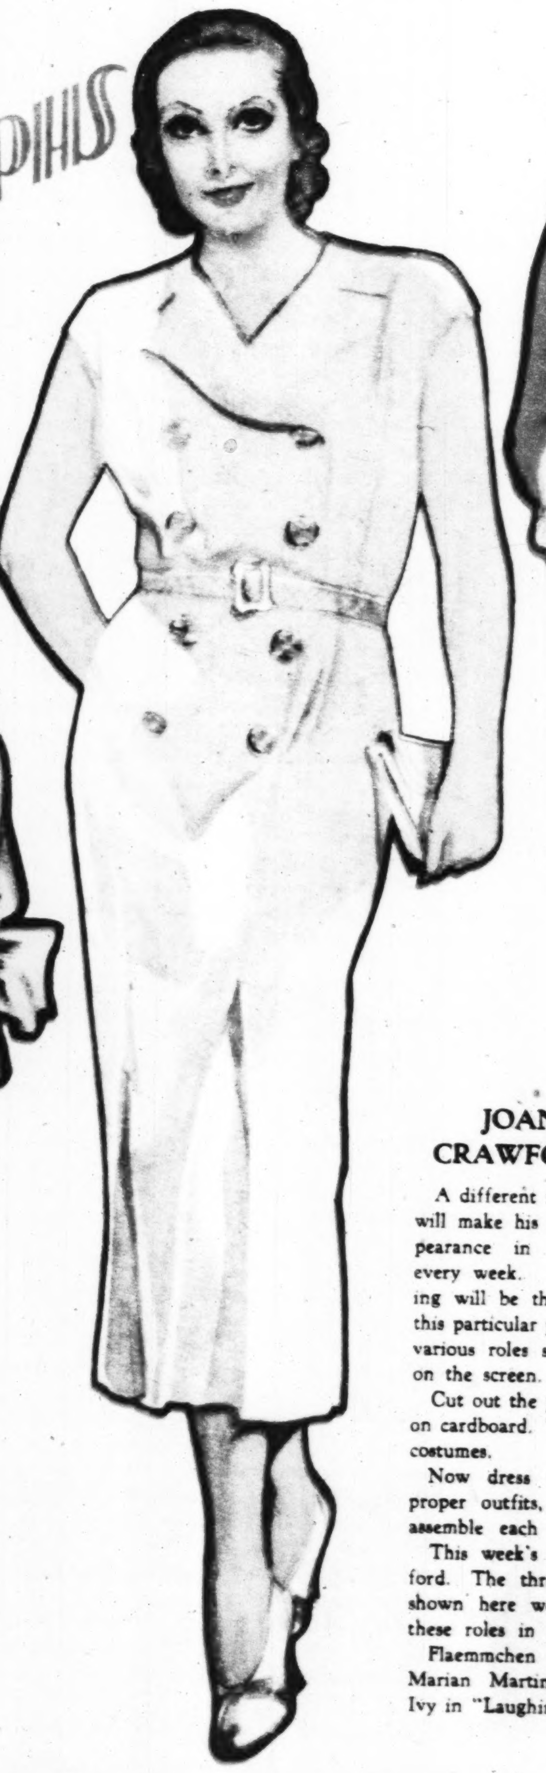
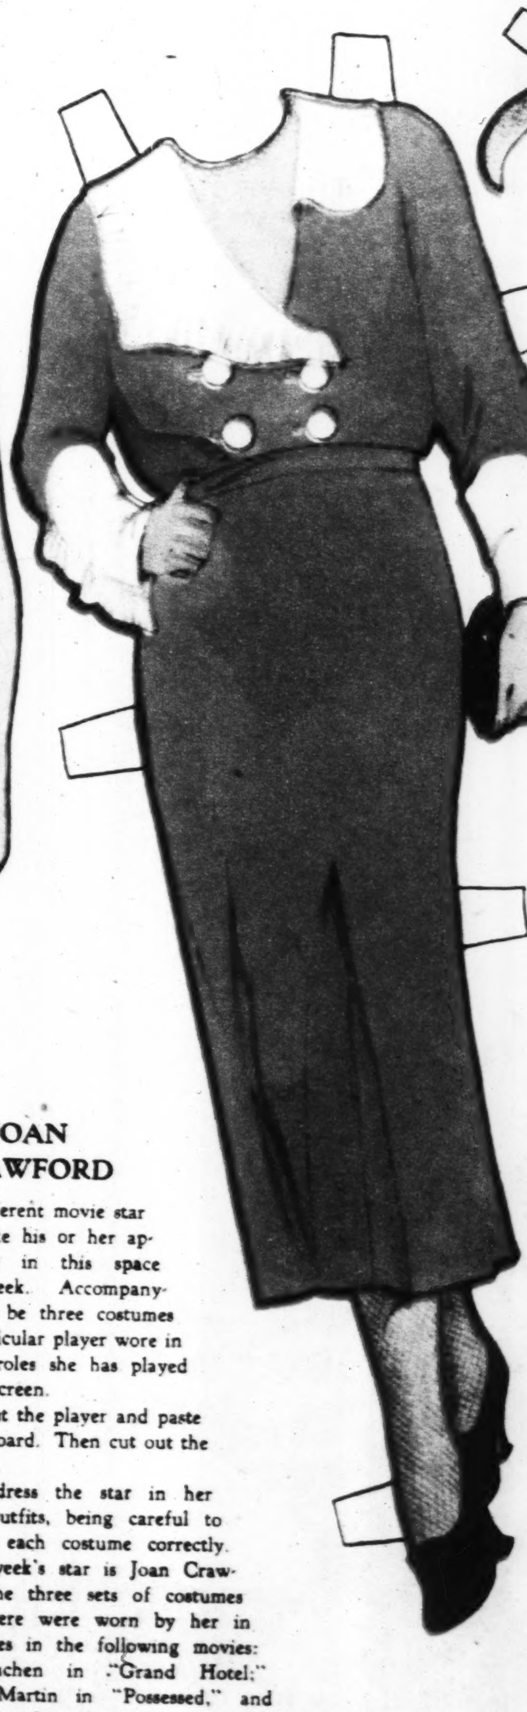
Next week: Hans Kitten and the Stork.

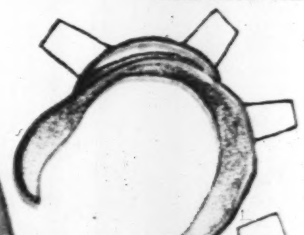
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS

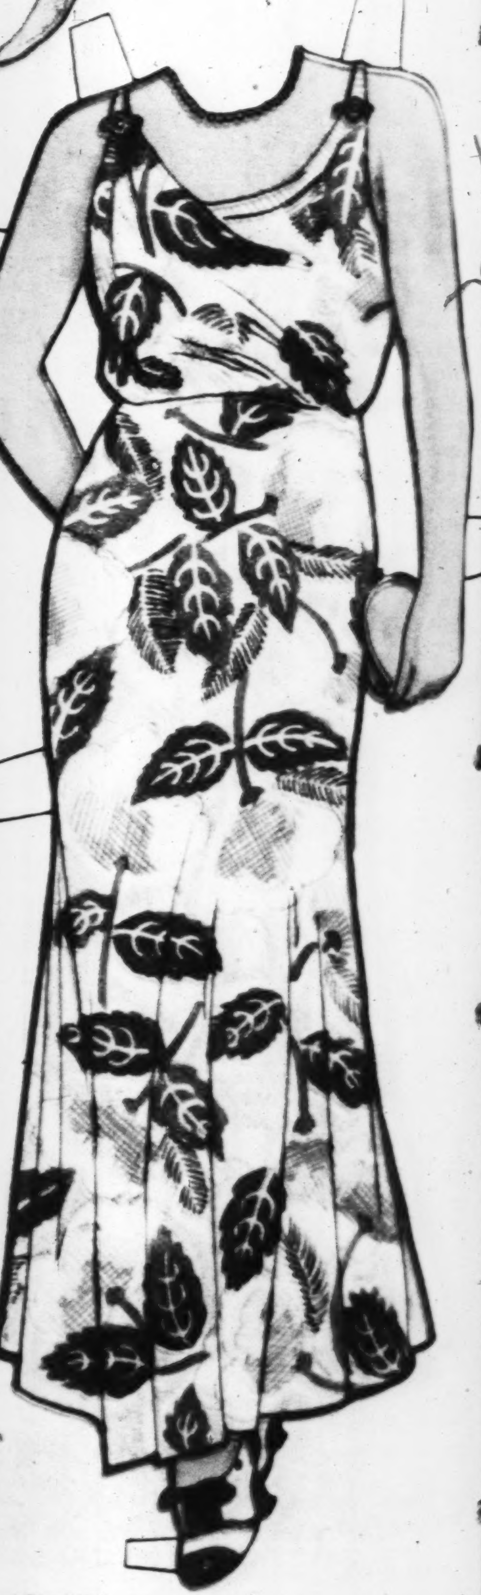












JOAN CRAWFORD

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles she has played on the screen.

Next week: Robert Montgomery.

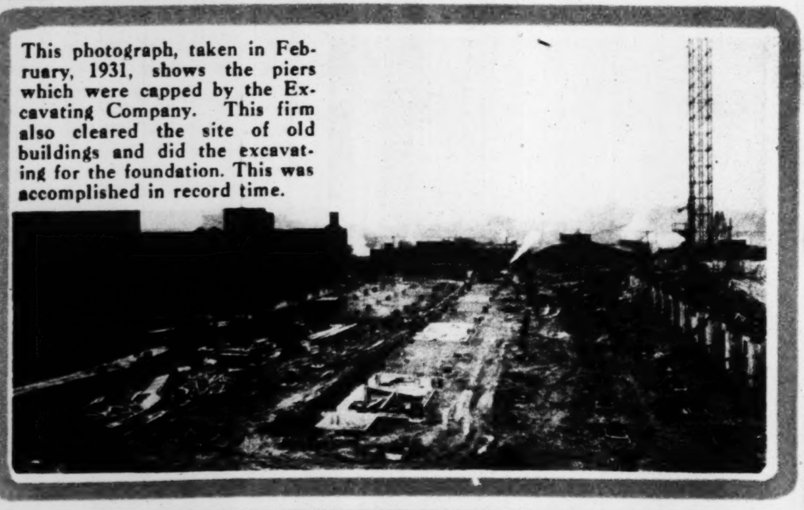
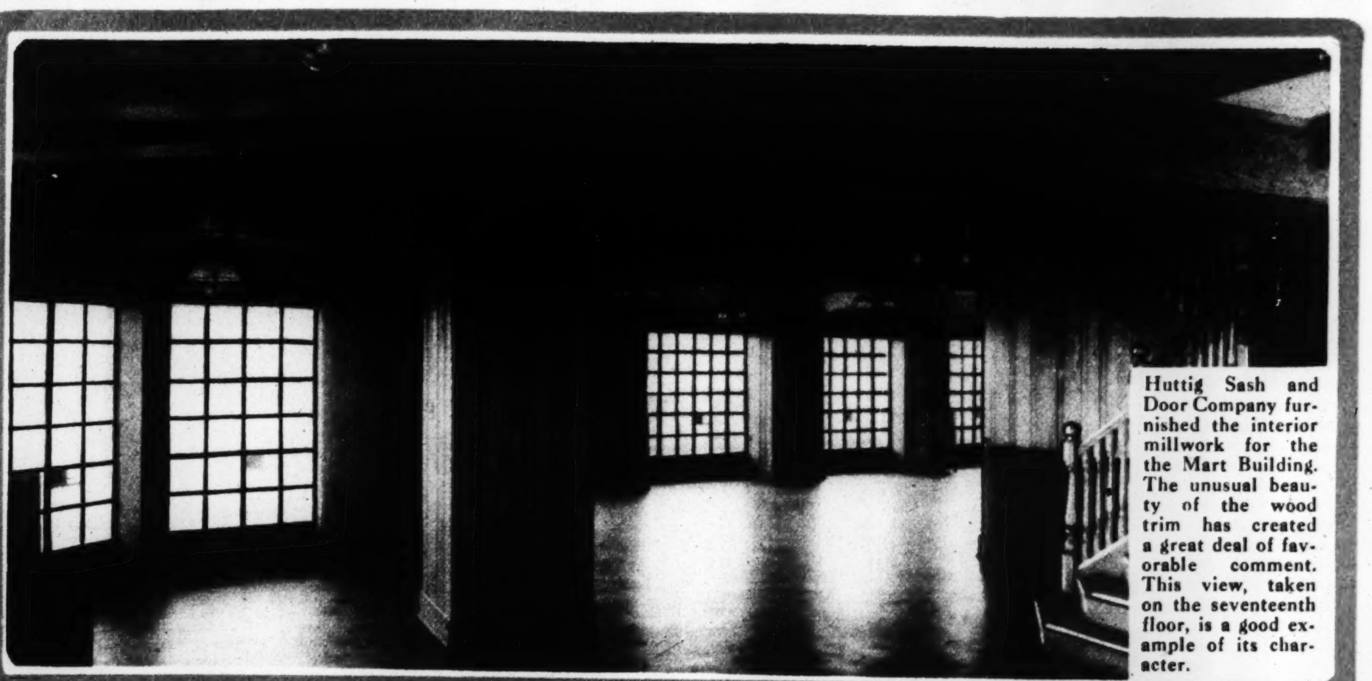
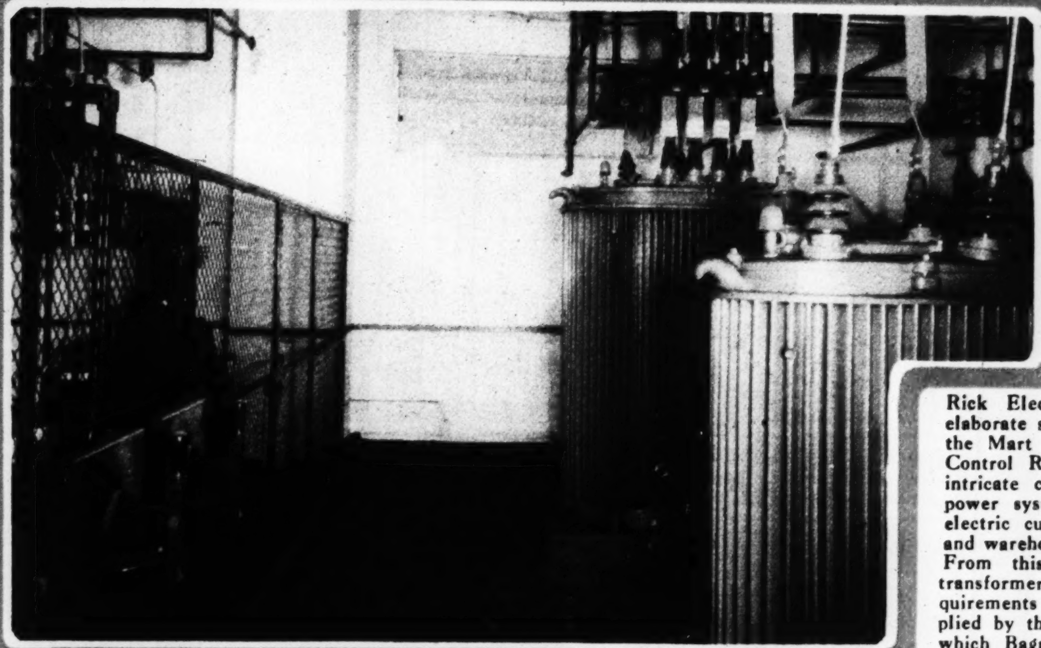
This photograph, taken in February, 1931, shows the piers which were capped by the Excavating Company. This firm also cleared the site of old buildings and did the excavating for the foundation. This was accomplished in record time.



The Trinidad Asphalt Mfg. Company applied the Quality Roof for the New St. Louis Mart Building.



Huttig Sash and Door Company furnished the interior millwork for the the Mart Building. The unusual beauty of the wood trim has created a great deal of favorable comment. This view, taken on the seventeenth floor, is a good example of its character.



FRED A. RICK.

Rick Electric Company installed the elaborate system of electrical wiring for the Mart Building. This view of the Control Room gives some idea of the intricate character of the lighting and power system necessary to handle the electric current for this modern office and warehouse building.

From this simplified arrangement of transformers the intricate electrical requirements of the Mart Building are supplied by the Union Electric stystem, of which Bagnell Dam is a new and important part.

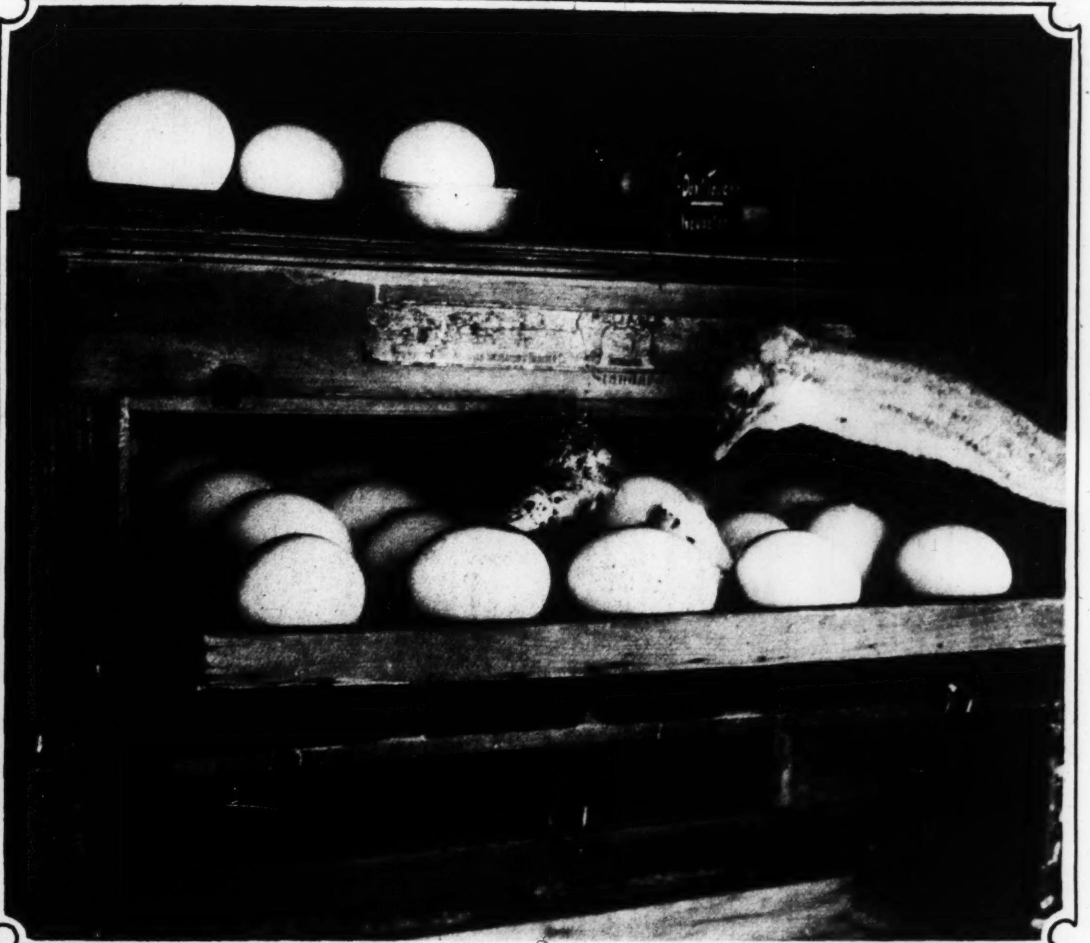
SWIMMER AND HER MEDALS AND CUPS—Miss Lisa Lindstorm, 19 years old, has won about everything they have to offer for prizes in New York. This picture was made just before she started for the Olympic tryouts in California.

DAUGHTER OF FAMOUS AUTHOR—Miss Gwen Le Gallienne, sister of Eva Le Gallienne, photographed in Paris at work on a roof top for a studio. Her father is Richard Le Gallienne.



A PUZZLED MOTHER OSTRICH—Chilly weather this spring prompted the manager of Los Angeles ostrich farm to take matters in his own hand, so some of the eggs were placed in an incubator. Just before this picture was made a baby chick hopped out of its shell, much to the surprise of the older bird.

How To

Decrease A Child's Nervousness 30% In Two Weeks

..A Way That Adds A Pound A Week In Weight, Too

THE DYNAMOMETER TEST

Tests in New York Schools Show a Remarkable Way to Build Up the Child Who Is Nervous, "Under Par"

An Eastern university scientist has found a way, by giving a certain food concentrate, to diminish nervousness as much as 30% in 2 weeks!

In a series of recent tests 85% of all nervous, under-par children responded almost immediately when this food concentrate was given.

Children who had previously been "high strung" became noticeably more calm. They acquired new energy, new stamina. And their mental alertness increased to a marked degree.

In some cases, nervousness—as measured by the Olson-University of Minnesota checking system—was reduced as much as 18% in a single week!

These remarkable results with nervous children are important to mothers of underweight children too. For child specialists have long observed that nervousness and underweight go hand in hand. And the food concentrate used with such success on these nervous children has long been known and used for its power to build up weight as much as a pound a week or more—as well as to combat nervousness.

Thus, when a child is given this food concentrate, he benefits two ways. For it breaks up the "vicious circle" which nervousness and underweight always tend to create.

What It Is

The name of this food concentrate is Ovaltine. Discovered in Switzerland, it has already been approved by 20,000 doctors. You simply give it mixed with milk, and children love its taste.

Ovaltine combats nervousness by supplying important calcium to the system, under the most favorable conditions to promote calcium metabolism and provide proper calcium balance in the blood. Phosphorus—a vital element of nerve and brain tissue—is supplied too. A cup of Ovaltine, in fact, provides, in easily digested and rapidly assimilated form, the food elements often lacking in the child's daily diet, but which are absolutely necessary for building nerve, brain and muscle tissues.

Quicker Digestion—Increased Nourishment

Ovaltine also contains in high proportion a remarkable food property called "diastase"—the starch-digestant. Ovaltine contains so much of this element that it digests 4 to 5 times its own weight of the starch content of other foods a child eats. And the diet of the average child contains about 60% of starchy foods.

This means that Ovaltine not only aids a child's digestion, but helps to speed up the process and empty the stomach sooner. This makes a child hungry. For hunger is a sensation caused by the walls of an empty stomach drawing together.

When your child drinks Ovaltine, he not only inclines to eat more of such healthful foods as vegetables, oatmeal and bread, but because of better digestion, can get more nourishment out of every mouthful he takes.

See For Yourself

Discount, if you wish, the results ascribed to Ovaltine in the remarkable tests above. Disregard the fact that Ovaltine is approved by over 20,000 physicians and child specialists. But for the sake of your child, try it.

Results will surprise you. Note the almost immediate difference in weight—in nerve poise—and in strength. Note, too, the definite increase in appetite—the eagerness to eat.

Give Ovaltine at breakfast always. At meals and as frequently as you wish between meals. You can get Ovaltine at any drug or grocery store. It is economical to serve. It is all food concentrate. You add your own sugar to taste when you mix it. So do not be misled if you are offered a sweet-tasting "sugar mixture" substitute.

NOTE: Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. During the World War, it was made a standard ration for rebuilding invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers. It is also highly recommended by physicians for sleeplessness, for nursing mothers, convalescents and the aged.

SUNDAY MORNING THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH MAY 8, 1932

HERO WORSHIP—Jack Sharkey, heavyweight challenger, photographed as he went to visit the site of the new Madison Square Garden stadium on Long Island, where he will meet Max Schmeling, the champion, in June.

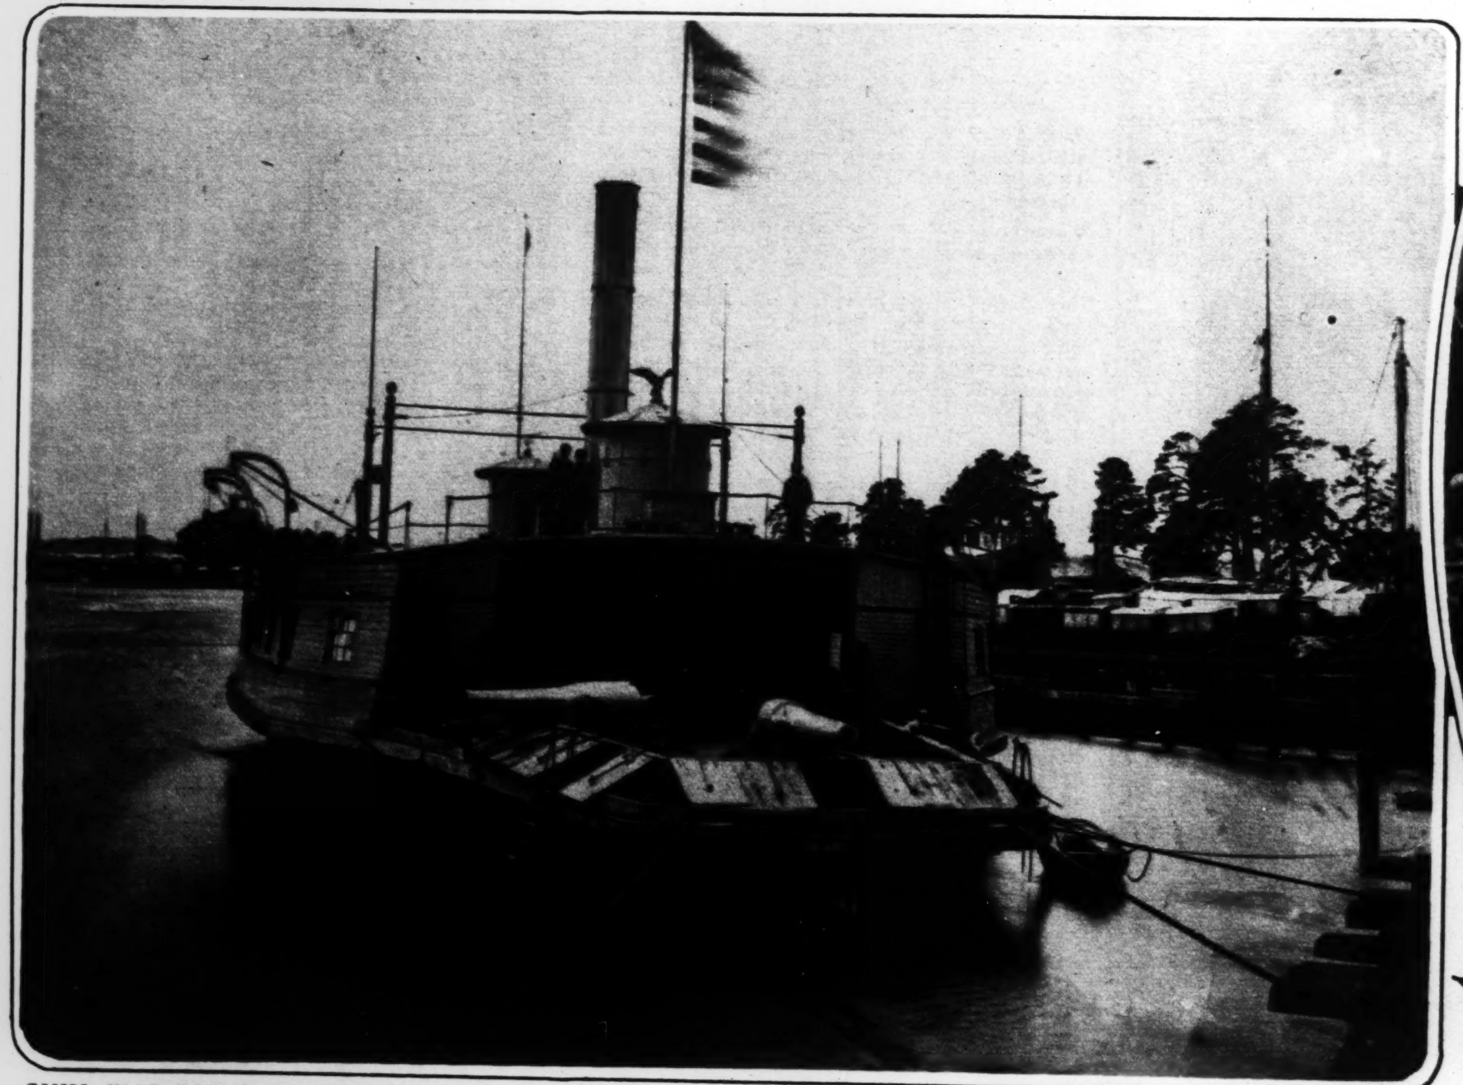
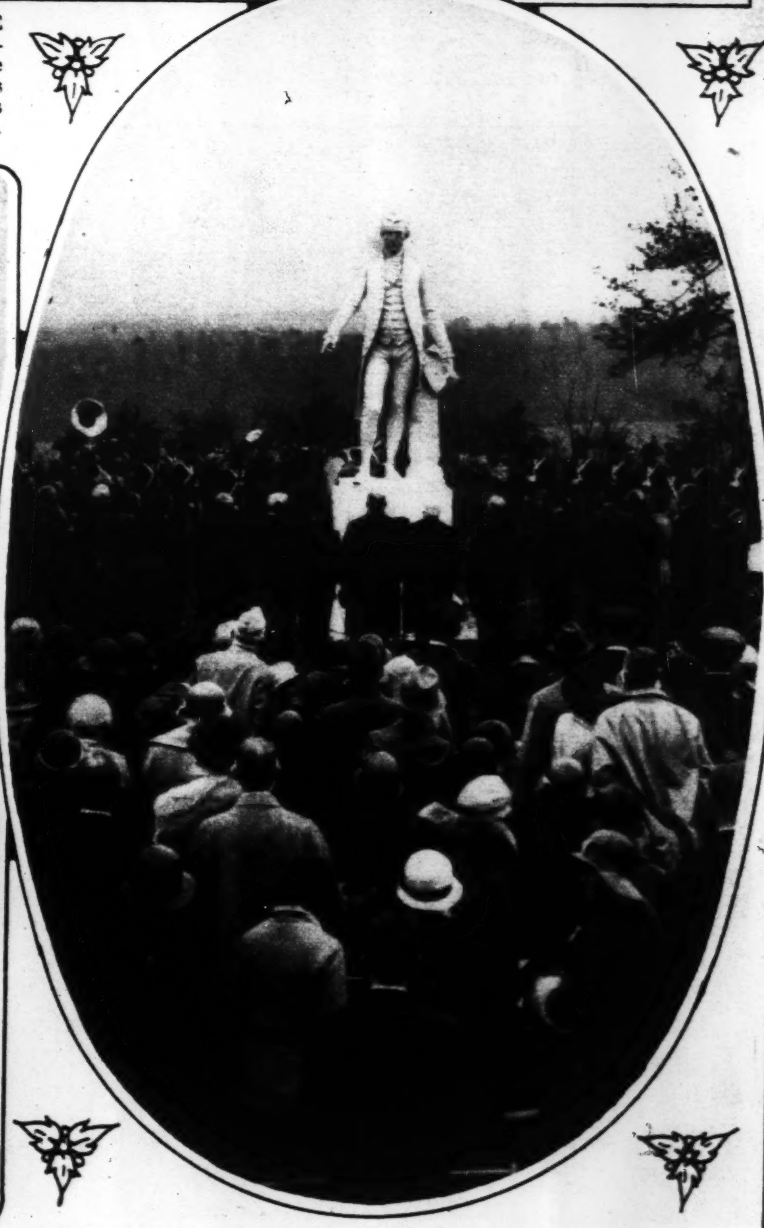
Joseph Henry's
Yale Magnet
Capacity 2063 lbs
Made in 1831

AN HISTORIC ELECTRIC MAGNET—Scientists, meeting in Washington, inspecting apparatus made by Joseph Henry, first secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, from whose experiments came the foundation for telegraph instruments and electric motors. This magnet was made in 1831 and had a capacity of 2063 pounds. Those in the picture are Dr. Simon Flexner, W. W. Campbell, president of the National Academy of Sciences, and Prof. Wilder D. Bancroft of Cornell.

AUSTRALIA DEDICATES A NEW BRIDGE—Display of electric lights and fireworks in Sydney, to celebrate opening of great steel structure which links the two shores of the harbor. It is 172 feet above the water, and the main arch is 1650 feet long. The bridge cost about $45,000,000.



CIVIL WAR SCENE OF MODERN IMPORT—One of the many photographs made by Matthew B. Brady, during the conflict between Northern and Southern States, recently on exhibition at the Ayer Galleries, Philadelphia. It shows a gunboat, probably on the Mississippi, with two smooth bore cannon. Such a gunboat did not cost more than a few thousand dollars in those days—twenty, at most. Now we build ships for the navy costing anywhere from $5,000,000 to $45,000,000 each.



AUTHOR OF MONROE DOCTRINE IS HONORED—Statue of the fifth President of the United States, James Monroe, unveiled at Ash Lawn, near Richmond, by the Governors of 24 states, who held their national convention this year in the Virginian capital. Monroe was also Governor of Virginia from 1799 to 1802.

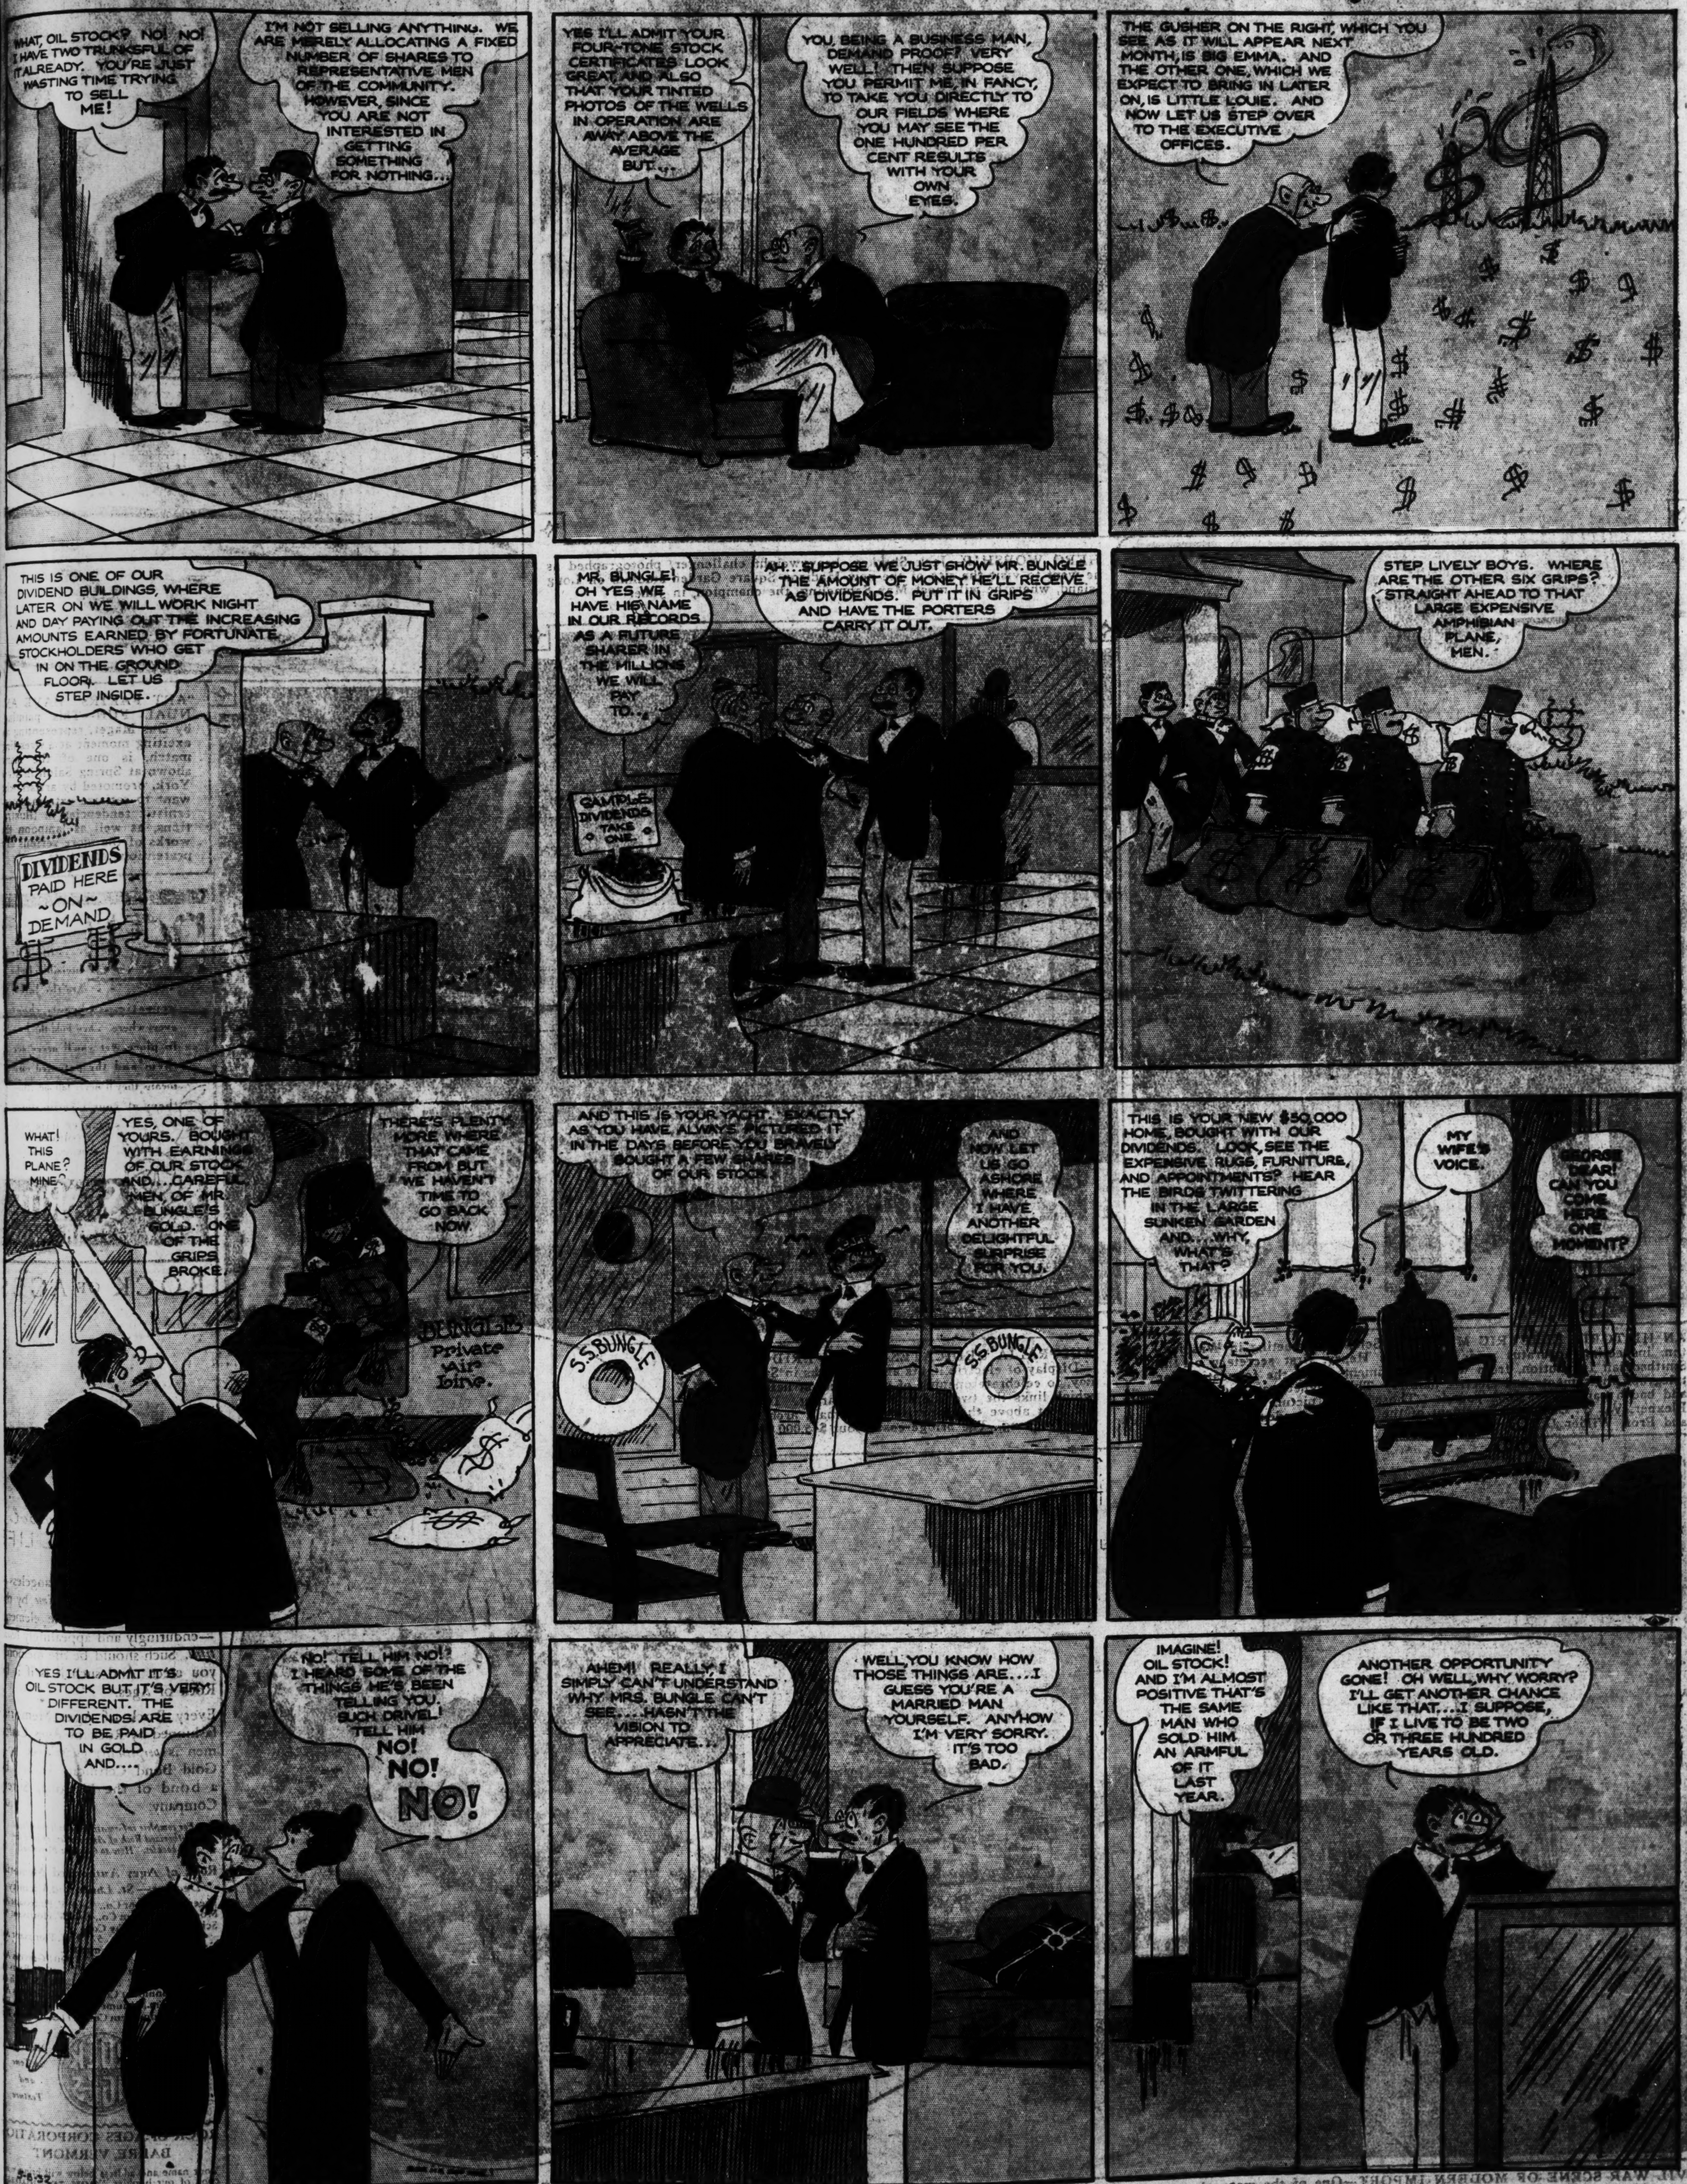
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

This comic appears every day in the daily Post-Dispatch

By H. J. TUTHILL



WHAT, OIL STOCK? NO! NO! I HAVE TWO TRUNKSFUL OF IT ALREADY. YOU'RE JUST WASTING TIME TRYING TO SELL ME!
I'M NOT SELLING ANYTHING. WE ARE MERELY ALLOCATING A FIXED NUMBER OF SHARES TO REPRESENTATIVE MEN OF THE COMMUNITY. HOWEVER, SINCE YOU ARE NOT INTERESTED IN GETTING SOMETHING FOR NOTHING...
YES I'LL ADMIT YOUR FOUR-TONE STOCK CERTIFICATES LOOK GREAT AND ALSO THAT YOUR TINTED PHOTOS OF THE WELLS IN OPERATION ARE AWAY ABOVE THE AVERAGE BUT....
YOU, BEING A BUSINESS MAN, DEMAND PROOF? VERY WELL! THEN SUPPOSE YOU PERMIT ME, IN FANCY, TO TAKE YOU DIRECTLY TO OUR FIELDS WHERE YOU MAY SEE THE ONE HUNDRED PER CENT RESULTS WITH YOUR OWN EYES.
THE GUSHER ON THE RIGHT, WHICH YOU SEE AS IT WILL APPEAR NEXT MONTH, IS BIG EMMA. AND THE OTHER ONE, WHICH WE EXPECT TO BRING IN LATER ON, IS LITTLE LOUIE. AND NOW LET US STEP OVER TO THE EXECUTIVE OFFICES.
THIS IS ONE OF OUR DIVIDEND BUILDINGS, WHERE LATER ON WE WILL WORK NIGHT AND DAY PAYING OUT THE INCREASING AMOUNTS EARNED BY FORTUNATE STOCKHOLDERS WHO GET IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR. LET US STEP INSIDE.
DIVIDENDS PAID HERE ~ON~ DEMAND
MR. BUNGLE! OH YES WE HAVE HIS NAME IN OUR RECORDS AS A FUTURE SHARER IN THE MILLIONS WE WILL PAY TO...
AH...SUPPOSE WE JUST SHOW MR. BUNGLE THE AMOUNT OF MONEY HE'LL RECEIVE AS DIVIDENDS. PUT IT IN GRIPS AND HAVE THE PORTERS CARRY IT OUT.
SAMPLE DIVIDENDS TAKE ONE
STEP LIVELY BOYS. WHERE ARE THE OTHER SIX GRIPS? STRAIGHT AHEAD TO THAT LARGE EXPENSIVE AMPHIBIAN PLANE, MEN.
WHAT! THIS PLANE? MINE?
THERE'S PLENTY MORE WHERE THAT CAME FROM BUT WE HAVEN'T TIME TO GO BACK NOW.
BUNGLE Private Air Line.
AND THIS IS YOUR YACHT. EXACTLY AS YOU HAVE ALWAYS PICTURED IT IN THE DAYS BEFORE YOU BRAVELY BOUGHT A FEW SHARES OF OUR STOCK.
AND NOW LET US GO ASHORE WHERE I HAVE ANOTHER DELIGHTFUL SURPRISE FOR YOU.
S.S. BUNGLE
S.S. BUNGLE
THIS IS YOUR NEW $50,000 HOME, BOUGHT WITH OUR DIVIDENDS. LOOK, SEE THE EXPENSIVE RUGS, FURNITURE, AND APPOINTMENTS? HEAR THE BIRDS TWITTERING IN THE LARGE SUNKEN GARDEN AND... WHY, WHAT'S THAT?
MY WIFE'S VOICE.
YES I'LL ADMIT IT'S OIL STOCK BUT IT'S VERY DIFFERENT. THE DIVIDENDS ARE TO BE PAID IN GOLD AND....
NO! TELL HIM NO! I HEARD SOME OF THE THINGS HE'S BEEN TELLING YOU. SUCH DRIVEL! TELL HIM NO! NO! NO!
AHEM! REALLY, I SIMPLY CAN'T UNDERSTAND WHY MRS. BUNGLE CAN'T SEE.... HASN'T THE VISION TO APPRECIATE...
WELL, YOU KNOW HOW THOSE THINGS ARE.... I GUESS YOU'RE A MARRIED MAN YOURSELF. ANYHOW I'M VERY SORRY. IT'S TOO BAD.
IMAGINE! OIL STOCK! AND I'M ALMOST POSITIVE THAT'S THE SAME MAN WHO SOLD HIM AN ARMFUL OF IT LAST YEAR.
ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY GONE! OH WELL, WHY WORRY? I'LL GET ANOTHER CHANCE LIKE THAT... I SUPPOSE, IF I LIVE TO BE TWO OR THREE HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

TELL US SOMETHING OF THE WONDERS THAT ARE GOING ON IN THE WORLD ON THE OTHER SIDE OF OUR MOUNTAINS!
WHEN I TELL YOU, I'LL KNOCK YOU FOR A ROW OF "AHS" AND "OHS".
Ella and Blackie are in an isolated village that has been cut off from civilization for over thirty years............
WE HAVE FAST TRAINS THAT TRAVEL BETWEEN CITIES CARRYING HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE TO DIFFERENT DESTINATIONS. THEY CARRY THEIR OWN DINING CARS AND HAVE EVERY CONVENIENCE.
THE WORLD YOU'VE NEVER SEEN IS A MARVEL OF SPEED. WHY JUST RECENTLY A MAN DROVE A GASOLINE-POWERED AUTOMOBILE AT THE SPEED OF TWO HUNDRED FIFTY-THREE MILES AN HOUR
WE HAVE GIANT AIRSHIPS THAT SPAN THE OCEAN, CARRYING PASSENGERS IN COMFORT THAT'S THE LAST WORD!
THEN THERE'S THE RADIO! IT ENABLES PEOPLE TO SIT IN THEIR OWN HOMES AND HEAR BANDS PLAYING AND PEOPLE SINGING, THOUSANDS OF MILES AWAY!
AND WE HAVE MOVING PICTURES---THINK OF IT--- PICTURES THAT MOVE AND TALK AND ARE PROJECTED ON A SCREEN!
TELEVISION IS ANOTHER MARVEL OF THE AGE! IMAGINE SEEING IMAGES PROJECTED ON A SCREEN IN YOUR OWN HOME WHILE THE OWNER OF THE IMAGE IS MILES AWAY!
GOSH, ELLA, THE THINGS YOU'VE BEEN TELLING THEM HAVEN'T FAZED THEM!
I THOUGHT EVERYTHING WOULD GIVE THEM A THRILL---, BUT THEY DON'T SEEM TO THINK MUCH OF IT ALL!
THE ONLY WAY I CAN MAKE YOU PEOPLE REALIZE THE PROGRESS CIVILIZATION HAS MADE IS TO COMPARE THE PAST WITH THE PRESENT THINK OF COLUMBUS AND HIS TRIP.
JUST THINK--- IT TOOK MONTHS FOR HIM TO PREPARE FOR HIS VOYAGE AND OUTFIT HIS SHIPS. HE HAD TO STORE ENOUGH FOOD TO LAST FOR MONTHS!
MAY 8-1932
COMPARE THAT WITH THE MODERN TRANS-ATLANTIC TRIP! NOWADAYS A MAN CAN MAKE THE TRIP IN AN AIRPLANE AND TAKE ALONG A LOAF OF BREAD AND A POUND OF BOLOGNA AT FIFTEEN CENTS A POUND!
THINK OF THAT! ISN'T IT WONDERFUL?

DUMB DORA

This comic appears every day in the daily Post-Dispatch

By PAUL FUNG

IDEA
SEA FOOD
HELLO, DORA! WHATCHA GOT THERE? I'LL CARRY IT FOR YOU!
THANKS ROD!
HEY! ITS ALIVE! WHAT IS IT?
IT'S JUST A FISH!
SAY! WHAT D'YA WANT WITH A LIVE FISH?
ITS FOR AUNT ELLA'S AQUARIUM --- SHE COLLECTS FISH AND I THOUGHT I'D SURPRISE HER AND BRING HER ONE FOR HER BIRTHDAY
HELLO, DORA! YOUR AUNTIE'S OUT RIGHT NOW, BUT YOU JUST MAKE YOURSELF AT HOME
HEY, DORA -- NIX!
WHY NOT?
GULP! GOBBLE GOBBLE
YUM! YUM!
OW! THERE GOES THE LAST ONE!
OH, DEAR! OH, DEAR! OH, DEAR!
WHAT'S THIS? WHAT'S THIS?
GULP
WHOOPEE
YOU SEE, DORA -- YOUR AUNT HAS BEEN MAKING MY LIFE MISERABLE WITH HER FISH = ALL SHE THINKS ABOUT ARE HER FISH! FEEDS THE FISH AND LETS ME STARVE = CALLS THEM DARLINGS, SWEETHEARTS, PETS
OUR MARRIAGE HAS BEEN GOING ON THE ROCKS BECAUSE OF THOSE DERN FISH = DORA, YOU'VE SAVED US NOW = I'LL REMEMBER YOU HANDSOMELY IN MY WILL!
SHE AIN'T SO DUMB!
